Flood Toll Mounts

Damage Hits
$100 Million

CHICAGO (CP)—Parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania have been declared national disaster areas in the wake of three days and nights of ravaging floods that drove thousands from their homes.

One estimate placed total damage at $100,000,000 in the worst floods to hit the area since 1913.

A cold wave swept across the northeastern part of the United States today, checking the disastrous January thaw that sent death and destruction to many parts of the country.

Ohio Governor Michael DiSalle proclaimed a state of emergency in Ohio Friday as a needed step in qualifying the state for federal assistance.

WORST-HIT STATES

In Washington, President Eisenhower declared parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania disaster areas. Immediate federal payments of Ohio and Pennsylvania, the worst-affected states, have been authorized.

The Red Cross says it is sending assistance to 11,000 families who are victims of the floods in those two states as well as West Virginia, Indiana and northern New York.

In the town of Pomeroy, Ohio, merchants moved goods out of their shops as the Ohio River's flood crest moved downstream. The crest is expected to reach Pomeroy at noon Sunday, rise over the banks and flood the low-lying main street.

COSTLY FIRE

In Meadville, Pa., firemen stood by helplessly early today as flames swept through a warehouse in flood-stricken city of 25,000. Firemen said the blaze broke out in the warehouse and office of the Race Street Lumber Company in a flooded section of the city.

Meanwhile, more than 2,000 men, women and children were homeless in the northwestern Pennsylvania city.

Officials reported slow progress in attempts to plug a riverbed hole through which flood waters of the Susquehanna have poured into a mine near Pittston, Pa., and trapped 12 miners.

Heavy equipment, including railroad cars, trucks laden with large rocks, bales of hay and excavators, were being used to plug the hole so rescuers could start down after the miners trapped since Thursday.

The floodwaters have crept into inter-connected mine shafts on both sides of the stream. Eleven other mines were closed Friday night, threatening to idle a total of 5,000 men.

Fears were expressed that the river waters pouring into a mine in nearby Port Griffith would force poisonous and explosive coal gas to the surface.

Councilman Anthony Wycalis of Duryea cautioned residents to keep cellar windows open.

LONDON (Reuters)—Snow and ice blocked roads in many parts of Britain today, and floods in the south invaded homes and marooned families.

Emergency barriers still held back the rising Thames near the grounds of Windsor Castle.

UPSETS MARK MATCHES IN U.K. CUP FOOTBALL

LONDON—Fourth round of the English Football Cup today was marked by several upsets. Major surprise was Bolton's 2-1 victory over league-champion Wolverhampton. Bolton are present holders of cup. In another surprise Third Division Norwich City eliminated Second Division Cardiff 3-2. Results Page 2.

AMPHIBIOUS AUTO

Streets were flooded in many areas of the city and district today as drains plugged and heavy rains caused overflows. In many cases cars wallowed almost up to their axles, as did the one above at Argyle and Richmond.

'Big Puddle' Plays Havoc With Roads and Basements

WIRE BRIEFS

Wings Beat Hawks

DETROIT—Two goals by Gordie Howe led Detroit Red Wings to a 2-0 victory today over Chicago Black Hawks in their nationally televised National Hockey League game.

Protective Custody

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—An unspecified number of people have been taken into protective custody in Portuguese East Africa Mozambique, according to unofficial reports reaching here. The arrests last week followed the distribution of pamphlets opposed to the regime.

Heat Kills Infants

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Melbourne hospitals today made urgent radio appeals for fans and air-conditioning units as soaring temperatures killed another baby and threatened dozens more. Twenty-one infants have died since the heat wave started a week ago.

Demonstrators March

LONDON (Reuters)—Sixty members of the Direct Action Committee against Nuclear War today set out on a nine-mile march from Brixton prison to Holloway women's jail here to demonstrate solidarity with fellow members imprisoned for last month's rocker base demonstrations.

Victoria has been splattered by 3.04 inches of rain since early Wednesday morning, to account for most of the monthly total to date of 4.29 inches.

The concentration was blamed for plugged drains, flooded roadways, and flooded basements distributed fairly evenly throughout the Greater Victoria area today.

Overnight, there were about 12 flooded basements in Victoria, an equal number in Saanich, and a few blocked drains in Esquimalt. Oak Bay reported inundated basements in the newly-developed Henderson Road area, and a fair amount of water pouring across Beach Drive at the cenotaph because of a blocked drain.

In spite of the incessant rain, there have been no records set, according to weatherman William Mackie. The three-day rain barely equals the 24-hour record for January of 3.05 inches, set in 1935, and the all-time record for January of 13.28 inches, also set in 1935, does not seem to be in danger.

Average for the month is 4.45 inches, which might easily be exceeded this month, Mr. Mackie said.

Forecast is for more rain, to be dumped, on the city tonight and Sunday morning.

by a passing disturbance, but the sun may break through the clouds Sunday afternoon.

Frey Re-Elected PNNA President

M. J. Frey, publisher of The Oregonian, at Portland, Ore., today was re-elected president of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association at the closing session of the two-day convention held at the Empress Hotel.

Also re-elected as treasurer was William Knight, publisher of the Oregon Journal. New officers are: first vice-president, John Callaghan, assistant to the publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer; and second vice-president, Joseph Breeze, general manager of the Ogden (Utah) Standard-Examiner.

'Let's Talk On Berlin' —Mikoyan

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet first deputy premier, called today for talks between East and West on the future of Berlin.

Mikoyan was addressing a press conference following his return from a three-week tour of the United States.

Mikoyan said the main thing is to get talks going on Berlin. The question of the six-month deadline, proposed by Russia, was "less important."

On Nov. 27 the Russians announced their plan to hand over East Berlin to the East German Communist government, and declared that West Berlin should be a "free city."

But they said they would wait six months before making changes in the present procedure for military traffic between the Western powers in Berlin and West Germany, which now must pass through East Germany. This interim period was to allow a "sound solution" to be reached between the Eastern and Western powers.

Emphasizing the Soviet Union's readiness to listen to counter-proposals from the Western powers, Mikoyan said in reply to a correspondent's question today:

"The fact that we set a deadline on Berlin is nothing abnormal because negotiations cannot go on indefinitely. The main thing is not the deadline but to have talks."

"If there is good will on the Western side, negotiations could be prolonged for a few days or a few months."

This statement was interpreted here as an indication that the Soviet Union might be willing to extend the deadline set in notes to the Western powers last November if East-West negotiations are under way by that time.

CUBA LEADER IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)

Fidel Castro, who overthrew the Cuban Batista dictatorship, arrived amid cheers Friday to help Venezuelans celebrate the first anniversary of the fall of dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

Thousands estimated at 20,000, or more swarmed around the bearded rebel chieftain's plane.

Baby Died of Hunger Coroner's Jury Finds

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A three-month-old girl died of pneumonia caused by starvation and aggravated by her mother's diet, a coroner's jury ruled early today.

The inquest into the Boxing Day death of Bertha Mae Prince ended at 2 a.m. after the jury had deliberated for 90 minutes over two days of testimony, including that of a Vancouver doctor subpoenaed to testify about the diets he prescribed for mother and daughter.

The jury found that the child's starvation was from a lack of adequate nourishment. It disregarded a claim by Dr. Everly E. Rogers, Vancouver physician who prescribed diets for Bertha Mae and 19-year-old Mrs. Phyllis Prince, that the child died of marasmus.

Marasmus is defined as progressive emaciation because of an enfeebled constitution, rather than any ascertainable cause.

Dr. Rogers testified he had been practicing medicine since his graduation from McGill University in 1919 and, denying he is a naturopath, said he specialized in nutrition.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Thou Keeper of all the years, we come to Thee this day, seeking joy and gladness, peace and security, faith and hope for the days that lie before us. Keep our minds upon Thee at all times. I, Lord, Make us ashamed of our selfish thinking, our petty worrying, our small way of living. Fill our days with great works that are accomplished for Thee and with Thee. We pray in the Master's name. Amen.

EISENHOWER

MONTGOMERY

MIFFED OVER MEMOIRS?

Ike Rebuffs Monty's Gift

LONDON—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery ruefully admitted Friday night that President Eisenhower is no longer corresponding with him since he criticized Eisenhower's conduct of the war in his memoirs.

"I sent him at Christmas most warm greetings, much warmer than I sent to anybody else," Montgomery told two television interviewers.

"And the result has been silence." Montgomery said he sent Eisenhower an autographed copy with personal inscription of his memoirs but had received no acknowledgement from the President. His Christmas greetings brought only silence, he said.

"I am awfully sad if I have lost the friendship of that great and good man. It would be very distressing to me, very distressing."

In Washington, the White House remained silent.

Three Curlers Killed As Roof Collapses

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—

Three persons—a married couple and a boy—were killed today when the roof of a curling rink at nearby Britannia Lodge collapsed.

Eleven persons were in the building about noon when the roof caved in under the weight of snow and a heavy wind. Rescuers removed the two bodies and the nine other persons within about an hour.

The dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Eric Chudleigh and John Canfield, 13.

Details regarding the injuries of the others were not immediately available but some were believed in serious condition.

The trapped persons were guests at the lodge where $750,000 worth of renovations have just been completed and were curling at the time of the accident.

Dispute Nears Showdown

MONTREAL (CP)—The publicly-owned CBC reported today it is spending between $5,000 and $7,000 a day on special police services to protect the families of employees maintaining broadcasting operations in Montreal.

The protection is for operational personnel, including announcers, who have continued to cross picket lines set up by producers who went on strike Dec. 29 to back demands for recognition as a bargaining agent of their Association des Realisateurs (CCCL).

J. J. Trudeau, manager of CBC information services here, said the corporation has hired about 100 special police who are paid $30 plus expenses to work a 12-hour shift each day. This total includes special personnel engaged to protect the three CBC transmitters in the Montreal area.

THREATENING CALLS

Mr. Trudeau said practically all CBC information services here, plus supervisors and regional heads of divisions received "an average of 30 to 40 threatening calls a day."

He said one individual received 200 calls in one 24-hour period and that the total number for all personnel runs to between 3,000 and 4,000 daily.

The information officer said two bodyguards have been assigned full time to two employees acting as announcers at the present time. This protection is for Pierre Stein, a commercial department employee doing news broadcasts on the French-language television station, and Roger Mondoloni, an outside broadcasts executive, now taking on announcing tasks.

WIFE CITES ATTACK

Mrs. Mondoloni was attacked at her home Thursday night. She told corporation officials two men came to her house and, when told her husband was not at home, one of them struck her. Three stitches were needed to close a gash on her lip.

Three other persons, including a technical producer, a film employee and the vice-president of a union local—were also beaten up since the

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

It's really too bad Liberal MLA George Gregory wasn't in the House Friday afternoon. For he missed the chance of retaliating to a suggestion he had joined the Social Credit Party.

The suggestion came from William Murray (SC-Prince Rupert) in the form of a book of Sacred membership tickets which he sent across the floor to Mr. Gregory's desk.

Voluble Mr. Murray recalled that George Gregory during the last session said that, if Public Works Minister W. N. Chant built a new courthouse in Victoria, he would be his campaign manager.

"We welcome the third member for Victoria to this side of the House," said Mr. Murray amid general laughter, "and I have pleasure in sending him these membership tickets to sell."

"He must be very happy to know that a start will be made on the new courthouse this year."

"He is!" smiled P. A. Gibbs, the only other Liberal member of the House.

But Mr. Gregory was away—appearing as counsel in a case at the old courthouse—and the Sacred tickets were laid on his desk in front of an empty chair.

No doubt he will reply later.

Mr. Murray is a capable and convincing speaker and rumor has it he will be made minister of welfare ere long.

It's expected the government will create a new portfolio now it has decided to separate the health and welfare departments—hitherto presided over by Health Minister Eric Martin.

Such a division has been suggested repeatedly by the Opposition.

The first day of the Throne Speech debate, following Friday's opening session, was of the "tea and crumpet" variety with members behaving as politely as if they were chatting in Ye Olde Empress lounge across the way.

The only sign of acrimony came when Mr. Murray spoke of "wise and dynamic leadership" in the Social Credit government. This produced a mild chorus of jeers from the CCF benches—but the jeers were allowed to pass without comment.

However, when CCF Leader Robert Strachan adjourned the debate (indicating that he would be addressing the House Monday afternoon), Tony Gargrave (CCF-Mackenzie) shouted to the government benches:

"Keep your heads down!"

The newest member of the House—35-year-old Donald Brothers from Rossland-Trail—made a personable first appearance. His 20-minute maiden speech was largely straightforward party talk but it was clear and to the point.

He received a welcoming ovation from both sides of the House.

Two fashionably-dressed young women sat demurely behind the government benches and listened respectfully but non-committally. They were the premier's attractive dark-eyed daughter, Mrs. G. H. Tozer, and his daughter-in-law Mrs. W. R. Bennett.

Competing with them in the field of fashion were Mrs. Buda Brown (SC-Vancouver Centre) in sky-blue dress and Mrs. Lois Haggen (CCF-Grand Forks-Greenwood) in a charming beige costume.

The desks of both lady members were adorned with choice blooms—Mrs. Haggen's with pink carnations, Mrs. Brown's with red roses and chrysanthemums.

The life of a cabinet minister is a full one. Soon after the House rose Friday afternoon, Labor Minister Lyle Wicks flew to Haney to address a political meeting.

LONDON (AP)—The English Soccer Cup holders, Bolton Wanderers, scored twice in four minutes today for a 2-1 upset victory over Wolverhampton Wanderers, league champions, in a fourth round cup match.

The Wolves, second favorites to win the trophy before today's game, took a 1-0 half-time lead over Bolton before a crowd of 56,000 at Wolverhampton. The Wolves' goal came in the 30th minute when a Bolton player turned a shot into his own goal.

But Bolton, inspired by centre-forward Nat Lofthouse, hit back in the second half. Inside left Ray Parry netted from a penalty in the 56th minute and four minutes later Lofthouse got Bolton's winning marker.

BOLTON FAVORED

That victory made Bolton favorites to win the coveted trophy for the second straight year. It also sent them into the last 16 teams of the competition. Five hundred teams started out in the tournament. Newcastle was the last side to win the trophy two straight years in 1951 and 1952.

Today's giant-killing honors went to third division Norwich City who defeated second division Cardiff 3-2 and third division Colchester, who held mighty Arsenal to a 2-2 tie.

LAST NON-LEAGUE PLAY

Today's games saw the last of the non-league teams. Worcester City went under 2-0 at home to second division Sheffield United; first division Nottingham Forest defeated Tooting and Mitcham Amateurs 3-0, and second division Fulham won 1-0 at Peterborough.

Strachan Bids For Province Phone Control

Provincial control of B.C. Telephone Company rates and services will be sought Monday in a motion by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

He will argue that the province should apply to the federal government for the jurisdiction now held by the federal board of transport commissioners in this regard.

Notice was filed of 32 questions to be asked by various government departments on matters such as mental health, unemployment, education, workmen's compensation, and education, most of them by P. A. Gibbs (Lib., Oak Bay) and Mr. Strachan.

The House sits at 2 p.m. Monday.

DEFENDANTS THREATENED

Trial 'Blackout' Castro Wants

HAVANA (AP)—An appeal court today considered the death sentence given in a circus setting at the public war crimes trial Friday. The two remaining showcase trials were postponed until Monday.

Revolutionary leader Fidel Castro was reported to have suggested a radio and television blackout on the other trials in an apparent effort to avoid too much public excitement. An aroused crowd threatened the next two defendants Friday.

Foreign correspondents invited to the trials had criticized the carnival atmosphere of the trial that opened Thursday before 17,000 shouting Cubans and ended Friday morning with many still watching on television.

A sampling of opinion among the 322 foreign reporters here indicated agreement with the legal procedure used, however. Better understanding abroad of the provisional government's aims was foreseen as a result of the public trials.

strike started almost a month ago.

During the last month the homes of five non-strikers and the cars of seven employees were damaged.

Meanwhile, the dispute appeared to be heading for a showdown today.

Leaders of the Association des Realisateurs and heads of union locals sympathizing with the producers were in Toronto today attempting to obtain support from other CBC union members.

Interested parties in the dispute waited and watched for developments from meetings scheduled in the Ontario capital.

CBC officials in Toronto said precautions are being taken to meet the threat of the strike spreading to Toronto.

They said programming will continue even if a strike is called.

A CBC spokesman said that only if a strike would be called.

News programs, panel shows and similar live broadcasts would not be seriously hit, the spokesman said. Supervisory staff—most of whom had come up through the ranks—could continue to operate programs if union members went on strike.

Chicken Sour Cream Fricassee

3 to 4-lb. Ready-to-Cook Fowl, cut in pieces, or 3 to 4 lbs. Packaged Cut-up Fowl

1/2 Cup of Flour 1/2 Cup Shortening
1 Tablespoon Paprika 1 Large Onion, sliced
1 Tablespoon Salt 2 Cups Hot Water
1 Cup Sour Cream

Dredge fowl in flour mixed with paprika and salt. Brown slowly on all sides in shortening, add onion during last stage of browning and cook until soft. Add flour mixture left from dredging, blend well with dripping, then add water, all at once. Stir to blend flour with liquid, then cover and simmer 1 1/2 hours or until meat is tender. Add sour cream and simmer 5 minutes. Serves 5 to 6. Serve with dumplings or with steamed rice.

Barbecued Spareribs

3 to 4 lbs. Spareribs, cut in pieces
1 Lemon
1 Large Onion
1 Cup Catsup
1/2 Cup Worcestershire Sauce
1 Teaspoon Chili Powder
1 Teaspoon Pepper
2 Cups Water

Place ribs in shallow roasting pan. On each piece place a slice of unpeeled lemon and a slice of onion. Roast in a very hot oven (450°) for 30 minutes. Combine remaining ingredients, bring to boil and pour over ribs. Continue baking in moderate oven (350°) until tender, about 45 minutes to 1 hour. Baste ribs with sauce every 15 minutes. If sauce gets too thick add more water. Makes 4 servings. Add slices of pineapple, with juice, for the last 20 minutes to give added flavor.

'Stand in Bread Line' B.C. MP Tells Starr

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—CCF member Frank Howard said Friday it would do Labor Minister Starr and his colleagues "good to go and stand in a bread line."

The CCF MP for Skeena, B.C., said Mr. Starr has been "seduced" by unemployment statistics to the point that he has forgotten human beings are involved.

There are probably 11,000 or 12,000 unemployed in Vancouver who have been unable to get enough work to qualify for unemployment insurance assistance, he said.

There were bread lines and soup kitchens operating in Vancouver for the first time in many years. In Prince George, employment centre for the north-central B.C. logging industry, two of his former logging colleagues had been forced to sleep in parked cars for a week.

When Mr. Howard suggested that Mr. Starr would benefit from standing in a bread line, Howard Graffey (PC—Brome-Missisquoi) shouted: "Have you tried it?"

Mr. Howard retorted that if Mr. Graffey wanted to ask a question, "let him get up off his fanny and ask it properly."

There was a suggestion by

Mr. Howard that the government set up a special export agency to buy products of Canadian manufacturers for resale. Purpose of his proposal was to provide for special exports such as those to Communist China, where an American firm might put pressure on a Canadian subsidiary against the sale.

Mr. Howard, in calling for a new federal export agency, suggested that American interference led to a refusal by Alcan to sell to Red China.

He said the only stumbling block could have come from the United States, which bans exports to Communist China. The company's parent firm, Aluminium Limited, drew half of its board of directors from America.

It mattered little whether the "intimidation" of Alcan was economic or political. What mattered was that it came from the U.S. at a time when such a sale would have helped expand the company's operations, now running at 65 per cent of capacity.

COLLEGE PROTESTS

Duties of Home Burden Schools

The present burden on schools to provide training in "manners and morals," traditionally a parental responsibility, is both "unfair and inefficient," the royal commission on education was told here Friday.

A brief presented on behalf of the Victoria College faculty argued that the present time, when there is an increasing clamor about school costs, would be opportune "to return some responsibilities to the homes."

"And, if the parents wish its assistance, to the church." The brief was presented by Dr. G. R. Elliott, associate professor of economics, and G. A. Brand, associate professor of education.

WHY NOT MORE?

While some schools "point with pride" to the fact 85 per cent of pupil time is occupied by academic activity, why not 90, or even 95 per cent, they asked.

"If the home cannot be trusted to give training in manners and morals, then surely the logical course for the province to pursue is the institution of boarding schools for all."

On the subject of "English" the presentation, maintained that all except superior students are deficient in comprehension and expression.

Blame cannot be laid at the door of the English teacher because with large classes close supervision, is impossible. The solution, the brief said, could be teaching of English by most, if not all teachers. The "notable inadequacy" in mathematics and science inicates needs in these fields similar to those in English, the brief said.

DANGER OF BOREDOM

There is also too much "repetition" and discounting, to some extent, work of previous grades.

"Repetition is necessary, but it should be astutely camouflaged or it will generate boredom."

The better student is discouraged at wasting his time on material with which he is familiar, the brief added.

TOO MUCH MATERIAL

Another barrier to thoroughness in learning is presentation of "too much" material. The brief termed "nonsensical" such attempts as in grade eight to cover, in outline, the entire fields of British, French and Canadian history.

"Such approaches become 'courses' in memorization" without understanding, of hosts of more or less meaningless facts.

The brief suggested the first intensive training in history should be in Canadian history. "It is unrealistic to expect pupils at this level to think in terms of civilization when they have no understanding of what constitutes a civilization."

The brief also scored the "current complete neglect" of the political science of democracy, "a fact which is probably not unrelated to the present ill-repute of what should be one of the most laudable activities—politics."

Pity Poor Teacher UBC Profs to Urge

VANCOUVER (CP) — In a brief to be presented to the Chant Royal Commission on education, the Faculty of Education at University of British Columbia urges that more attention be paid to the health, welfare and sensitivities of teachers.

The brief, to be read by its authors here Feb. 16, appraises the B.C. school system and teacher-training program, and offers 15 recommendations to improve the education system. Beginning with the statement: "The fate of a free people rests upon its ability to educate a new generation," the brief suggests that increased efforts be made to show bright students the opportunities of a career in teaching.

The educationists believe the policy of arbitrarily retiring teachers at 65 should be revised so active and effective teachers can be retained.

Among other suggestions, the faculty proposes the pupil-teacher ration in schools should not be more than 30-1.

Most important, the brief urges, is to make the teaching profession as attractive a career as possible.

ATOM MISHAP PROBED AS CANCER CAUSE

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)

—An investigation has been ordered in an effort to learn whether there was any possible link between an atomic-reactor accident and deaths from blood cancer in a town 80 miles away.

The investigation was ordered by the deputy mayor of Heywood, William Joyce, who began looking into causes of deaths in his district after a niece, 39, died last November from leukemia.

He had heard of a number of deaths from leukemia and similar ailments and persuaded the local health officer to begin an investigation.

Province-Run Schools Asked For Retarded

Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children has called on the provincial government to accept responsibility for schooling the 1,800 retarded children in B.C.

A brief presented the royal commission on education here Friday, said 1,200 of the 1,800 are receiving no education or training.

The brief called for pre-primary schools for mentally retarded children from aged five; facilities and equipment for training; a home-training plan using visiting teachers; adequate diagnostic services including a travelling clinic, and support for research projects.

Meanwhile, P. S. Watt, a Victoria accountant, suggested to the commission a separate system of independently controlled grant-aided schools be set up to compete with the present B.C. public school system.

He said that despite the best intentions a monopoly has been created in education.

"Once state control of education becomes absolute, the opportunities for state control of thought and speech are most dangerously enhanced."

"The first step along the road to serfdom is restriction of freedom of thought."

Demara in Disguise Again But 'Such a Good Teacher'

That intriguing "impostor," Ferdinand Waldo Demara Jr., 37, who once posed as a doctor and served with the RCN aboard HMCS Cayuga in Korean waters, has wound up another short-lived career.

In Winchendon, Mass., school superintendent Ralph Meacham said Friday a man who taught high-school English and French under the name of Jefferson Baird Thorne was really Demara. His salary was $4,900 a year and he was "a very good teacher."

The man resigned Nov. 7 and disappeared.

Demara joined the RCN in 1951, posing as Dr. Joseph Cyr, a New Brunswick physician, and was credited with performing difficult operations aboard ship off Korea. When publicity about this was released, he was discovered and deported to the U.S. after a dishonorable discharge in 1952.

Demara's series of decep-tions include a short shift as a guard in a Texas prison; a teacher in Maine, and several hard-to-track episodes, including time spent in a couple of monasteries.

Demara's widowed mother who lives in Lawrence, Mass., where he was born, said Friday she had not seen him "and don't know where he is."

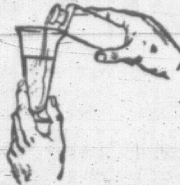

The school does not intend to press charges.

"All I want, the superintendent said "is to give him $294 in back wages."

Industrial Empire Under Attack

A British-controlled industrial empire has come under fire for actions within its growing Canadian sphere.

The criticisms were levelled by two Progressive Conservative members from Nova Scotia constituencies against A. V. Roe (Canada) Limited, top Canadian subsidiary of the Hawker Siddeley group in Britain.

Hawker Siddeley is said to have Britain's largest single dollar investment in Canada. The two MPs were critical of A. V. Roe on two main counts: large-scale layoffs in Cape Breton coal mines.

Meagre help in finding work for miners affected by the closing of No. 2 colliery at Springhill, N.S., where 75 miners died in a mine tragedy last Oct. 23.

At another point in Friday's debate Agriculture Minister Harkness warned farmers against the dangers of over-production.

Mr. Harkness said that since Canadian proposals for a world or NATO food bank have not been implemented "it is necessary for us to tailor our agricultural production to the markets we possess and those which we have any reasonable possibility of securing."

Farmers' cash income in 1958—$2,869,000—had been the best in four years, while the so-called cost-price squeeze of rising production costs and lower returns had been "halted and reversed."

The government was accused by Newfoundland Liberal Charles P. Granger of having two standards for helping primary producers: $40,000,000 special assistance to western grain growers last year, but nothing for Atlantic fishermen whose cod fishery failed last year.

"Certainly the Canadian fisherman deserves the same assistance as a Canadian farmer. I did not know there was a double standard for Canadians."

Members from east and west coasts Friday criticized regulations affecting the operation of fishing boats within the three- and 12-mile offshore limits.

"Charity begins at home," said Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—Queens-Lunenburg) in complaining that some foreign trawlers can fish within three miles of Canadian land while some Canadian boats have to stay 12 miles out.

He called for an end of this "discrimination against our larger trawlers."

Columbia Power Bid by New MLA

Development of Columbia River power and action to decrease freight rates were named as major requirements for advancement of the Rossland-Trail area by Donald L. Brothers, newest MLA, in his maiden speech in the legislature Friday.

His address was devoted mainly to a description of the economics of his riding, a defence of the government mental health program and a plea for labor-management peace.

The desk-thumping which preceded his speech was more enthusiastic than the hearing given him by members on both sides of the House. As is the case with most reply-to-the-throne speeches, at least 20 members, including four cabinet ministers continued reading or writing throughout.

Mrs. Brothers, seated in the ladies' gallery, gave rapt attention.

W. H. Murray (SC-Prince Rupert) seconded the reply-to-the-throne speech. He asked attention of the highways department to his riding, calling for an improved hard top mix to meet weather conditions and safety fencing for dangerous riverside sections of road.

Mr. Murray spoke in support of the Native Brotherhood of B.C. in its struggle for equal rights for Indians, pointing out the effect of present liquor regulations.

He said this builds up a "resentment" inside the Indian which makes him lose respect for both the law and those enforcing it. He asked a royal commission be urged to the federal government to study the question.

Mr. Murray asked rescinding of the regulation which requires vodka sales to be only by the case or over a bar.

He also asked that a master wage agreement be designed for all hospitals in B.C. to eliminate regional problems. Certain hospitals now are faced with high wage structures which make operation within the BCHS budget requirements difficult.

Burns Burns Bright Again

Scots throughout Victoria this weekend are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the birth of Robbie Burns, the Scottish bard, born Jan. 25, 1759, in a thatched cottage on a farm at Alloway.

In so doing they are linked with Scots throughout the world, though "seas between us breed hae roared."

The Burns Club of Victoria will celebrate the anniversary with a concert and dinner in the Sir William Wallace Room at Holyrood House, tonight.

The St. Andrew's and Celtic Canadian Society held its celebration at Holyrood House Friday night with a dinner attended by nearly 200 Scots and Sassenachs.

In his speech to The Immortal Memory, Duncan McBride said Burns was an advocate of the four freedoms. "The world sorely lacks the unifying ideal of the brotherhood of man he preached," Mr. McBride said. "Burns' appeal in his works is for better human relations."

MUSIC AND FORGET

To spread this ideal, he added, Burns wrote 250 songs and made collections of songs for publication "so that the people might be able to hear music and forget the poverty around them."

The address to the haggis, great chief of the pudden race, was given by Jack Robertson, past president of the society. Mrs. Blanche Grant, president, introduced the program and entertainment was provided by Eleanor Duff, Ronald Chisholm and John Dunbar.

Grace was said by Rev. J. W. McCall, minister of the Presbyterian church. The haggis was borne by John Robinson, piped in by pipe-majors Jack McKay and Ian Duncan and escorted by Tom Hamilton and Cameron Porteous.

The Spiral Orbit

AS THE CANADIAN TRANSPORT Board prepares to hear the application of the railways for a freight rate increase of up to 20 per cent—an increase to be applied on top of the recent 17 per cent raise—there are indications that the Federal Government plans to relieve the present situation with a subsidy.

The West and the Maritimes sections of Canada suffer most from any freight rate increase. The subsidy—suggested at $30 millions annually—would be applied to relieve the extra burden deriving from the last rate increase. But a much larger subsidy would be required if rates were raised another 20 per cent.

A railway subsidy today would be entirely in answer to organized labor's demands—rightly or wrongly—for a wage increase. But next year a similar demand would face the railways with a similar problem, and their objections would be met by labor's assurance that the Government, having once granted a subsidy to meet wage increases, would quickly do so again. The railways would be less inclined to demand economic justification for a wage (and cost) increase; they would call on the Government to provide the money. Once established, such a continuing sequence could be endless—and ruinous.

To the concern earlier expressed by this newspaper over the prospect of a subsidy-and-costs spiral has been added no less a voice than that of the Toronto Globe and Mail, one of Canada's outstanding Conservative organs.

Says the Globe and Mail: "If the Western and Maritime provinces cannot bear the full brunt of a $60 million freight rate increase and if, in consequence, Ottawa must pick up half the tab, it would seem plain that they cannot bear any of the brunt of an additional freight rate increase and that, in consequence, Ottawa will have to pick up all of the tab. So perhaps, just to keep on the safe side, that $30 million figure should be kited up to $60 or $70 million."

A national subsidy can quickly become a very dangerous solution, not only for its effects on the industry concerned but for the inevitable repercussions in other industries. If a railway can be helped from the country's coffers, why not a mine, or a factory? There may be no end to such demands—a phrase which Mr. Green himself used earlier when he promised the country that there would be "no subsidies" for the railways.

The repercussions are already being felt.

As the Globe and Mail observes: "We see by the paper that the Maritime truckers, who compete with the railways, are demanding a Federal subsidy similar to that which the railways are getting. That makes good sense; or perhaps, we should say, good nonsense."

The basic source of government subsidies, of course, is taxation. Taxes, applied to industry, raise costs, which in turn are used as the basis for wage increases, which eventually turn up as increased railway costs and hence freight rate increases. These presumably would then be met by government subsidies.

Faced with this vicious spiral, the Conservative critic of Conservative Government policy asks: "Does this train stop anywhere? Or is it in orbit?"

Canadian taxpayers will echo the query.

Conflict In the Strait

LAST SEASON THE BULK OF Pacific Northwest salmon heading in through the Strait of Juan de Fuca to spawning grounds on mainland waterways took the Canadian route.

Because they hugged the shore of south Vancouver Island, Canadian fishermen landed heavy catches. The catches were so heavy that regulations had to be imposed so that United States boats could take their share when the salmon swung into American waters.

Now, suggests the American advisory board to the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, net fishing should cease in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Survival of the pink and coho runs, say the United States spokesmen, is threatened by the heavy catches made by Canadians. The Canadians naturally object to the proposal. Closing the Strait would bar them from the rich fishing grounds off Port San Juan and Sooke. Presumably the Canadian objections to any such ban will prevail.

It is vital, of course, that both countries approach the salmon conservation problem in a co-operative spirit. Canadian-spawned salmon returning to their home waters from the sea as mature fish frequently cut through the United States "backyard". American-spawned fish often cross Canadian "backyards" on their way to the redds. The fish don't observe national boundaries.

Hence each country must show consideration for the other's fishermen in order to protect itself. If either fishes out important runs, both suffer.

But the proposal from the United States advisory board sounds odd to Canadians who recall the dispute of the early fall of 1936.

At that time American fishermen were using mile-long nylon nets. Canadians, forced by law to use much shorter nets, protested. Those protests bounced off American officialdom with no apparent effect. Canadians were told that regulation was infinitely complicated by conflicts in federal and states rights.

While American fishermen were doing very well with their much bigger nets, United States authorities professed impotence, despite the threat such hauls carried for survival of the run.

Only when Mr. James Sinclair, as Canadian minister of fisheries, took off the gloves and said Canada would lift restrictions from Canadian fishermen if the United States refused to protect the run did our neighbors find powers to curb their fishermen.

As the result of last year's run—which held close to the Island in Canadian waters—the shoe is on the other foot.

This does not mean that Canada will refuse to co-operate for the preservation of the fish. It does mean, however, that Canadians will have to be shown that the runs are jeopardized seriously. The fishermen of this country will be loath to risk their own livelihood merely for their competitive partners' benefit.

Swing of the Pendulum

THE CURRENT TRIALS OF Batista henchmen in Havana, conducted in an arena full of screaming onlookers, have more than a touch of the Roman holiday about them. It is difficult to believe that justice can pursue its calm way in such an environment, difficult to believe that judges and defence counsel will not be influenced by the yells of the mob.

But it is equally difficult for the far-distant observer to assess the guilt of the accused. Some of the reports of atrocities committed by Batista police and soldiers may do much to explain the alacrity with which death sentences are being carried out.

The successful rebel leader Fidel Castro says that more than 400 prisoners may be executed before the post-revolutionary reprisals are completed. It is to be hoped that the usual excesses of such a period will be kept to a minimum, not only on humanitarian grounds, but in the interests of the people of Cuba. Force breeds force, and Batista has only reaped the violence he himself had previously sown. It will be to Cuba's eventual advantage if the pendulum can be kept from swinging too far in the opposite direction.

If Mr. Castro can quickly restore the country to order and inaugurate a properly democratic government he will have a much better chance of doing business with the nations on whom he depends for his vital export markets.

In the meantime the Cuban scene can only be viewed with mixed feelings.

Inside Looking Out

A BRIEF CANADIAN PRESS item from Ottawa says that Prime Minister Diefenbaker told Canadian-Labor Congress delegates that they "can't have it both ways."

This was his reply to the delegation's plea for increased government social security measures and reduced taxes at the same time. Mr. Diefenbaker has spoken sound common sense in his answer to the labor group. But in the light of Conservative campaign programs in recent elections, he might just as easily have charged the Canadian Labor Congress with plagiarism.

As Our Readers See It

What About a Referendum?

In connection with the correspondence which has passed between Mr. Bennett and your publisher on the subject of the British Columbia Power Commission, the B.C. Electric Company and the Wenner-Gren project, I would like to suggest the following:

Mr. Bennett maintains that he represents the views of the large majority of the people of B.C. and that only a small and unreasonable minority is against his plans and his policies. If this is really the case then I suggest Mr. Bennett should confirm his opinion by a referendum on the following:

(1) Do the people favor public power or the present private monopoly which graciously maintains the highest power rates in Canada?

(2) Do the people favor the Wenner-Gren project as at present constituted under Mr. Axel Wenner-Gren who was blacklisted by the Allies in the war?

(3) Would the people of B.C. favor the Peace River project to be undertaken by the province either by the British Columbia Power Commission or by some other provincial body?

(4) Do the people of B.C. feel quite happy about the B.C. Telephone Company which maintains, I believe, the highest rates in Canada.

If Mr. Bennett is confident that the people of B.C. are behind his policies he should be quite ready to put these questions to a referendum of the people and as we are supposed to be a democracy he could then be guided by the will of the people.

M. P. B. WRIXON,

2250 Arbutus Road.

LOOSE ENDS

You, Too, Can Be a Wealthy Panelist

THE new editions of the better dictionaries will contain a splendid new word. It is "panelist". Not only a new word but a new profession, a delicate art, a way of life have entered our society. The panelist of television, the expert who asks and refuses to answer every question, is here to stay.

Until recently a man who knew all about some subject—economics, for instance, or philately or the culture of chrysanthemums—would be invited now and then to go on the television screen and discuss his special field of knowledge with other experts.

NOW we have gone far beyond that primitive stage of public education. The television panel has become a full-time job; the panelist a highly-paid virtuoso with a working week of about half an hour. Though it is lucrative, this trade requires no special qualifications. For successful paneling a man needs only to know about everything or, better still, about nothing.

Take the case of Mr. Sylvanus Krunch, the most eminent panelist in the business, who appears on the screen at least once a week to inform the public on foreign affairs, banking, child psychology, town planning or butterfly collecting as the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation desires. Mr. Krunch assured me, in an exclusive interview (one of seven on the same day) that he really worked very hard to prepare himself for every panel.

ON a large subject like the threat of Communism or national finance, Mr. Krunch said he sometimes spent as much as fifteen minutes with the Encyclopedia Britannica just before the television cameras began to grind.

Once, before interviewing Mr. Fleming, on a coast-to-coast hook-up, Mr. Krunch read several paragraphs of the last budget speech, and on a panel with some visiting Russian journalists he looked up Mr. Khrushchev in Who's Who. A meticulous craftsman with high professional ideals, Mr. Krunch believes in being prepared.

The results of this research are apparent in Mr. Krunch's performance. They are apparent on every panel, every night. The public always gets its money's worth.

THOUGH the profession is much harder, says Mr. Krunch, than the public suspects it is easier than his former occupation as a logger, a garbage collector and a telephone linesman. It does not demand as much thought as bookkeeping or selling lingerie. On the whole, he thinks, it is easier than politics and much better paid. Besides, you don't have to get elected.

But there is a catch in paneling, as in all professions. It puts, says Mr. Krunch, a heavy strain on the ego. To be a master panelist a man must have an athletic ego always maintained in a rigorous state of training.

If his ego gets soft, if he fears for a moment to rush in where angels fear to tread, if he hesitates to discuss any subject from nuclear physics to the design of an improbable Canadian flag, a man is lost before he starts.

MR. KRUNCH is never lost. He will discuss anything with anybody at the drop of a CBC cheque. A modest, rather timid person in private life, a hen-pecked husband and beat-up parent, Mr. Krunch becomes a roaring lion of controversy when the studio lights go on, the terror of his fellow panelists, the scourge of the amateur panel guest.

In fact, Mr. Krunch and other trained professionals, can panel in their sleep, and often do if they are presiding as chairmen. In that prize position, reserved for veterans, a man has only to wake up, watch the clock and thank the guests for their brilliant elucidation of a grave public problem. And this, says Mr. Krunch, is quite simple once you get the hang of it since no problem is ever elucidated and nobody cares anyway.

A THOUSAND avenues of argument are opened up on any good panel. None is ever pursued to the end, for the experts take good care of that. No two panelists, if they know their trade, ever agree about anything. No point is proved, no question answered and, best of all, nothing is recollected afterwards as the national audience turns with relief from a grave public problem to a rousing Western.

Every well-constructed panel is thus a lost weekend. And since a man can make a good living by one panel appearance a week he can devote most of his time to his hobbies, as Mr. Krunch makes an intensive study of public affairs, though you would never guess it to see him on the screen.

In fact, I am convinced, after talking to him privately, that Mr. Krunch does know something after all but is too wise to reveal it in his working half-hours.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

In the Unaccustomed Role of a Little Local Hero

THERE probably is nothing so embarrassing to a boy as to find himself suddenly in the role of a little local hero. It once happened to me. And it happened because of a cat. Cats were never particular favorites of mine; indeed they always have been rather low on the roster of animal pets and yet our boyhood home always harbored one or more of the strange, arrogant and uncompromising felines. Mother liked cats and rather disliked dogs—for which I would have settled at any time instead of a snooty cat that never once abrogated its hidebound insularity. I felt about cats and still feel that they merely suffer the presence of humans; it contributes to their well-being—their luxurious creature comfort.

On the other hand a dog—any dog, either pedigreed or one completely indifferent to its ancestry—will lavish its affection on its master whether he is a thoughtful boy or a genial drunk who may cruelly beat his pet.

Horses stand very high on the roster of animals I would have liked to own. They may not possess the high degree of intelligence which makes dogs such grand pets but they are such fine and dignified companions and share with dogs a faculty of listening to human speech and in taking comfort from kind words.

I remember one night long ago riding a fine, gentle bay mare along a forest trail that led to a high, steep bluff down which a difficult and precipitous trail snaked to the beach below.

It was really dark, as it can be in the country where there is no reflected light to cast an aura of twilight in the sky.

We came at last to where I felt sure the trail dipped over the cliff when, to my amazement, the mare stopped and refused all urging by my voice and by gently kicking her belly with my heels. She just stood quietly still.

When it was obvious that she was not going any further I slid off her back—there was no saddle—backed her up, dropped the reins over her neck and said:

"Alright old girl, I guess you know what you're doing. Go ahead on your own."

Which is precisely what she did after nuzzling my neck with her velvet lips. She turned and started out sure-footed through the bush. I seized her tail and in a moment or two she stepped over the bank on the proper trail and together we slithered down the sandy path.

I had tried to ride her straight over the brink. This started out to tell how I became a one-day local hero on our street because of a cat.

It was a fat, ugly, yellowish animal owned by a rather silly spinster who lavished—I thought—an inordinate affection on the beast.

Well, it was chased by a dog and promptly clawed to the top of a telephone pole and stayed there despite all the blandishment of its owner who was practically in hysterics.

So I climbed the pole, picking up a score of cedar slivers on the way, until I could reach the wretched animal.

It would have none of my rescue attempts and simply dug its claws deeper in the top of the pole. I could only use one hand without endangering my slim hold on the pole and finally the cat left the pole and fastened on the top of my head with its claws firmly fixed in my scalp.

And, as if that wasn't bad enough, when I reached the ground I must be hugged and kissed by a scrawny spinster who smelled of goats.

WHERE ARE THE HERETICS?

'The Arts in Canada': A Handsome Husk of a Book

LAST week I was enthusing about Alan Gowans' excellent book, "Looking at Architecture in Canada," and this week I want to say a few words about another new book: "The Arts in Canada" (Macmillan, $10). The immediate reason for all this book-reviewing frenzy is simple enough. The CBC sent me these two books, the other day for me to review on Critically Speaking tomorrow, so unless you want to ruin your digestion after Sunday lunch, switch off the radio before I start darkening the ether with my croaking platitudes. The talk lasts eight minutes and fifty seconds. I read it once over before recording it, and in order to put in this gentle half-hour's chore I had to travel for seven hours, and wait for a couple more while TCA decided that it wasn't a fit night out for man or bird.

But I'm grateful. Against just such an emergency I was carrying Stendhal's "On Love" in my pocket, and had time to read it again, and renew my acquaintance with the Salzburg bough, and the famous theory of crystallization. What, I was wondering as the boat docked, would Stendhal have made of Nanaimo?

But I digress. "The Arts in Canada" is an outstandingly handsome book, judged by any standard you like. If a better-looking picture book has been produced in Canada, I haven't seen it. Subtitled "A Stocktaking in Mid-century," it is a collection of essays on the whole field of the arts; each covered by a well-known authority, under the editorship of Malcolm Ross.

The layout of the book, its typography and general make-up are, as I have said, beyond criticism. I wish I could say the same for the contents. The "blurb" promises a "critical inquiry into the arts" but with a few honorable exceptions the writers do not live up to this promise.

Perhaps they were confused by the editorial directive "to produce a positive book"; perhaps we are suffering from an excess of positivity. It may be that we are becoming a little complacent. Whatever the reasons, most of the contributors fight shy of any real criticism.

Dr. Bissell, for instance, is a good deal too polite about Canadian novelists. I cannot believe that any very serious study of literature could afford to begin with Mazon de la Roche, for instance, however widely read she may be.

I agree with him that Ethel Wilson has made the most substantial contribution of our contemporary English-Canadian novelists, but it is when you come to weigh this contribution against the total output of the rest of the English-speaking world that doubt sets in. Leaving Britain and the United States on one side for a moment, have we yet produced a writer as good as the Australian Patrick White, or the Indian novelists Menen and Narayan, or Naipaul, Selvon, Mittelholzer and Lamming from the West Indies?

Personally, I think the answer is No. Simple as the answer is, the reason is even simpler; there are no writers because there are so few readers.

When the demand for better novelists makes itself felt, the supply will materialize as well. I still take Stephen Leacock to be Canada's only aspirant for international honors, although I have great hopes for the future.

The potential is there, too, in the pictorial arts. Although we do not seem to have any really outstanding figure at work with brush and chisel, we do have a gratifyingly large number of competent and dedicated artists. I was very disappointed in Robert Ayre's essay on Canadian painting in "The Arts in Canada," which gave an entirely disproportionate attention to the work of Roloff Beny, who seems to me happier with problems of publicity than with those of plasticity.

Honest painters like Goodridge Roberts and Jacques de Tonnancourt, Selkirk and Tony Ughuiri receive only a passing mention; our best B.C. painters—Shadbolt, Blinching, Gordon Smith—are not given their due. While this top-heavy treatment may amuse painters and people who follow the arts closely, it is calculated to mislead the uninitiated and amaze the foreign reader.

There is plenty of special pleading in this collection. How is this for an explanation of why Canadians don't read poetry? Northrop Frye speaks: "(Canadian poets) work in the midst of a society which is largely indifferent to them, not because it is stupid or vulgar or materialistic, but because it is obsessed by the importance of putting ideas into words. . . . If you believe that, sir, as the Duke of Wellington said on another occasion, you will believe anything."

John Beckwith's article on contemporary Canadian music is very thoughtful and provocative, but surely here too it is the audience which is lacking.

The best contribution in the entire volume is Mayor Moore's perceptive and fearless criticism of the CBC.

After castigating the corporation which feeds him for being too sensitive to the agitation of pressure groups, and for giving in too easily to the sponsors in their commercially-backed programs, he has this to say about the Religious Advisory Council, "to whose advice," he says, "the CBC invariably submits. . . . The result is that religion, possibly the most important subject in the world, is practically never paid the compliment of open argument, never allowed the excitement of clashing views, never permitted to be held responsible for its views. . . . Where are the heretics, the skeptics, the critics without whom dogma becomes platitude and withers?"

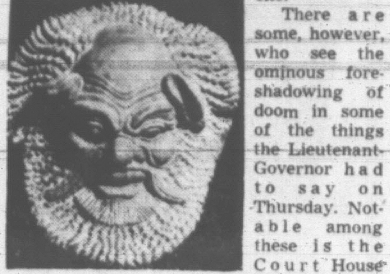

This remark has a wider application. If we are to achieve anything in the arts we need a far more critical attitude than is displayed by the majority of writers in this handsome husk of a book.

Run for Cover, Boys!

THE Speech from the Throne was on the whole an innocuous utterance, as these things usually are. And this is as it should be; a ministry must have room to manoeuvre.

Especially this one.

SILENUS

There are some, however, who see the ominous shadowing of doom in some of the things the Lieutenant-Governor had to say on Thursday. Notable among these is the Court House Seagull.

He had spent most of the day hovering anxiously about the Parliament Buildings, peering through windows and skylights in the hope of catching some inkling of what was going to be revealed in the Chamber. A keensighted observer might have noticed him at one of the gallery windows, straining an ear to hear the Speech being read; but doubtless all the keensighted observers present were too busy paying attention to notice wandering seagulls.

It was a bird in the depths of dejection who was standing in Bastion Square on Friday, hunched up with his back to the wind and the rain. He waved a lackadaisical claw in greeting.

"Well, I guess this is it. Who ever would have believed it?"

"Believed what?"

"Right there in the Speech. They're going to build it, all right. It's just a matter of time... morning, milord!... make the most of it while we can, eh? Yes, dreadful weather, indeed! Fit only for ducks, if you ask me!... now what was I saying?" he queried as the Judge disappeared into the dim recesses of the Judge's Hall.

"What ARE you talking about?"

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Dancing Booms in Britain

LONDON—There's likelihood of Mecca Dancing (not only Britain's but the world's biggest dance-hall outfit) moving in on Canada. Operators of 24 huge halls in this country, they more than merely have their eye on Canada. Eric Morley, one of their top executives, has just returned from a probing tour there.

I learned of this as a result of a letter from reader Stan Simpson with regard to my recent piece on TV's impact on "going out" entertainment.

"I am amazed," he writes, "that you didn't mention dancing, which not long ago I read outdrew soccer in its crowd appeal over there. Is dancing so strong in England that TV hasn't affected it and therefore it was left out of your article, or has dancing dwindled to the extent that it's no longer worth mentioning?"

Dancing still is a far bigger attraction than soccer. Average weekly attendance at soccer during the season is 750,000. Weekly turnout at the dance halls all the year around is 5,000,000.

"Why, the new court house, of course. That stucco box they're going to build up on Cathedral Hill. Change, change. Pushing us around. The old heave-ho. Up the hill we go, whether we like it or not, without so much as by-your-leave. Honestly, I don't know what's come over everyone!"

"First they start this sanitary landfill... a wicked waste... and now the axe has fallen good and proper! Look at me!" and he shrugged his wings in an effort to look like Charles Chaplin registering paths, "Look at me! Dispossessed! Evicted! Thrown out! Too old, I suppose. We must move with the times; even though none of the younger fellows are interested in court house work, some one has to keep the old flag flying. Mind you, it's not what it used to be..."

"We've been through all this before." "True, true. Now I suppose they're saying I'm getting garrulous in my old age. That's gratitude for you, there's respect for their elders! Well, I suppose it's the way of the world. Old Court House, old gull; worn out and useless, though we can still give good service. Even if Mad Youth over there doesn't think so!" and he waved a contemptuous wing in the general direction of James Bay.

"Never mind. I dare say you'll be asked to come along and see to the training of the birds up on the Hill when the time comes. Don't despair! Chin up! Keep a stiff upper bill! Never say die!"

"Birds up on the Hill! Faugh! A lot of Cathedral pigeons and sparrows! Coo coo coo, twitter twitter! Pah! What an atmosphere for a court of justice! Nothing could be made out of that lot; bunch of frivolous doves, strutting about looking for handouts and necking up in the eave-troughs! No, they asked for it, and let 'em have it, I say! Awwrrrk! They'll come to their senses one day, I suppose, when I'm dead and gone. Imagine the Assizes with a lot of billing and cooing going on outside! Oh, they'll rue the day, they'll rue the day!"

With which dark foreboding he rose to the alp and did a climbing turn into Chancery Lane.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Insurance

SIDNEY REVIEW—Fire insurance is only part of the picture in the constant fight against fire. In the rural areas where we have an efficient volunteer fire force at our disposal, we tend to become more aware of the need for such a force than are the majority of residents of an urban district.

On Salt Spring Island the picture is no different. For many years the only barrier between islanders and disaster or death has been the volunteer fire department. It has been supported by voluntary donations and by the work of the volunteers themselves. The men who fight the fires sacrifice many hours of recreation, devote hours to maintenance of equipment and training in its handling and then turn out at all hours of day or night to come to the rescue of neighbors.

It is a safe wager that islanders will gain if they reach the economic sanctuary of a fire district. No normal rate-payer will refrain from insuring his property. The establishment of a fire district is an insurance of his life and safety and those of his family.

Clings to Coal

COWICHAN LEADER—The federal government is failing to move with the times by using coal instead of oil to heat the new post office in Duncan.

In reduced cost of handling and greater cleanliness oil carries the day. Oil requires far less storage space.

If the government is clinging to coal to provide employment it should be reminded that oil also provides employment, to a growing extent.

W. F. Matthews, M.P. for this riding at Ottawa, might take up this fuel matter at this session. With the government majority being what it is, he, in common with scores of other Conservative M.P.'s, does not seem to be overburdened.

Pedestrians

PARKSVILLE QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS—Motorists are continually being reminded of the cautions required on the highway. But, if our observations are correct, and we submit they are, it is time for a check on the habits of pedestrians and bicycle riders in the district.

More serious offenders ignore safety rules of walking facing the traffic, wearing garments of a light color and carrying a lighted flashlight, or using crosswalks when crossing the highway.

Pedestrians would be well advised to observe the rules of highway walking, as they life they save may be their own.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A small but intense storm has developed on the Washington coast and is moving eastward just south of the B.C.-Washington border. Continuous rain on the south coast this morning will change to scattered showers this afternoon as the disturbance passes eastward.

Heavy snowfalls are expected for the southern interior today with a brief resurgence of colder air and scattered snowflurries Sunday in the wake of this storm. The northern half of the province will continue to get scattered showers along the coast and snowflurries at interior points as moist air continues to flow over the area.

DOING IT NOW

Building Face-Lift Boost for Workers

The 54-year-old Norris Building, at the southwest corner of Government and Johnson, is having its face lifted, and in so doing has lifted the faces of employees on the job who might otherwise be twiddling their workmanlike thumbs.

It's all part of Greater Victoria's "Do-It-Now" campaign which is gaining momentum. The Norris building, property of the Worthington family, is benefiting by a better-than-$3,000 refurbishing job by Farmer Construction that started in early December and will last another couple of weeks.

Workers on the project have included carpenters, laborers, plasterers, painters and bricklayers. The completed job will be of sand-finished stucco, adding a pleasant businesslike and modern eye to the busy intersection.

The "Do-It-Now" drive is under the stimulus of the federal labor department, its provincial counterpart, and is aided and abetted by industry and home builders to combat winter unemployment.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q.—What kind of oil do you use to condition an oilstone?—R.L.

A.—Soak in engine or other light oil. Wipe clean with a cloth after each use, and keep stone in a covered box.

Q.—We've replaced washers of faucets in our new house, and we still get "chattering" every time we use the cold water. Why?—M.B.

A.—Perhaps there is a long stretch of pipe that's unsupported. Fasten to studding at several points with metal straps.

When fir plywood sheathing is used on a house, the walls are six times more rigid than when horizontal sheathing is used and 40 per cent more rigid than when boards are applied diagonally to form the sheathing.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Crop Rotation Difficult In Small Vegetable Plot

By JACK BEASTALL

As a beginner at vegetable gardening you will have studied some books on the subject and gathered numerous helpful suggestions from other gardeners. Here are a few more, some of which may be worth adding to your collection. Most gardening books stress the importance of rotating the crops so that the same, or closely related plants are not grown in the same place year after year.

Behind this practice lies the knowledge that different crops take different minerals in varying amounts from the soil. Rotation, therefore, lessens the chance of soil depletion. The practice also prevents the building up of large colonies of soil pests, since the pests which thrive on one crop are starved out when another occupies the soil.

Another advantage to rotating the crops is realized when we remember that some vegetables must have a soil rich in plant foods and compost or manure, while others are ruined by such lavish living.

THREE-YEAR PLAN

So we add compost, manure, and plant food to one section for these crops needing rich soil. The next year we sow the same area to crops which prefer soil a little less rich, and the third year we use it for those which need nothing more than average soil and a boost with plant food during the season.

Thus, in accordance with most gardening books, we have a three-year rotation plan.

It is here the unsuspecting beginner can run into trouble, because the vegetable space has been divided into three sections and there is no space left for the perennial food crops.

Perennial crops in the small garden will include the rhubarb roots, the asparagus bed, quite often the strawberry bed and possibly a few cane, bramble and bush fruits. Horseradish, mint, and some cooking herbs are also permanent residents.

ROOM FOR PERENNIALS

Therefore, for your three-plot or three-year rotation plan, be sure to divide the new vegetable garden into four plots, otherwise the perennial plants will soon be invading the rotation plots and the whole scheme will collapse.

Some garden book authors stress rotation as a prevention to the spreading of club-root, that "malady" which causes all the cabbage family to produce distorted and swollen roots instead of luscious green tops.

In the confines of the average garden it is highly improbable that the rotation of crops will keep the disease to one area if it is once in the soil.

The slime-mould which is the cause of the trouble is carried all over the garden on the boots of the gardener, on tools, on wheelbarrow tires, and on power machinery. A contaminated rotary tiller can infect the garden of any neighbor to whom it has been graciously loaned. Don't use rotations in the belief the practice will eradicate club-root.

ONIONS SPOILED

It is important when planning a vegetable garden to group the vegetables according to their need for water during the summer months.

Last summer, warmer than usual, onions and potatoes were ready to be ripened-off when adjoining crops were in need of copious watering. Since the water that reached the onions caused them to start second growth, an otherwise perfect onion year has produced bulbs which are not keeping in storage.

In my experience a rotation plan is very difficult to follow in a small vegetable garden, since one row is about the limit of any one vegetable, and many short rows of related and unrelated plants have to be worked in wherever possible.

It seems to me more important that early maturing crops be well separated from those which will be in full production, or coming into production, so that one group may ripen in a dry soil while the other receives all the water it needs. In this way you are sure of having vegetables you love to eat both fresh and from winter storage.

Window Screens Require Care In Storage

Proper care of screens and storm windows will increase their life and ensure a snug and easy fit season after season. Warping and ill-fitting joints can develop from improper storage or continued exposure to the elements without repainting or waterproofing.

When not in use they should be stacked so that the weight is evenly distributed. If they are stood on edge a pair of wooden rails should be placed beneath them to keep the underside off the floor.

PREVENT SAG

To provide proper air circulation when stacked on their face side, the sash at the bottom of the pile should not come in contact with a moist surface. If rails are used in this case, they should be sufficient in number to prevent sagging at the centre of the pile.

The same precaution should be followed when storage racks suspended from the ceiling are used. When stored on their flat side at least three, and preferably four, rails should be installed for full length sashes to prevent sagging and warping. However, one rail at each end will be sufficient if a board is laid across the rails. Storm sash and screens should be repainted occasionally. If exposed to frequent weather variations, it is advisable to apply a protective coat every season.

QUIZZING the GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. I have an unheated greenhouse, and use it for storing pots of hydrangeas, fuchsias and the like. Quite often I notice the thermometer reads only about 35 degrees when I go in there of a morning, but it goes up to 65 or even 70 on sunny days. Will the plants be all right under such conditions?—F.T.S., Cadboro Bay.

A. Unless you place a special kind of registering thermometer known as a "maximum-minimum thermometer" in your greenhouse, you have no idea how low the temperature falls while you are not present. It is sure to be considerably lower just before dawn than you quote.

Wherever live plants are being stored, there should be a circulation of air, and I would advise you to ventilate the greenhouse on all mild, even sunless, days. The close heat of 70 deg. is likely to start your plants into growth which might be damaged later. On very cold nights you might place several thicknesses of newspaper or sacks around the pots and over the plants to keep off many degrees of frost. Hold off any pruning or watering until about late February unless you can exclude frost from the greenhouse before that date.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Tubers of gloxinia, tuberous begonia, achimenes (Cupid's Bower) and streptocarpus (Cape Primrose) which are being stored by the home gardener, should now be placed into dampened peat moss or sand and started into growth indoors.

Prune indoor plants of abutilon (Flowering Maple), plumbago (Cape Leadwort), fuchsia and lippia (Lemon Verbena). Give a little water and more warmth.

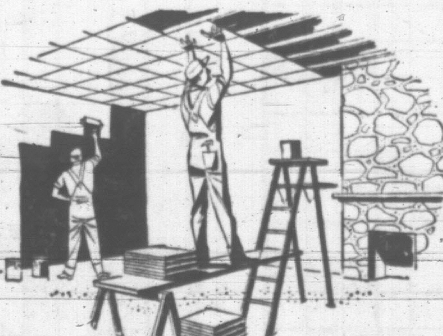

Bait around inside of cold frames for slugs if weather continues mild.

Sow a few early peas in pots or bands indoors for transplanting out later.

Sow seed indoors of melon, cucumber and tomato for greenhouse planing—not for outdoors.

Sow a few radish seed in a south-facing cold frame and plant the few early potatoes in same frame if weather mild.

Post-Party Furniture Marks Easily Remedied at Home

By MR. FIX

Don't panic; your home shop and the medicine cabinet together are probably stocked with all the materials you'll need to do a refinishing job on the marks left on furniture by Yuletide jollifications.

White rings left behind by wet glasses—either water or alcohol—can be cleared with several home remedies.

Some cigar or cigaret ashes from those dirty ash trays should be saved.

Mix with castor oil or light lubricating oil, into a paste. Rub the mixture over the stain, with the grain.

Olive oil and vinegar mixture is another home remedy for stubborn rings. Stronger cures would be rottenstone or pumice, but these may take off some of the finish if not used carefully.

Follow any such treatments by polishing and waxing.

Before treating scratched furniture surfaces, be certain of the type of finish you're treating. Use the proper solvent for that finish—turpentine for varnish, alcohol for shellac, lacquer thinner for lacquer.

The solvent, along with a steady hand and a fine brush, is used to treat hairline scratches. Very carefully go over the scratch so that the finish blends over it.

Larger scratches will have to be refinished with varnish, shellac or lacquer. Scratches in a dark surface such as mahogany can be disguised with a little iodine.

Others may require treatment with the proper stain.

Next, cover over with a paste wax.

Ordinary shoe polish has been used to good advantage in covering mars in a dark finish.

Always finish by polishing with a dry cloth and waxing. Deep scratches and burns are best treated with shellac sticks, available in most hardware stores. You can get a shade to match your furniture. Many come in kits with all the accessories you need.

Generally, the method used involves scraping some of damaged area with a razor blade, particularly burned spots. Clean with denatured alcohol. Melt the shellac stick with soldering iron or alcohol lamp—so that it drips into the area to be repaired. Use more than you need and level it off so that it's even with the surrounding surface.

A heated knife blade or spatula is used for leveling.

Finish by rubbing down with oil and rottenstone; polish and wax.

A heated object may leave only a milky white spot on varnish; if removed before it burns through the finish. Rub the spot with spirits of camphor to clear it up.

Carpeting is chosen for wearing quality as well as design. To add both appearance and life to the covering, make sure the floor is smooth; if not, cover it with fir plywood to make a new surface.

DOTTY DIAGRAM FOR JUNIORS

One day, Brother and Sister decided to draw pictures of objects often seen on the table. What did they draw? To see Brother's picture, at left, begin at dot 1 and draw connecting lines from dot to dot, up to 8. To observe Sister's drawing at right, begin at dot 1 and draw to 2, 3, 4, etc., up to 10. Afterwards, color the drawing neatly with colored pencils or crayons.

UPS AND DOWNS

M' lady's cat climbed up a tree, Which was sixty feet and three; Every day she climbed eleven, Every night she came down seven. Tell me, if she did not drop, When her paws would touch the top?

Solution: The cat would touch the top of the tree on the 11th day.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

By MILLARD HOPPER
White has his opponent set up for victory in four moves. It's White's turn moving up the board. See how quickly you can play out the game in the manner described.

REACH THE END OF YOUR ROPE?

In the midst of a meadow, well covered with grass, Just an acre was needed to tether an ass; How long was a line that reaching round, Restricted its grazing to an acre of ground?

Solution: The length of the rope was 100 feet. The area of the circle is 3,1416 square feet. The area of the square is 10,000 square feet. The difference is 6,858.4 square feet. The length of the rope is 100 feet.

PLANS INVOLVE GOING IN CIRCLES

Planning ahead on landscaping this year, Pete Moss's wife visualizes a circular flower bed in the middle of their circular lawn. Mrs. Moss wants the new garden to be exactly half the size of the lawn. But Pete and his wife cannot arrive at a simple geometrical device for halving the lawn as stated. Can you help them?

TAKING HER MEASURE

From her expression, it would seem the problem in hand has taken the measure of the young lady above. Perhaps you can help her.

Represented in rebus form on the paper she's holding is a common unit of measurement, one that's equally well known in a department store, a lumber yard or just around the house.

This young lady doodled the picture as a reminder to buy a certain special ribbon. How much ribbon did she have in mind?

LET'S COUNT SOME SHIFTY SHEEP

Lots of folks have to count sheep to woo sleep after holiday frivolity. If sheep jump over a fence at the rate of 10 in 10 minutes, how many would jump over in an hour? You have to count 'em one at a time to solve this.

LOT OF APPLESAUCE?

Tradition has it that an apple may be used to "tell a fortune" at New Year's. Apples are pared and the peeling, taken off in one spiral, is thrown over the left shoulder. 'Tis said that the peeling will form the initial of the person the parer will wed.

FIGURE IT OUT

What number multiplied by one-fifth of itself will produce five? Lou should answer in 30 seconds.

HOLD THE PHONETICS

Do people frequently request you to repeat something over the telephone? Don't assume it is because they are deaf. It may be that your enunciation is faulty. If you can repeat each of the following sentences rapidly three times without making a mistake your enunciation is in good working order: 1. The sun shines on the ship signs. 2. Round the rough and rugged rocks the ragged rascal ran. 3. Old oily Otto oils oily autos. 4. The old cold scold sold a schol coal scuttle.

SEE HIDDEN FRUITS?

The names of the two fruits which are concealed in each of the following sentences, are found by joining two or more words or parts of words. How quickly can you find them?

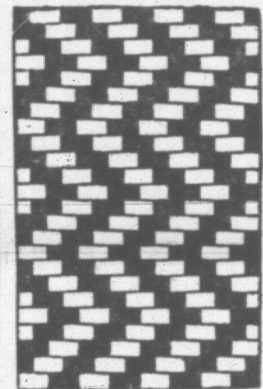

1. Flo rang earlier as there was a bargain sale Monday.
2. "Give me my cap, please," was Percy's polite request, as he appeared to be in a hurry to leave.

NATIONAL AIR ABOUT CHEESES?

While many famous cheese varieties are now produced outside their native lands, domestic associations remain indelible. How quickly can you connect cheese and nationality below?

Bob Hope Repeats Famed Moscow Show Sunday at 1 on C-4

Leonard Bernstein Discusses Jazz; New 'D.A.'s Man' Series Bows Sunday

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

Be thou a square or a rounder there should be something to suit your television taste this weekend.

One of the highlights, surely, will be Bob Hope's hour-long repeat Sunday afternoon at 1 on Channel 4 when he will be seen in his memorable Moscow visit, one of 1958's best TV shows. If you want a treat try not to miss this.

At 4:30 Sunday famed musician Leonard Bernstein is the spotlight again as he leads the New York Philharmonic for an hour in selections to prove that "Jazz Is Serious Business."

At 5 p.m. Channel 4, Kaleidoscope will tour a research center in an effort to show us what work on behalf of humanity is going on in the field of "The Wonderful Atom."

And at 6 Channel 4 will carry a press interview with Argentina president Arturo Frondizi. At the same time Channel 7's Small World will be studying the red hot Berlin situation.

At 7:30 also Sunday, Channel 4 will break forth with a new half-hour, weekly crime series entitled "The D.A.'s Man."

As for tonight, well, the shows are much the same as usual. I would remind those who are interested in such historic happenings, however, that at 10 p.m., Channels 6 and 2 will carry a film show of the Mic Mac Indians re-enacting the signing of a Peace Treaty on Halifax some 200 years ago.

Channel 5: Sea Hunt's Mike Nelson discovers some mangled remains of the "The Morning After" repeat. "The Morning After" repeat. "The Morning After" repeat.

New Customs Union Must Indies Told

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (CP)—Canadian and Trinidad businessmen have agreed following two days of discussion that formation of a customs union among countries of the West Indies Federation is one of two important prerequisites to better trade relations between the federation and Canada.

The other prerequisite is the relaxation of currency restrictions imposed by the United Kingdom on the sterling area after the Second World War.

The group of 37 Canadian businessmen today are to visit industrial plants, sugar and rice plantations and places of interest in the area.

Sunday they leave for British Guiana. The tour is to end Jan. 31.

At a general session Friday, C. Bruce Hill, of St. Catharines, Ont., said it will be easier to do business with the West Indies when members of the federation implement a customs union.

SEPARATE TARIFFS

Each member of the federation now applies its own tariff. Under a customs union the federation would apply a single tariff against goods coming from the outside.

A. C. Ashforth of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which is sponsoring the mission, and Robin Struthers, president of the Trinidad chamber, expressed confidence that the work of the committees will be reflected in future trade and relations between the two countries.

Heavy Construction Association of B.C. early today agreed on proposals for a two-year wage contract to be presented to their members.

A statement issued by the negotiators said the proposal is for a contract running from April 1, 1959, to March 31, 1961, to include a 24-cent increase in two stages in the present hourly wage rate of $2.68 for carpenters.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE

VANCOUVER—Jack Brett, 23, who posed as a doctor in a Vancouver hospital and helped deliver five babies, was given a suspended sentence on Friday after pleading guilty to passing a forged document. Brett allegedly forged the document to enter St. Paul's Hospital and pose as an intern between April 2 and April 23, 1958.

DRINKING DRIVER

POWELL RIVER—A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of accidental drowning in the death Jan. 14 of Charles Wilson, 35, whose car plunged off a highway into Powell Lake.

The jury said the mishap resulted from drinking and fast driving.

TAX EVADER FINED

WEST VANCOUVER—A former income tax department employee was fined $2,000 in court here Friday on six charges of income tax evasion. James C. Brown pleaded guilty.

He was accused of making false declarations on income tax returns.

PRISONER DIVORCED

VANCOUVER—A prisoner in B.C. Penitentiary obtained a divorce Friday from the wife he was accused of trying to kill 30 months ago.

A decree was granted by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan to Joseph Paul Gingras, serving 14 years for the attempted murder of Leona Lita Gingras. They were married Oct. 26, 1954, in Edmonton and have one daughter.

Gingras accused his wife of misconduct last Sept. 18 in a downtown hotel with Neil Collins of Vancouver. He told the judge that he could never go back to his wife, because of the events in May, 1956, which resulted in his conviction.

HIT-AND-RUN VICTIM

VANCOUVER—A man who died in hospital here three days after being found lying in an east end doorway was struck by a truck which failed to stop after the accident, a coroner's jury decided here Friday.

The jury ruled that George McLaughlin, 57, died of bronchial pneumonia brought on by injuries received when struck by the vehicle on Sunday.

McLaughlin told police he had been hit by a green truck that ignored a red traffic light. Police said McLaughlin told them the driver of the truck got out of the vehicle after the impact, helped him to the curb, then drove on.

Police have been unable to locate the vehicle.

Foreign Vehicles Entry Shows Drop

OTTAWA (CP)—Foreign vehicles entering Canada on travellers' permits in 1958 declined slightly in number compared with the previous year, the bureau of statistics has announced.

Entries in the year totalled 2,547,391, down from 2,555,074 in 1957. Declines were reported by all regions except New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia.

CITY COUNCIL NOTES

Victoria to Honor Local-Born Pianist

A civic award will be presented Robin Wood, a native son who achieved eminence as a pianist in Britain.

Aldermen voted Friday at a council meeting to recognize the pianist's achievements before he ends his visit here and instructed finance committee to arrange a suitable award.

Only opposition came from Ald. D. J. Proudfoot who said a letter would be sufficient recognition.

"We couldn't get a seat for his concert here so I think the city is getting all the public recognition he wants in the crowds that have turned out to hear him," he said.

RAMSAJ BACKS PLAN

Ald. Hugh Ramsay disputed his contention that the city could not afford to present awards to every native who achieved notice in the world.

"I think our town too often falls down in recognizing our citizens who have made great achievements," Ald. Ramsay said. "It would give encouragement to others."

Ironically, Mr. Wood was born and raised in Esquimalt.

A number of requests for permission to hold tag days this year were tabled by council which set a March 1 deadline for all requests to be sent in before it decides what policy will be set.

Two aldermen criticized inter-municipal committee for submitting a brief to the royal commission on education without consulting council.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. D. J. Proudfoot both said they

No 'Accessories' Available Here

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Edward R. Murrow, the distinguished radio and television newscaster, this week shattered a long-held illusion that newscaster, this week shat- tery of its product and not on accessories.

To prove his point, Mr. Murrow presented several accessories. They came in various forms, all female, and with more than adequate chest statistics.

Mr. Murrow revealed that his "witnesses" were employed by certain companies to persuade important customers to buy.

Some companies, he said, even have call girls on their public relations payrolls or else pay them on a regular monthly basis.

One girl told of making $25,000 per year, tax free. She argued that companies which employ the talents of well-constructed members of her sex claim the payments as a business expense.

Since year-end financial statements of Canadian companies reaching this desk give no breakdown of business expense, a survey was made in Victoria to see if similar practices are carried on here.

The results follow: Adolph Sittomylap, comptroller, Sittomylap Settees Corp.

"When our sales chart showed an alarming decrease, we gave considerable thought to revising our sales force. I even ran a classified ad for female sales personnel, stressing among other things that appearance was important.

The response? "Terrific," said Mr. Sittomylap. "I got more appearance than I could handle. There were dolls—er, young ladies, all over my office. Then... his voice trailed off.

Then, what?

"Well, I put three young ladies in the care of the sales- men. In two weeks sales fell off so badly we ran out of red ink. The only thing the sales- men were selling was them- selves. I never did find out if the girls could have improved business," he said sadly.

Next to be interviewed was Elmer Barberpole, of Trim, Sir:

"Did I ever hire girls? Did I? You should ask such a question," he said. "A few years ago, shaggy-haired cus- tomers began by-passing my parlor like the plague. A change in policy was indicated.

SIDELINE SLANTS BY Doug Peden

Edmonton Flyers are in town for tonight's Western Hockey League game against our Cougars and this particular visit by Bud Poile's crew should send thoughts flitting backwards.

Just 12 months, take away a day, ago—it was Saturday, January 25, to be exact—the Flyers were also at Memorial Arena. And on that occasion the place was really jumping.

It was packed to the rafters with 5,433 cheering and jeering fans. The reason for the biggest hockey crowd ever tucked away under that barrel roof was, of course, Colin Kilburn, the stormy fan-favorite who had been ousted as general manager of the Cougars two weeks earlier and then traded to the Flyers for the balance of the season in exchange for Tom McCarthy and Dennis Olson.

Dismissal of Kilburn, who had turned over the coaching reins to Pat Egan early in November after starting his second season in the dual role of manager-coach, touched off the hottest hockey hassle ever seen in these parts.

The rhubarb was still boiling when Colin came back with the Flyers. Almost half the hockey buffs at the arena that night thought the guy who had spent five seasons with the Cats and had played a major part in keeping a WHL franchise in Victoria had received a raw deal. Just about an equal number figured the club's record under Kilburn and the unhappy results of his player deals justified the move. Others didn't give a hoot for the pros and cons. They turned up because they thought there might be some fireworks.

There were some interesting shenanigans on the sidelines, but most of the drama was on the ice. And it developed into a happy night for Kilburn. He scored the first goal and assisted on the final tally, scored into an open net in the final minute by Tony Leswick, as the Flyers wrapped up a 3-3 verdict.

It is only history now. Time has done its usual erasing job and most of the bitterness stirred up by the Kilburn incident has vanished. Colin is doing a bang-up job for Springfield Indians and the Cougars are dead serious about the business of nailing down a playoff spot in the WHL's Coast Division.

Cats Were Far From Playoff Spot

But memories of that visit by the Flyers a year ago prompted a little digging in the records to sort out what had happened to the Cougars since they became a community-owned club going into the 1957-58 season.

In the 39 games they played last season before Kilburn was dismissed as manager on Jan. 12, the Cats won nine games, lost 29 and tied one. That gave them a total of 19 points, which left them 20 points behind Seattle, the club they had to catch to earn a playoff berth, and 32 points behind the front-running Vancouver Canucks.

With Egan as manager-coach, they collected another 19 points in their remaining 31 games, finishing 32 points away from Seattle.

On Jan. 12 of this year, the Cougars had also played 39 games. This time they had a total of 35 points, from 16 victories and three ties. They were in third place, two points behind Vancouver and seven away from the leading Seattle Totems.

Since then the Cats have slipped into fourth place, which will be good enough to qualify for playoffs, since Spokane's entry has boosted the Coast Division to five clubs. But going into tonight's game they are only one point behind the Spokes and 10 away from first place.

Figures Offer Some Solid Evidence

How about their records at the box office? In their first 15 home games last season, 42,112 customers paid $51,374.23 to watch the Cougars. In the same number of games this season, the Cats lured a slightly smaller number of fans into the arena—40,529—but their receipts were slightly higher—$52,348.60.

Operating on a more economical budget this time around, they were close to the average of 2,600 fans per game that they will need to break even.

Since then, they have played two of the three home games added to the Victoria schedule when the Coast Division decided to revert to a 70-game season. Those two tussles drew a total of only 3,000 customers and in the three January games on the original schedule, only one—against Seattle last Saturday—topped the 2,600 mark, which has dropped the Cougars behind last season's box office pace.

The figures offer pretty solid evidence that the Cats of this season are stronger than the 1957-58 edition. But although they are a contending, and often exciting, club, they are now trailing at the turnstiles.

What the financial story will be at the end of the season remains to be seen, but the Cats still have at least a chance of finishing on an even keel.

Most WHL fans remember Colin Kilburn as a veteran campaigner of eight professional seasons. Yet, don't laugh, he is in the running for the American Hockey League's rookie-of-the-year award at 31 years young.

Colin, who collected 18 goals and 22 assists in his first 40 games with Springfield, is eligible for the award because he has never played in the National Hockey League and is in his first AHL campaign.

Americans Gain Ground In AHL Race

By The Associated Press

The ever-changing battle for the American Hockey League playoffs today found Rochester Americans in fourth place.

In the league's only game Friday night, the Americans beat the pace-setting Buffalo Bisons, 4-1, to go a point ahead of Springfield Indians and two in front of Providence Reds in the three-team battle for the fourth and final playoff spot.

Buffalo, Cleveland and Hershey Bears are far ahead, locked in another three-team struggle for the first three places.

After a scoreless first period, Buffalo moved in front in the second on Dick Gamble's goal. Rookie Bill Hicke tied the score with Bisons two men short. Dave Creighton put the Americans in front, again while the league leaders had two men in the penalty box.

Rudy Migay scored two insurance goals in the final period.

WEATHERMAN DISRUPTS CITY SOCCER ACTIVITY

The weather was declared the only winner in the Victoria and District Football League today when the scheduled Royal Athletic Park contest between Esquimalt and Butler Brothers was postponed because of wet grounds.

The weatherman also forced a change in Sunday's program with Canadian Scottish meeting Kickers at Beacon Hill Park instead of at Heywood Avenue. Gorge Hotel will play Brodies at Topaz Park.

All games start at 2 p.m.

IN BATHGATE'S SHADOW

Handy Heberton Enjoying Finest Year

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Working quietly in the shadow of a high-scoring club-mate, Andy Heberton of the New York Rangers is headed towards his best season in the National Hockey League.

Playing at the same position as Andy Bathgate, the round-faced blond right wing doesn't rate much excitement from the fans, but to coach Phil Watson he's one of the most valuable men on the club.

"I can use him anywhere," Watson says. "On the power play, or if we're a man short or if I think one of the other wings is slowing down and needs a rest. Heberton's always ready to climb onto the ice."

NOT A BRAWLER

Heberton, a 25-year-old Winnipeg native who broke into the NHL with the Rangers last season, has a total of six minutes in penalties this season and ended up well in the mid-season voting for the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy this year.

Flyers Will Try Luck Against Cats Tonight

Edmonton Still Winless On Coast Division Tour

Still looking for the first victory of their current tour through the Coast Division of the Western Hockey League, Edmonton Flyers will move into Memorial Arena tonight to try their luck against Victoria Cougars.

Luck was running against the Flyers as they dropped their fourth straight game Friday night, a 2-1 decision to Vancouver Canucks, and skidded four points behind pace-setting Calgary in the Prairie Division race.

Trailing, 1-0, after Ron Hutchinson's first-period goal, the Flyers dropped two goals behind late in the second session when defenceman Wally Chevrier fired a shot between two players that goalie Ed Johnston never saw until the puck hit the net.

Veteran Hugh Coffin got one goal back less than a minute later and the Flyers did everything but tie the score after coach Tony Leswick lifted Johnston for an extra attacker in the final minute.

On their closest miss, the puck hit a goal post with Vancouver netminder Bruce Gamble out of position and Gamble scrambled back just in time to block another shot with only six seconds remaining.

Victory lifted the second-place Canucks four points ahead of the Cougars and three in front of Spokane in the Coast Division chase.

Seattle Totems maintained their six-point margin over Vancouver by beating Saskatoon, 6-1, and the surging Calgary Stampede skated to a 3-1 triumph at Winnipeg in Friday night's other WHL games.

Rudy Filion's three goals sparked the Seattle win. But his starry performance drew less reaction from the 4,397 fans than did two fights.

Eddie's Streak Reaches 18 Games

Both fights broke out in the final minutes of the contest, one of them when a fan spat towards Quaker Bob Kabel. Kabel chased the fan under the stands and lost him in the crowd. The second fight involved four players.

Totem scorers, apart from Filion, were Marc Boileau, Bill McFarland and Jim Powers. Merv Kurlyuk was the sole Saskatoon scorer.

A crowd of 4,125 fans watched Stampede dominate the play except for spots in the last period when erratic shooting cost Warriors several good chances. Warriors managed only seven shots on goalie Roy Edwards in the last 20 minutes but missed as many more.

It was Calgary's 12th straight win, setting a new league record for consecutive victories.

Bill Hay, Lou Jankowski and Ed Dorohoy scored for Calgary. Barrie Ross accounted for the lone Winnipeg goal.

Stampede were short-handed when Hay broke away from behind his side of centre ice at 33 seconds of the second period. He outraced defenceman Bill Polk and beat Rollins with a waist-high shot.

Dorohoy scored the prettiest goal of the night on a neat passing play inside the Winnipeg blue line while Warriors were short-handed.

Dorohoy has now scored one or more points in 18 consecutive games, five short of the record set this year by Barrie Ross of the Warriors.

'SO VERY PROUD'

Mike Didn't Want To Take Back Seat

LONDON (AP) — Mike Hawthorn, world automobile racing champion, may have crashed to his death because he hated trailing German cars.

Hawthorn died in his souped-up Jaguar sedan Friday moments after he had passed an old friend, Bob Walker, at the wheel of a German Mercedes Benz.

One witness said Friday that Hawthorn's car had been going about 100 miles an hour on a straight four-lane highway when it skidded, hit a truck, bounded over the curb and knocked down a tree.

FIRST ON HAND

Walker, a former race driver, was the first person to reach Hawthorn's car after the crash.

"I knew Mike disliked German cars," Walker said Friday. "Everybody knew. He liked nothing better than to beat them. He was so very proud of British racing cars."

"Could Mike have deliberately spurted past me to show off his Jaguar? I really don't know."

Walker emphatically denied that he and Hawthorn were racing.

Giant Slalom Now Key Race In Title Bid

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland (CP)—Anne Heggtveit of Ottawa, who won for Canada in Friday's slalom event of the international white ribbon ski tournament, fell back to fourth place today in the downhill but still retained a commanding position for the combined title.

Today's winner of the 3,350-metre downhill run was Hanselore Basler of Germany, who was not in Friday's top five. Sonja Sperl, also of Germany, was second today after placing fifth in the slalom.

FINAL SUNDAY

Miss Heggtveit made the run in a time of one minute, 59.4 seconds compared with 1:57.0 for the winner and 1:57.4 for Miss Sperl. Marit Haraldsen of Norway, also out of the top placing in the slalom, was third today with 1:57.6.

The giant slalom scheduled for Sunday will wind up the white ribbon competition. If the Canadian skier makes it in the top three she could well walk off with the combined honors based on the average showing in the three races.

RETURN MATCH TONIGHT

A's Tempo Hot In Hoop Warmup

Albion Athletics splashed their points around liberally Friday night in Albion, to dump Victoria College's senior A Vikings basketball team, 70-55, in exhibition action.

The teams, preparing for the Vancouver Island finals, meet in a return match tonight at 9 at the Central Junior High School gym. A preliminary between the Viking Juniors and Navy opens the double-header at 7:30.

With three of their players in Chile with Canada's world tournament representatives, Albion were paced by Don Hill with 14 points, coach Elmer Speidel and Denny Grisdale, each with 12.

Bob Tomlinson, who scored 14 of his 19 points in the second half, sparked Victoria. Vikings trailed at the half, 32-22.

Albion—Larson 8, Hill 14, Pedersen 7, Samarin 6, Gailoux 4, Williams 4, Grisdale 12, Speidel 12, Total—70.

Vikings—Tomlinson 19, W. Bellings 9, McCulloch 12, D. Bellings 7, Solstice Wilson 2, Flynn 5, Fieldwalker 4, Total—55.

Vics Finally Solve Passing Problems

Tournament prospects appeared bright for the Victoria High School Totems after a 60-49 triumph at Vic High Friday night over last year's B.C. basketball champions, Lord Byng High of Vancouver.

During the fast-moving game, in which Totems were ahead by three points at the end of the first quarter and the Grey Ghosts were leading by two at half time, it was evident that the Totems had finally managed to get rolling in high gear.

Earlier in the season the Totems were having trouble coordinating their passing plays. But all this disappeared Friday as their ball-handing was almost faultless.

BLACK SETS PACE

Showing his skill with a long push shot, Dave Black led the Vic High snipers with 14 points, closely followed by Dave Nelson with 12. Larry Robson, the shortest man on the Lord Byng squad, topped their snipers with 13.

The Vics' fortunes were not all good Friday night as the Totems' captain, Tommy Wyatt, was sidelined early in the third quarter with a three-stitch cut under his left eye.

Next Friday Lord Byng will have a chance to even the score, when they host the Totems at Vancouver.

In a second game at Vic High Friday, First United trounced the Vic High junior squad, 34-24, with a third of the Vics points coming from foul shots.

Monte Carlo Run Taken by French

MONTÉ CARLO (AP) — A veteran French team of Paul Cottelloni and Pierre Alexandre, driving a Citroen, won the over-all trophy in the 28th Monte Carlo auto rally today.

They finished the long, exacting test with the low total of 308 penalty points.

The women's trophy went to a British pair, Pat Moss and Ann Wisdom in an Austin. Miss Moss, sister of racing driver Stirling Moss, and Miss Wisdom placed 19th in the over-all standings.

Overflow Entry For Tenpin Event

By GRAHAM COX

It probably could be blamed on the weather (and most things will be), but five and tenpin scores this week are not what might be expected with a city championship coming up.

Biggest news of the week came out of Esquimalt and Capital City houses where a pair of new records were chalked up in fivepin action.

Roy Harris took the honor at Capital City with a new season's high of 942 with singles of 320 and 341.

At Esquimalt the Island Tug five rolled what is believed to be a new all-time city scratch game record.

With Bill Plater bowling 318, Alex Pyipa 355, Harry Young 356, Fred Freethy 258 and the team's high average man, Fred Worsley, 186, the Tugmen fired a 1453 to set a house record and set the year's high.

Records are scant on the subject, but it is expected that the new game is also a city record.

Pyipa topped the Esquimalt bowlers for the week with his three-game 859 (327, 304) score ahead of Jack Framp-ton, 851 (320), Geoff Worrall 801, Jack Ready 793, Young 790 (356) and Frank Morgan 758.

Behind Harris at Cap City were ranked Cy Wallis 864, 754, Ron Cuth 821, Reg Waggoner 846, 809, Sam Smitherman 750, Jack Mattice 803, Des Nex 794 and J. Weir 799.

The next major event at Capital City, other than their weekly "championship" series Saturday, will be the annual Civil Service League tournament for the Mayhew Trophy Saturday, Feb. 7.

More than 50 teams are expected to roll in the event with shifts scheduled for 9 a.m., noon, 3, 6 and 9 p.m.

An overflow has already been recorded for the team events of the City Tenpin Championships.

Princess Mary will be defending their title and have picked five keglers for the honor. They will be Elmer Oytis, Alex McKeachie, Roy Okell, John Pickburn and Bill Prior. The extra shift has been slated for 10.30 a.m. Saturday.

The way entries are rolling in for the doubles and singles event the following Sunday, it appears as though an extra shift may have to be added there also.

The top-tenpin role of the week came at Gibson's Bowldrome where Bill Coates fired a 618 (211, 202, 205) in the Commercial League and Nick Howard played a 616 (205, 244) in the Senior League.

Coates led Danny Lore 552 (208), R. Barnes 553, J. Mills 556 (237), Howie Hazzard 596 (220), M. Kozack 587 (201) and H. Bryan 571 (220).

Behind Howard were Chuck Bennett 563, Jack Lim 556, Richard Lou 551 (225), Bill Oakley 572 (221), Len Murrant 550, Wilbur Webb 583 (200, 202), Molly Mapes 561, Ron Wilson 559, Roy Okell 554, John Pickburn 553.

In the Sunday Tenpin League, Fred Billborough scored 594 (229) while Lorna Pollock packed the Mixed Leagues with a 545 (204) series.

Bud Marty topped the Strathcona tenpinners with a 601 (224, 203) series ahead of Jack Fletcher 566 (214) and John Elves 559.

Harry Cool led Gibson's fivepinners with 782 in the Commercial League ahead of Wes Vogler 777 (324), Reg Waggoner 764 and Muzz Smellie 758. In the Financial League, C. St. Denis had 753, H. Cowan 751 and Roy Bridger 750.

Martin Quartet Trips Touted Nanaimo Rink

NANAIMO (Special)—Flora Martin's Victoria Curling Club rink tripped the highly-rated Nanaimo quartet, skipped by Pat Good, Friday on the opening day of the seventh annual Nanaimo Ladies' Curling Club mixed bonspiel.

With Betty Hodgson performing in outstanding fashion at lead, the Martin foursome romped to a 14-5 victory.

Elsie Paul guided her Port Alberni rink to a comeback, 9-8 triumph over L. Hill of Richmond in one of the day's most exciting games.

Down six after eight ends, the Alberni squad tied it up with four on the ninth end on two-on-the-10th-then took the decision on skip Paul's sensational last-rock shot.

Ida Coates, skipping a Parksville rink playing together for the fifth year, won her own game with her last rock, defeating the Judy Morgan rink of Alberni, 10-9.

The bonspiel which attracted an entry of 36 rinks, will wind up Sunday night.

Complete results of the first three draws:

4 p.m. draw—S. Koster, Nanaimo, 9, M. Whitaker, Vancouver, 6; E. Paul, Port Alberni, 9, Lorraine Hill, Vancouver, 5; L. Coates, Parksville, 10, Judy Morgan, Port Alberni, 9; M. Fuller, Nanaimo, 10, M. Duncan, Vancouver, 9; A. Malpas, Nanaimo, 7, D. Gascard, Nanaimo, 6.

4:45 p.m. draw—G. Smith, Nanaimo, 10, H. Lindsay, Nanaimo, 2; I. Schroth, Nanaimo, 9, E. Hornby, Vancouver, 6; D. Fies, Nanaimo, 9, M. Olmstead, Port Alberni, 6; E. Quinney, Nanaimo, 12, Ames, Thien, Wellington, 2.

9 p.m. draw—P. Martin, Victoria, 14, P. Good, Nanaimo, 5; N. Sutherland, Nanaimo, 9, K. Wright, Nanaimo, 9; Heddie, Nanaimo, 8, E. Stephenson, Nanaimo, 4; M. Hon, Nanaimo, 10, E. Southern, Port Alberni, 7; M. Swanson, Nanaimo, 10, P. Doroway, Port Alberni, 5.

Marlene Steps Into Semifinals

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Stars of former years opposed the current co-medalists today in semifinal of the Helen Lee Doherty amateur golf tournament for women.

Joanne Goodwin, 1956 winner, was matched with Barbara McIntire. The other rivals were Marlene Stewart, Street of Toronto, 1958 runner-up, and Marge Burns of Greensboro, N.C.

Miss Goodwin, defeating Betty Kerby of Akron, Ohio, 3 and 2, turned in one of the most spectacular shots of quarter-final play in which a pelted-rain was an all-day handicap. She canned a 50-foot putt for a birdie on the 12th hole.

Mrs. Streit defeated Mrs. William Hartson of Piedmont, Calif. one up. Their match tightened after Mrs. Hartson eagled the 10th hole with a 25-foot putt and won the 11th to take a temporary lead.

Queen to Attend Top Turf Classic

OTTAWA (CP)—Queen Elizabeth will attend the 1959 running of the Queen's Plate June 30 at the New Woodbine race track during her visit to Toronto, it was announced Friday.

This year's running of the major Canadian turf event will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the race established by the Queen's grandmother, Queen Victoria, in 1859.

A feature of this year's race will be the presentation by the Queen of 50 guineas to the winning owner, a custom instituted by Queen Victoria.

The Queen will be the second sovereign to watch the turf classic.

King George VI, the Queen's father, watched Archworth win in 1939 during his royal visit to Canada that year with Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother.

The race is the oldest annually-held racing event in North America. This year it will have a record purse of $70,000.

BACKSWING higher than this one demonstrated by Hank Lauman is difficult to control and should be avoided. Ball should arrive at top of swing by own momentum.

PIN POINTS . . . NO. 11

Don't Let Backswing Go Above Shoulders

This is the 11th of an instructional bowling series written for NEA Service and The Daily Times by Joplin champions.

By HANK LAUMAN, Match Game Champion
With the completion of the third step, the ball should be at the top of the backswing, arriving there by its own momentum.

The backswing should be no higher, preferably lower, than shoulder level.

An exaggerated backswing, usually caused by pushing the ball away from the body too violently in the first step, results in a ball that is very difficult to control.

In this case the bowler usually reaches the foul line on his fourth step with the ball well back of his left knee so that the ball must be forced through to the release point by sheer muscle power, and it cannot be directed properly. Either hold the ball in a lower starting position or employ a shorter push-away to correct this fault.

Although it is a less common error, too short a backswing also can prevent a good delivery. This makes it impossible to swing the ball forward with any speed and in most cases the ball will be "dumped" short of the foul line.

Tennis Clubs Rapped For Harboring Pros

SYDNEY (AP)—Two country tennis associations were temporarily suspended this week by the New South Wales Lawn Tennis Association for staging exhibitions by the Jack Kramer professional troupe.

The associations, Narrandera and Wagga, have been suspended until they appear before next month's meeting of the New South Wales tennis council.

Port Vale Clicks

LONDON (Reuters)—Port Vale defeated Walsall 2-1 Friday night in a Fourth Division English League soccer match. It was the only league game played Friday in Britain.

High School Curling Stalled by Weather

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Bad flying weather in central B.C. and on the coast held up entrants Friday in the provincial high school curling playoffs and apparently forced postponement of most matches for a day.

Some entrants in the provincial final had not arrived here late Friday.

A spokesman for airline operators of a chartered aircraft said the flight was due here tonight.

All events scheduled for visiting teams were advanced 24 hours.

Prince George, 1958 B.C. high school champions, Friday won the regional title in playoffs against Kitimat by a 12-4 score in the second meeting.

Last-Second Shot Saves Americans

SANTIAGO, Chile (CP)—The United States had to score a field goal in the late seconds Friday night to defeat underdog Puerto Rico, 54-53, in the world amateur basketball championships.

In the words of U.S. coach Charles Bennett the Americans "didn't hustle, played lousy and were lucky to win."

The Puerto Ricans threw a scare into the U.S. by taking a 32-25 lead at half time but faltered late in the game. They were paced by former Kansas State player Juan Vicens who scored 19 points.

In the only other tournament game, Brazil won its second straight engagement by beating Bulgaria, 62-53, with a scoring spurge in the last 10 minutes.

The U.S., Brazil and Chile are unbeaten in two games in the round-robin finals. Russia has won its only contest.

In a consolation round game in Valparaiso, Canada lost, 79-65, to the Philippines after leading 33-31 at half time.

Russia plays Brazil tonight. Bulgaria, winless in two starts, plays Chile.

No games are scheduled Sunday. The U.S. is back in action Monday against Nationalist China which has two defeats.

Bryant Back in Fold

MONTREAL (CP)—Clay Bryant, manager of Montreal's pennant-winning Royals last season, has signed a new one-year contract to pilot the International League baseball club.

Anderson's Prolific Sniping Sparks Caps

Senators provided Capitals another rung on the ladder to the bantam division title in the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association Friday, dropping a 5-2 decision at Memorial Arena.

One of the major reasons for the Senator defeat was Wayne Anderson, who fired three goals.

Anderson is the league's leading scorer with 22 goals. Teammate Dave Woodley scored once Friday to boost his goal production total to 19. Caps' other goal Friday was scored by Tom Skinner.

Losers' goals came from Hans Isdahl and Bob Sutherland.

Trimble Going To Green Bay?

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Journal sports editor predicts Jim Trimble will be the next coach and general manager of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League.

Trimble coaches Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four. In three seasons his team took two divisional titles and in 1957 won the Grey Cup.

Before going to Hamilton, Trimble coached the NFL Philadelphia Eagles for three seasons.

Olmedo, Fraser Finalists

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Alex Olmedo of the United States pulled out a five-set victory over his U.S. Davis Cup teammate, Barry McKay, today and moved within a single step of the Australian national championship.

Playing with a strained stomach muscle which forced him to serve at never more than three-quarter pace, the 22-year-old University of Southern California student trimmed McKay-36, 86, 6-1, 36, 6-3.

The triumph put Olmedo into the final Monday against Fraser, who beat Bob Mark of Australia 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

South Africa's Renee Schurman and Sandra Reynolds won the women's doubles championship, beating Mary Reitano and Lorraine Coghlan of Australia 7-5, 6-4.

300 NAMES TO BE PICKED FOR MARCH ASSIZES

Sheriff's Going to Play 'Jury Bingo'

By DAVID COWLISHAW

Sheriff Eric Wilkinson will take a piece of paper out of a box in a Courthouse office next Monday morning, and read off a number.

Then he'll do it again—and over again for the next several minutes. But he won't be playing bingo. Watched by two justices of the peace and helped by Registrar John Abel, he'll be picking a jury for Assize Court duty beginning March 10.

They call this ritual "balloting". There are 300 names to be picked from, selected at random from the provincial voters' lists. Of this 300, some 20 to 40 usually are women.

"But it's not often we have a woman on a jury," Mr. Wilkinson said. "Jury duty is usually more inconvenient for women than for men, and women have the right to refuse jury duty if they let us know within 15 days of being notified."

Between 24 and 48 names are balloted from the 300, but not all of them will necessarily serve.

SOME ARE EXEMPT

Some people are automatically exempt from jury duty, others such as men running one-man businesses may be excused for financial reasons. Among those categories exempt are:

Persons under 21 and over 65, members of the provincial legislature, civil servants (federal and provincial), officers of the armed forces, policemen, doctors, dentists, newspaper editors, reporters and printers (but not photographers), clergy, lawyers, school teachers and staffs, practitioners of Christian Science, airline pilots and seamen, telegraph operators and bank staffs.

Disqualified from serving as jurors are the infirm, deaf, blind, and persons convicted of indictable offences without pardon; also, all aliens.

The eligible ones will receive $6 a day for every day they attend court. Jurors serving in cases of capital offence, such as murder and treason, will be "confined" to a hotel during the trial and not permitted to communicate with anyone.

All newscasts and television news programs concerned with the trial will be barred to capital offence jurors, and newspapers will be clipped of news stories on the trial before the jurors can read them. Jurors who do not appear for duty can be heavily fined, but this is rare in B.C.

Some assize sittings can be costly—the one that ended in December was unusually long and cost $5,000; the average runs to between $1,100 and $2,500.

Jurors are paid by cheque after the assize sitting has ended. Men who are employees and not employers usually receive full pay while on jury duty, but there is no law that stipulates firms must maintain an employee's pay while he is on a jury.

Sometimes a man loses his job or a large sum of money because he was called for jury duty, but this does not happen very often.

HOTEL BILL PAID

Jurors who live more than three miles from the courthouse also receive travelling expenses and may stay at a hotel at the court's expense, even in non-capital offence cases.

The daily jury pay of $6 has long been considered too small, and Sheriff Wilkinson himself believes $10 would be more adequate. In some especially long cases, such as the Sommers-Gray bribery conspiracy case that ran for 82 days in Vancouver, the jury may receive a special bonus.

But, as Assize Court judge Mr. Justice J. G. Rutten recently pointed out, a juror's reward is not a financial one. "Your reward," he said, "is the knowledge that you have done your duty as responsible citizens. This is justice at work—the justice of the people, by the people."

City Considers Extension Of Blanshard

City council's public works committee will study a Saanich proposal for the extension of Blanshard Street to Patricia Bay highway.

The extension would create a second arterial highway to and from the city.

Council Friday referred Saanich's request for co-ordination of planning on the project to the committee.

The Saanich letter said:

"It is understood that the capital region plan, about to be released, proposed the creation of an arterial highway along the route of Blanshard Street and its extension along the former V&S railway."

The Victoria and Sidney Railway ceased operating almost 40 years ago.

Extension of Blanshard along the railway route would run the street almost in a direct line from its Hillside terminal to the Patricia Bay Highway.

The CRPB has shown its plan for the Greater Victoria region's development to most of the municipal councils behind closed doors. Completed last summer, it took more than three years to prepare and was to have been released some time ago.

The Saanich letter asked city council to join in preliminary planning for the project by controlling development of land along the proposed route "to prevent... the proposed route from becoming encumbered."

Slum Clearance Studied by City

By JOHN MIKA

City council is exploring the possibility of slum clearance and development of blighted areas.

The secret investigation was revealed by a letter to council Friday indicating a Vancouver firm of consultants had been approached to carry out a survey of two unidentified areas—believed to be Chinatown and James Bay.

The letter, outlining terms of reference for the survey and suggesting council application to the federal government to share the $41,500 cost, was only partially read in council before being received and filed.

But Ald. M. H. Mooney said that council last week at a closed meeting with the Capital Region Planning Board had been assured that body could carry out the survey for less money.

David D. Sharp, of the Vancouver firm of J. B. Ward and Associates Ltd., wrote:

"In discussing with you last week the application of the City of Victoria for an urban renewal study for the purpose of redevelopment, I said that I would set out the procedure for your convenience."

CHANGED SUBJECT

At this point Mayor Percy Scurrell interjected that the rest of the letter need not be read and council switched to other business quickly.

Mr. Sharp's letter, in drafting terms of reference for a federal-city survey under the National Housing Act, said: "These older sections of the city are sub-standard, some are slum areas now, other sections are very indicative of blight conditions."

"An urban redevelopment plan is, without doubt, indicated if the capital city of B.C. is to regain its charm and beauty and not deteriorate in its component parts."

TWO AREAS IN MIND

"There are two areas specifically now known to require immediate attention. These two areas are commercial and residential."

The letter did not identify the two areas and said their exact boundaries would have to be established by a survey. It pointed out that under NHA, the federal government would share up to 75 per cent of the cost of the survey but provincial government approval was required.

The city's share of the cost would have been $10,375.

Mr. Sharp also pointed out that the survey would not bind the city to carry out a redevelopment program.

But if it did, the federal government would share the cost up to 50 per cent.

Ex-Plumbing Inspector Dies Aged 77

Resident of Victoria for 55 years and former city plumbing inspector, John Archibald Birnie, 2596 Empire, died in hospital here early today. He was 77.

Born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, he was associated for years with the plumbing firm of W. R. Menzies before employment by the city. He retired 12 years ago and since then has been associated with his son, G. H. Birnie Ltd., plumbing contractors.

Survivors include the widow, Mabel; the son, George, and a daughter, Mrs. A. O. Underbakke, both of Victoria.

Funeral will be at McCall's chapel Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., with Rev. A. I. Higgins officiating. Burial will be in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

MORE LIQUOR LAPPED BUT PROFITS GO FLAT

For the first time since the end of the Second World War, British Columbia's liquor profits fell off during 1958.

Sales were up slightly during the six-month business ended Sept. 30, 1958, but both gross and net profits were down by comparison with the 1957 figures.

This is revealed in a report tabled by Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the Legislature.

Sales from March 31 to Sept. 30 last totalled $46,900,000, up $787,800 over the same period in 1957.

But gross profits for the six months last year were $14,691,000 (down $14,400), with net profit $12,451,500 (down $80,550).

CAMPAGNING STARTED TODAY to prevent Victoria's Public Market on Fisgard from being torn down to make way for a parking lot. A petition was circulated calling for the preservation of the 44-year-old institution. It will be submitted to city council. Shown here is a shopper signing the petition at the stall of Jack Peddle, 3955 Blenkinsop, a 38-year tenant.

TCA Turbo-Jets May Ply 'Triangle'

Trans-Canada Air Lines may replace 28-passenger DC3 aircraft on the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle service with 48-passenger turbo-jet Viscounts, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the transition could be done by next year. It would be part of TCA's proposed plan to replace all piston-engined aircraft such as DC-3's and the four-engine North Stars with turbo-jets and pure jets by 1961.

The company's conversion plans were revealed as opposition mounted to Pacific Western Airlines' application to the Air Transport Board to take over the TCA's triangle service licence.

First reaction to the PWA application indicated that several Victoria groups will submit briefs to the ATB, calling for PWA to show it can equal TCA's passenger service and leave air freight rates untouched. Alternatively, the briefs will call for TCA to continue the service.

There has been no indication of when the ATB will consider the application. Even without a public inquiry, it could be some time before the application is resolved since the ATB probes all factors independently.

JETS ON ORDER

Present TCA plans call for augmenting its fleet of Viscounts and Super Constellations and it has ordered DC-8 aircraft, pure jets similar to Boeing's giant 707's.

If Viscounts were used on the triangle run, their seating capacity would probably be increased, the spokesman said. In service on TCA's transcontinental routes, Viscounts provide first class accommodation for 48 passengers. More seats can be added for local service such as the three-point run.

The company's DC3 fleet has been steadily reduced from 27 to nine planes. In addition to the triangle run, they ply prairie feeder lines.

FULL INQUIRY URGED

The TCA announcement came as city council agreed to call on the Air Transport Board for a full public inquiry before allowing Pacific Western Airlines to take over the triangle service.

Council plans to submit a brief to the ATB on the proposed change.

Sidney village council voiced its opposition to the carrier change on Friday.

Dr. C. H. Hemmings, council chairman, said it "would seem to be a business manoeuvre and would not be any improvement on the present service... and (one) which many feel would be a retrogressive step."

Largely overlooked in discussions, said Dr. Hemmings, is the fact the change might have on TCA staff at Pat Bay and Victoria.

"There are over 50 men and women involved. These people have settled largely in this district, acquired homes and responsibilities."

Debate 'Highly Improper' On Parking, Mayor Replies

Mayor Percy Scurrell Friday told council he deemed it "highly improper" to accept a challenge by ex-alderman J. Donald Smith to debate the $1,000,000 off-street parking bylaw.

"In my opinion it would be highly improper for me to debate something that has been passed by the taxpayers," he said. "They have given us a mandate and it is our duty to carry out their wishes."

The city MLA, demanding resubmission of the bylaw approved by ratepayers last month, wrote council that the parking plan should be turned over to private business with the city guaranteeing bonds.

Otherwise, Mr. Smith said, the past failures by council would be repeated.

"Regarding the cold storage plant, grain elevator and woolen mill he is talking about," said the mayor, "he is asking us to do exactly what caused these disasters—the city guaranteed the bonds of private business ventures."

CITY BORE LOSS

"In three cases the private management caused the failures, not the city, but the city had to take the loss. I can't see any reason why we should do that again."

Aldermen quickly supported the mayor's stand and received and filed three letters from Mr. Smith and one from the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association asking the mayor to debate the bylaw.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said there was no reason the mayor should debate the matter. Any ratepayer was free to see the mayor to obtain information on how the plan will work, he said.

Aldermen laughed when the mayor added ruefully that he had not intended to give Mr. Smith "all this publicity."

FRIGATES AT HAWAII

Gales, Heavy Seas Greet RCN Cadets

Four frigates of the Esquimalt-based Fourth Canadian Escort squadron are at Kahului, Hawaii, today after providing a strenuous introduction to sea for 85 officer-cadets from HMCS Venture, the navy's training school at HMC Dockyard.

They spent nine days at sea on the passage.

The first four days were wild from the time the group cleared Juan de Fuca Strait Jan. 7. From then until Jan. 11 the ships ploughed through 20-foot seas driven by winds ranging from a steady 30 knots to gusts as high as 55 knots.

Formal academic studies and professional training were out of the question in those four tempestuous days. By Monday, however, most of the lads had found their sea legs, were eating heartily, sleeping well, and looking forward to starting a Hawaii tan, and generally feeling more at home in the somewhat confusing, sometimes erratic environment that is a warship at sea.

The training program progressed normally with the ca-detts turning out at 6 a.m. every day to carry out a Morse signalling exercise from 6:30 to 7:00. After breakfast and cleaning up living quarters, the cadets did an hour and a half classroom study, mainly a review of work done ashore.

The rest of the morning was devoted to instruction in part of ship, anchors and cables, gunnery equipment, block and tackle. The afternoon included practical boatwork in a service whaler, with the ships of the squadron stopped at sea. Classes in navigation, anti-submarine, engineering and supply were also held.

PORTER IS CO

Capt. H. A. Porter, commander of the Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron and Commander Cadet Training, who normally sails in HMCS Sussexvale (commanded by Cmdr. V. J. Murphy), visited the other ships, to inspect cadets and observe the progress of their training. There are 21 or 22 cadets in each of the four ships—the Sussexvale, Antigonish (Cmdr. R. W. J. Cocks), Stettler (Lt.-Cmdr. M. H. Cooke), and Beacon Hill (Lt.-Cmdr. W. S. T. Blandy).

As the weather moderated the cadets looked forward to their first port of call. On leaving Kahului, the squadron will sail for more sea exercises followed by a three-day visit to Pearl Harbor. The squadron will then return to Esquimalt, arriving Feb. 6.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. With the opening of the legislature here, I thought it would be interesting to know when Canada's first legislature opened?—K.L.

First legislature of Upper Canada opened at Newark (Niagara) in 1792, and the same year in Lower Canada at Quebec.

Q. Would you please tell me if there are Canadian consulates in both Bonn and Berlin and how can I reach them?—M.H.

A. Consul in Bonn is F. G. Houston, Zitelmannstrasse 22, in Berlin, G. R. Grande, Canadian Military Mission, Berlin, British Forces Post Office 45, Berlin, via United Kingdom.

Answering a question asked in the Times, published in the Times, Editor, Question and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems of legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

MONTE ROBERTS

Everybody else is making suggestions to the Royal Commission on Education, so why shouldn't I?

Even though I ain't never bin to college.

A suggestion I would make to the commission is, localize the curriculum.

Have different types of studies to prepare students for different areas in which they live.

For instance, students who live in Victoria would benefit from a course in how to dig large holes in streets.

A quick glance about the streets of this fair city at any season of the year proves there is a profitable and permanent career here for the expert digger of large holes.

And it is equally well-known that diggers of large holes are made, not born.

Therefore all schools in this area should offer an elective course in large-hole-in-the-street digging.

Another course of value in the Victoria area would be a course in Accentuating the Negative.

This course would be subdivided into such subjects as: how to be against cutting down the old pine tree; how to be against one-way streets; how to be against doing something about anything at the present time but maybe later; how to be against changing the status quo; and how to be against maintaining the status quo.

There is no question as to the stability, and security of a career for the man who is a cum laude graduate Negative Accentuator.

As just one more example, not only the Victoria area, but areas adjacent to all provincial capitals could profit from a course in Blaming it on Ottawa.

I will admit we have some natural-born, accomplished Blame it on Ottawa'ers right now. But for a secure future, we should train our youth along the right lines.

I was going to make a suggestion or two for localized courses for such places as Vancouver and Winnipeg.

But I shall refrain, as it appears these cities already have an excellent course in Taking Things the Wrong Way.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Radio newsman Andy Stephen has been elected president of the B.C. Legislative Press Gallery.

He succeeds Alex Young of the Vancouver Sun.

Alexander R. Theodore, 19, R.C.N., was fined $15 in city police court today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of beer.

Mayor William Moore of Courtenay, formerly CCF member for Comox, was a guest at Friday's sitting of the Legislature.

Victoria Humanist Fellowship vice-president May Campbell will address a public meeting of the group Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Woodsworth Hall, 721 Courtney Street.

J. O. Clay, 169 Beach Drive, was elected president of the Christ Church Cathedral Choir at the annual general meeting held last week.

Other officers are: Mrs. Ivy Anders, vice-president; Mrs. Eileen Napper, treasurer; Gwynedd Hughes, secretary; Ivan Howell, librarian; Sidney White, assistant librarian; Mrs. Margaret Dunn and Mrs. Hazel Sherratt, social conveners; Mrs. Elizabeth Holt, robes mistress; Mrs. Marian Thompson, sick visitor, and Leslie Miller, registrar.

Using purple-dyed marine gasoline in his car cost David Berry, 2413 Wootton, a $25 fine when he pleaded guilty to the charge in Oak Bay Police court Friday.

Police said Berry bought the gas at Oak Bay Boathouse. Legislation restricts use of marine gasoline to marine craft only.

*****

An air transportable gun store attempt at Humboldt Street liquor store was reported by a beat constable at 5:35 a.m. today.

He said he found marks apparently made by a small crowbar on a door at the east side of the building.

Theological Day Observance Set

Theological Sunday will be observed in Greater Victoria as part of a Dominion-wide observance.

Designed to further two themes, the supply of men for the Sacred Ministry of the Church, and the need of money to train them, the program will feature guest speakers at most Anglican city churches.

Nine students from the Anglican Theological College of British Columbia, on the campus of the University of B.C., will preach on the day's themes.

In the evening they will all be present at a special gathering in St. John's Parish Hall at 9 to talk with members of parishes and the public interested in training for the ministry.

Head student at the college C. H. Osborn, will preach at St. Philip's at 11 a.m. and in St. Paul's at 7.30 p.m.

Other students scheduled to preach will be: A. F. Greenwood, St. Matthew's at 11 a.m. and St. John's, Colwood at 3 p.m.; Rev. G. M. Rumsey, St. Columba's, Strawberry Vale at 9.45 a.m.; St. Michael's, Royal Oak, at 11.15 a.m.; St. John's at 7.30 p.m.; I. M. Dingwall, St. Luke's, Cedar Hill, 11 a.m.; A. R. Hives, St. George's, Cadboro Bay at 11 a.m.; and St. Barnabas at 7.30 p.m.; Rev. D. C. McCoull, St. Mary's, Oak Bay at 11 a.m., and Christ Church Cathedral at 7.30 p.m.; J. A. Penrice, St. Alban's at 11 a.m.; D. M. Gordon, St. Saviour's at 11 a.m.; and Rev. E. D. Powell, All Saints, View Royal at 10 a.m., and St. Martin's at 11 a.m.

At Christ Church Cathedral the Dean, Very Reverend Brian Whitlow, will conduct Mattins and Evensong, with the theological student Rev. D. C. McCoull. Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8 and 9.30 a.m. Evensong will be conducted at the James Bay Hall by the Rev. Canon R. E. H. Howell.

Pastor of Faith Baptist Church, Vancouver, Rev. D. W. Harris will be guest preacher at both services in Central Baptist Church Sunday. His sermons will be on "The Lord's Look" and "When the Lord of Glory met the Chief of Sinners."

At Cadboro Bay United Church the Rev. E. F. Church will preach on "The Saints Shall Judge the World" at morning service. Sunday school will be at 10.30.

Rev. Emma Smiley conducts both services at Victoria Truth Centre, speaking on "Life's Overtones" and "Ye Shall Hear a Voice."

District secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society will be guest preacher at morning service in the Church of Our Lord. Bishop D. A. G. Rankin will preach on "The Divine Universal Physician" at a special evening service dedicated to world peace.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered following morning and evening services at First United Church. Rev. A. I. Higgins will preach at "The Cup of Salvation" and "Interpreting the Cross."

The concluding services of Evangelist and Mrs. J. J. Sharples will be conducted Sunday in the First Church of the Nazarene. Sermon subjects in the morning and evening will be "The World's Greatest Tragedy" and "God's First Question to Man."

In observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of the Scottish poet Robert Burns, members and friends of the Burns Club of Victoria will worship at evening service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The society's chaplain, Rev. T. H. McAllister, will assist the minister, Very Rev. J. Lewis W. McLean, who will preach on "The Religion that ennobles Man." The Sacrament of Baptism will be dispensed at morning service where Dr. McLean speaks on "The Mission of the Church." Annual business meeting of the congregation will be held Wednesday at 7.30 p.m.

The vital importance of having a strong spiritual foundation will be stressed at Christian Science services Sunday. The Lesson-Sermon "Truth" will be illustrated by the Golden Text from Deuteronomy.

The Archbishop of British Columbia, Most Rev. Harold E. Sexton will institute and induct Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundavra as Rector of St. Matthias Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

At Belmont Avenue United Church Rev. T. L. W. Lancelley preaches on "I Believe in the Holy Spirit" at morning service and guest preacher Rev. J. A. R. Tingley of the British and Foreign Bible Society speaks at evening worship.

REV. ANGUS CAMERON installed by Archbishop

Rev. Alvin C. Hamill preaches at both services at Emmanuel Baptist Church on "To Bear Witness to the Truth" and "Rudders and Sails."

Sunday services at the Salvation Army Citadel on Pandora Street will be conducted by the Corps Cadet Brigade, under the leadership of Senior Major E. Woods. In the morning the lesson will be taken by Young People's Sergeant Major Joan Bartlett and the evening topic will be "The Call of God."

The Sacrament of Baptism will be administered at the 11 a.m. service in Oak Bay United Church. Rev. Alec Calder will preach on "Using Our Tensions" at both morning services.

At Centennial United Church the Minister, Rev. Douglas B. Carr, will preach on "An Audience with God" at evening service. Holy Communion will be observed at both services.

Rev. Cecil Barner preaches on "The Supreme Need of the Human Soul" and "Interrupted Power" at morning and evening services at Douglas Street Baptist Church. Sunday School will be held at 9.45 a.m.

At First Baptist Church Rev. G. R. Easter preaches on "Falling a Friend" and "Youth and Life's Work" at morning and evening services. Mrs. F. Morley will speak at evening service on a recent Vocational Guidance Clinic in Vancouver.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be administered and reception of members held at morning service in Metropolitan United Church when Rev. E. Laura Butler will give the Communion Meditation. In observance of Youth Week all the church youth groups will be in attendance at evening service when Dr. F. E. H. James speaks on "Folk Who Are Different."

The band of HMCS Naden will play a series of concerts at city high schools and junior high schools next month, the navy has announced.

CHURCH PAGE

Metropolitan's 100th Birthday

The Centennial Anniversary of the Metropolitan United Church will be celebrated with special services throughout February.

Modestly of the United Church of Canada the Right Rev. Angus McQueen will make a special trip to Victoria to participate in the celebrations.

The First Methodist Church was set up in 1838 on Pandora Street, and people were established later in the year in Nanaimo, New Westminster, Hope, and Yale.

In 1891 new church was erected at the corner of Pandora and Quadra and these are still, in the congregation of Metropolitan United Church a few persons who were present at the opening of the church.

The month of celebration will be opened with a service Feb. 1 to be attended by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and other dignitaries.

Special services have been scheduled this weekend at the Evangelistic Temple, Blanshard and Queens, by the minister, Rev. R. E. S. Toms.

Saturday evening at 8 a.m. "The Crimson Shadow," will be presented, featuring a description of the advance of communism.

Services on Sunday will be: "Soul-winning" at 11 a.m.; "If Christ Should Tarry Another 10 Years, What Then?" at 3 p.m.; and "These Evil Days and What to Do About Them" at 8 p.m.

Leader of the services of song will be Vancouver lay preacher C. W. Pattison.

Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, JAN. 24, 1938 - 17

A little Canada jay finds a friend in Mrs. Joan Andre as she entices him with a few crumbs from a window of the clubhouse. Members supply their own food for the weekend. It's reported that the variety of meals is very colorful and sometimes "fantastic."

Weekend for these seven skiers is a time to relax and enjoy the fresh air on the mountainside. Posing on the hill are, from the left, Donald Erickson, Brian Sanders, George Odier, Barbara Davies, Manfred Schil, Maureen Acason and Irwin Egger. Mr. Egger is formerly of Austria and is now instructing for the club.

Skiing is Fun!

Sno-Birds are a social group, too, and when the members aren't travelling up and down the slopes, they get together in groups such as this fivesome—from left, Mr. and Mrs. David Wardell, Miss Heloise Johnson, Mrs. Allan Brawn and Mr. George Odier.

"There's snow on Mount Brenton!" It's a cry that rings around the city on many a Friday afternoon during the winter as avid members of Victoria Sno-Bird Ski Club prepare for a weekend outdoors.

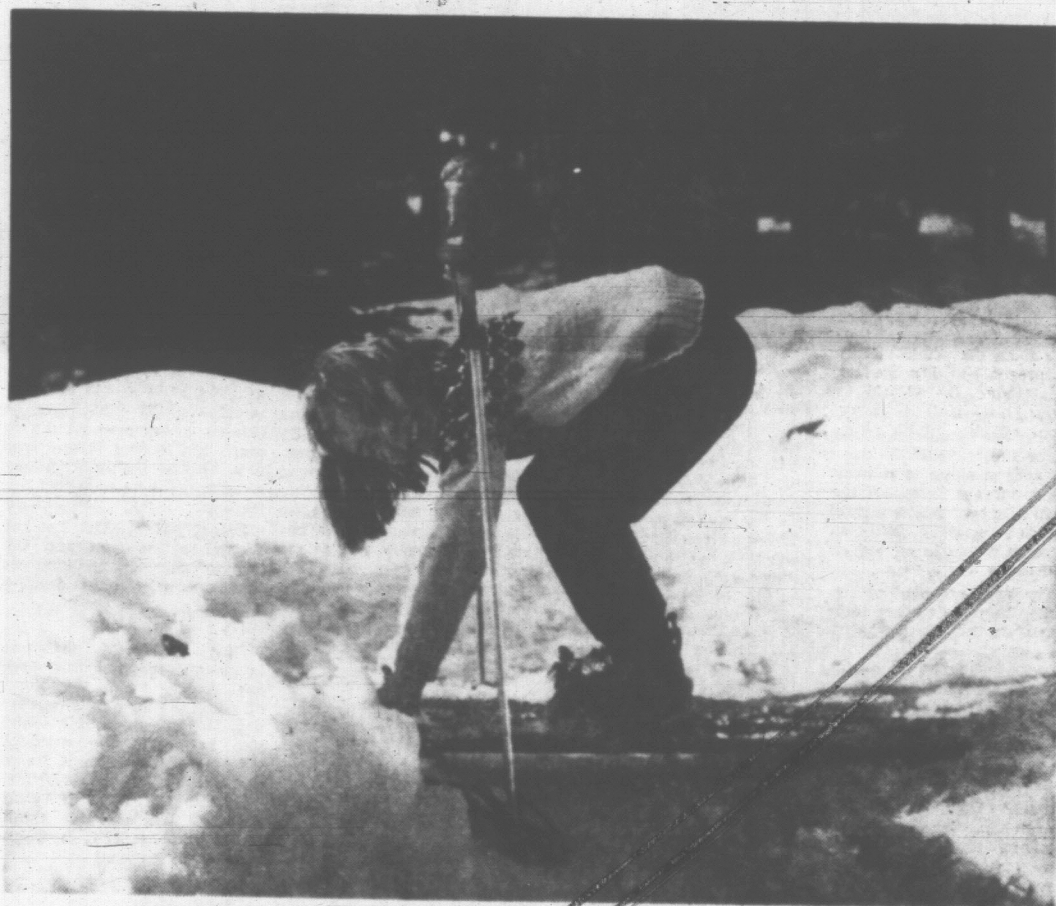

Telephones ring steadily as transportation is arranged to take members to the club, located on the mountain, 50 miles up Island, near Chemainus. Supplies are collected and the caravan starts on its way to the snowy slopes for two days of skiing.

Sno-Bird Club was formed in 1950 by several keen sportsmen and women. Today, as many as 50 or 60 of the 150 members are on the Brenton slopes each weekend. It might be called a little United Nations because of the many nationalities, including Austrian, German, Danish, French, English, Scandinavian and Finnish.

Instructors Anton Lamprecht, Irwin Egger and Harry Aoki assist the beginners.

Nine-year-old Barbara Brawn is an enthusiastic skier along with many junior members in Sno-Birds. Here, she is trying out her skis for size. Many children travel up Mount Brenton with their parents to enjoy the healthful sport.

Look out, no hands! A Sno-Bird demonstrates his ability on skis as he glides off down the slope of Mount Brenton. Many of the skiers are from Europe and are already well-trained.

A top skier and the club's newest instructor is Harry Aoki. The Japanese sportsman is pictured as he takes off down the slopes. Equipment, including boots, can be rented in Victoria. There are two ski tows to carry skiers up 1,000 feet of the 4,000-foot mountain.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Colorful Raincoats . . . Quality High, Price Low

By PENNY SAVER

It never rains but it pours . . . an apt way to explain Victoria's recent wet weather? Anyway, I can guess by now you're looking for a raincoat.

A shop in town has marked down the price of women's raincoats. These are in the smartest new styles and colors (including stripes) at $20 each.

Here's a good buy! Flannel-ette nighties, guaranteed to keep you cosy and warm. They're in gay yellow, pink and blue at $1.49 in women's sizes.

Spring flower colors make these suede nylon gloves so pretty. You're sure to want several pairs at the low price of 98 cents. Gloves are in rosy pink, lavender blue and daffodil yellow.

Tired, aching muscles deserve the therapeutic treatment of this infra-ray electric heating pad. It's such a comfort to people with rheumatic pains, too!

To really get the benefit, it's advised to sleep on the pad at night. They are priced at $6.95.

It's an exclusive little dress shop with prices so low you'll be amazed! I found a whole rack of frocks for women in sheath and Empire styles.

One in particular caught my eye. It's of puckered nylon in brilliant tangerine shade according to our fashion editor Nona Damaske, tangerine is all the rage in New York! priced at $10.

Other dresses at $10 each are in blues, greens, reds and a host of lovely shades in all fabrics and styles.

Give me a telephone call at EV 2-3131 . . . I'll tell you where I shopped.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

The Condition of Hair Affects Attractiveness

It is true that hair, its natural texture and color and its styling, have a tremendous effect on a woman's attractiveness.

Nothing makes her look dowdier than poorly groomed hair. If her tresses are dull, dusty or covered with lint, or wispy or straggly at the hairline, this immediately adds years to appearance and detracts from the whole picture.

Nightly brushing is a splendid beauty and hair-health routine. It stimulates circulation in the scalp and distributes the oil over the hair, thus adding sheen and overcoming dryness. Even in the case of oily hair this is a good measure because it tends to normalize the little oil glands in the scalp.

Many women become alarmed when they notice that their hair is shedding more than usual. I think most women find that this is more or less natural if it is not extreme, and if it does not last too long. This may happen at certain seasons or after extremes in weather or following an illness or times of strain. If it continues for a long period, an expert should be consulted. Scaling is also a normal function of the scalp. As a matter of fact, the skin of the head constantly sloughs off dead cells but usually this is not noticeable. Often when a woman thinks she has dandruff she just has a very dry scalp. True dandruff is a skin disease and should be treated by a dermatologist.

Women often write asking if alcohol is too drying to use on the scalp and if this will get rid of dandruff. As I already have said, if you have real dandruff you need expert treatment. If your condition is due to dry scalp, alcohol will make it even drier. The best tonics for this condition have little or no alcohol in them.

TODAY'S RECIPE

BAKED CORN CHOWDER

One-third cup minced onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 1/4 teaspoon paprika, dash of thyme, dash of marjoram, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 1/2 cups evaporated milk, 1 (20-ounce) can cream-style corn, 1 cup diced celery, 1/2 cup diced green pepper, 1 pound sausages, 1/4 cup dry bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Cook onions in butter 5 minutes. Stir in flour and seasoning. Add evaporated milk gradually, then stir in corn, celery, green pepper. Leaving several sausages uncooked, cook remainder, and cut in thirds. Add to evaporated milk mixture. Spoon into buttered 1 1/2 quart size casserole. Mix crumbs and butter and sprinkle on top. Arrange uncooked sausages on top for decoration. Bake in a hot oven (400-degree F.) for about 35 minutes until casserole is bubbly and brown. Makes six servings.

Island Branch Of Press Club To Meet Here

Members of the Vancouver Island Branch, Canadian Women's Press Club, will hold a quarterly meeting this Sunday, afternoon and evening.

Afternoon gathering will be held in the Flame Room of the B.C. Electric building, Mrs. Dorothy Plant, Nanaimo, will chair the business session. Speakers will be Maury Gwynne of radio station CJVI and Mrs. Audrey St. Denys Johnson, Victoria Daily-Times music and drama critic. Afternoon tea will be served and members will be taken on a tour of the modern building by Austin Goward and Miss Dorothy Tupper, members of the public relations department of the B.C. Company. Miss Tupper is also a member of the press club.

In the evening H. B. Elworthy, Island Tug and Barge Company, will entertain the gathering at a private dinner in the Princess Mary. Guest speaker will be Mr. J. Dayley, deep sea diver for the company.

Special guests will include Mrs. Kelly Young, president of the Vancouver Women's Press Club; Miss Dorothy Taylor, Hailey, B.C., and Mrs. Rita Myers, past presidents of the Canadian Women's Press Club, and Miriam Green Ellis, member of the Winnipeg club.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Dutch treat hostess in Dutch

About three months ago, my husband and I met a couple and we all seemed to like each other very much from the beginning. I may have gone overboard by inviting them to dinner a couple of times. Yesterday the wife phoned to ask if we could come to their home for Dutch treat. I was nonplussed and declined as we had another engagement. Do you think that the invitation was an insult?

Louise Davis

Louise Davis answers:

It does seem strange indeed that your new friends would ask you to their house for the first time and expect you to go Dutch. With close friends of long standing, one wouldn't raise such an eyebrow, especially in times of stress, such as the depression of the 30's or Second World War, when many food items were rationed. Rather than consider the invitation an insult it would kinder to give them the benefit of the doubt by calling it ignorance or inexperience. Perhaps your new friend is misinformed about the meaning of Dutch treat. Maybe the finances are in a sad state, but the idea is pretty remote, as new friends, even hard up, wouldn't ask you to come to their house and pay your way. They could find less expensive ways of entertaining, or not entertain at all.

Miss Paulin The Soloist

Members of the Royal Schools of Music Association heard a program of vocal solos by one of its members, Miss Kathleen Paulin, in the Lincoln Road home of Mrs. J. L. Kennehan. Accompanist was Mrs. Vera Barclay. It was decided to hold the annual meeting on Feb. 13 at the home of Miss Margery Vaughan, 2761 Roseberry Street. A program will be arranged by the president, Miss J. F. Wilkinson.

Take the Doctor's Advice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother lives with us and I admit she's a saint. She makes my life much easier (she's a built-in baby sitter, a wonderful cook, etc.) but she has one fault that drives me nuts. When she feeds my baby (16 months old) she sits there telling him stories and everytime he opens his mouth to laugh she shoves in another spoonful. The baby should be handling the spoon himself but he refuses to try because it's so much fun having Nanny feed him. Should I skip it or say something? I hate to hurt her feelings.

DEAR PUZZLED: Let the doctor be the goat and tell "Nanny" that HE recommends that the baby start feeding himself.

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend is getting married this Sunday. A boy I am very fond of asked me for a date on that day. Do you think if I asked him to go to the wedding with me he would think I was hinting?

DEAR NETTIE: If you ARE, he will probably think so. If you AREN'T, it won't even occur to him.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother with the teenage problem reminded us of our own situation. We have a high school boy in our family.

I am lower than a snake because I won't let this monster drive the family car. He is 15 and we have only three more years of obligation to feed this parasite. I shudder to think of where he will end up.

DEAR DISGUSTED: And who raised this "monster"?

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman of 75 who has 9 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren. I run a respectable rooming house and no monkey business. One of my roomers is a woman of 43. She has 3 grandchildren and is divorced. She told me herself that she'd do anything to get married again so she could quit working. She is out to rope in my 27-year-old grandson. I warned him against her, but he still goes up there to see her. I told her if she didn't lay off my grandson I would evict her, but she claims HE won't leave HER alone. Would I be wrong to throw her out anyway?

DEAR L.F.: Your grandson is 3 times 7 and if he wants to see this woman you can't stop him. "Throwing her out" won't solve anything.

Luncheon in U.S. Carrier Climaxes Fashion Showings

By NONA DAMASKE

Times fashion editor Nona Damaske was in eastern United States for the spring and autumn showings of the Costume Group of the New York Dress Institute. She is writing of her experiences in this column.

Surprise day promised by Textile Fashion Industries was a real bombshell.

More than 100 woman fashion editors were entertained in the United States newly commissioned attack carrier, USS Independence.

A grand climax to a week of wonderful events!

Highlight of the afternoon was a tour of the 60,000-ton carrier and a fashion show featuring six prominent professional models from the New York area. As an added attraction, Miss Joy Harmon, co-star of Sam Levine's Broadway comedy "Make a Million" modeled a very smart two-piece suit.

The carrier was only commissioned on Jan. 10 and has not yet had her shake-down cruise.

Can you imagine the thrill of a luncheon aboard this ship? Turned on end she would reach the 80th floor of the Empire State Building. The mast is hinged so she can go under the Brooklyn Bridge.

Normal complement of men is 3,000 with accommodation for an additional 1,000.

It was almost like visiting a small city. There are three barber shops, four ship's stores, a cobbler's shop, three soda fountains, a hospital, four dental chairs and everything else to keep a small world running smoothly while the carrier is at sea.

We were taken around in small groups, each conducted by a navy man from the State the fashion editors in that particular group represented.

The few Canadians present waited to see who would conduct our group. Do you know, there actually was an aviation magazine mate, born in Montreal to do the honors. He had been in the United States navy 14 years.

The fashion show took place on the hangar deck and all off-duty men were invited. They turned out in droves and applauded vigorously.

Show was presented in a summer setting and clothes shown were gay-cotton dresses, bright duster coats, play clothes, straw hats and parasols.

SIDELIGHTS

We've been hosted in the beautiful Empire Room of the Waldorf Astoria by Galey and Lord, cotton manufacturers. And we closed one busy day by going to the Longacre Theatre to see Cornelia Otis Skinner, Cyril Pritchard and Charles Ruggles in "The Pleasure of His Company."

The automat was on the way so several of us stopped to eat. You put your money in a slot and sandwiches, pie—even coffee, tea and milk—come sliding out at you with no help from human hands.

We had a table in the window and we looked out on Times Square at night. Such a fabulous sight!

Widows Over Forty, Investment Minded, Have Chance on Wall St.

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're a woman, preferably over 40, possibly a widow and interested in investments, you have a chance to make good in Wall Street.

Previous business experience is not necessary.

"Wall Street is one place where age is an advantage instead of a liability," says Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, active general partner in a stock exchange firm which recently added her name to its title.

"There are many women who have gone into the brokerage business after middle age and are making great successes."

TABLES TURNED
"Often they are widows suddenly faced with the responsibility of investing their own money. They start by asking advice of friends, and often end up by giving advice to these same friends."

"People are likely to have confidence in someone with experience. A woman who has invested her own money wisely can give sound advice to others. On the other hand, an investor might be charmed by some cute young thing of 22, just out of college, but he wouldn't take her financial advice very seriously."

STARTED YOUNG

Mrs. Kennedy, however, is an exception to her own rule. She has been in the investment business since the age of eight, she announces proudly, explaining:

"My father was a St. Louis lawyer who suddenly got interested in stocks, and he taught me to make a stock chart for him every day. Later, when he moved to New York and started publishing The Wall Street Analyst, I worked in his office at the age of 15, and later became editor."

Mrs. Kennedy was married at 16 and widowed at 20, at which time she started her Wall Street career in earnest. She has one son, one daughter and two grandchildren, lives in a Manhattan apartment and spends most of her waking hours studying the market.

HAS DRAWBACKS

More and more women are getting into the business of high finance, says Mrs. Kennedy, but she does not advise it as a career for a girl just out of college. She explains: "Wall Street isn't set up to give long-term training programs and offer pensions and security and all that, like the big corporations do. There are quite a lot of young women who go into the research and analyst departments of stock exchange firms—girls who have majored in math, economics and English. But most of them work only a few years and then quit to get married."

"The most successful women in Wall Street and in other brokerage houses around the country are those who have gone into it through the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually after they reached middle age. For such women, there are increasing opportunities in the investment business, if they are willing to learn, to study, to work hard and put in long hours."

"Women like to deal with other women. They're not so embarrassed as they are in discussing financial problems with men. A woman likes another woman for a broker just as she often likes a woman doctor."

A coffee party was held Friday morning in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel with Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, right, wife of the Premier of British Columbia, and wives of the cabinet ministers, the hostesses. Among guests at the party was Mrs. Bert Price, left, wife of the South Burnaby M.L.A. Centre:

From the left, hostesses Mrs. Eric Martin, wife of the minister of health and welfare, and Mrs. Philip Gagliardi, wife of the minister of highways, with Mrs. P. A. Gibbs, wife of the M.L.A. for Oak Bay, and Mrs. Cedric Cox, wife of the M.L.A. for Burnaby. An honor guest was Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Danes Call Margrethe Their 'Farming Princess'

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—Princess Margrethe, 18-year-old heir to the Danish throne, is gradually taking on more responsibilities in the royal household. She now is known to Danes as their "farming princess."

During the absence of King Frederick and Queen Ingrid on a two-week vacation in Italy in November, the tall, fair-haired princess acted as regent. She performed her public duties, including the launching of a new ferryboat for use on the service to Sweden, with the vivacious charm that Danes have come to expect of her.

Princess Margrethe's private life is not one long whirl of dances and parties. She loves to be out of doors. And now one of her most absorbing interests is to be "down on the farm"—her own farm—in the agricultural heart of Zealand, easternmost of Denmark's islands, on which the capital stands.

PASTORAL PRESENT

The farm, complete with livestock, was among many presents received by the princess on her 18th birthday this year. It was given to her by Danish farmers. Nordgard, as it is called, is in size a typical example of the country's 200,000 farm holdings. It stands in pleasantly undulating, wooded countryside near Ringsted, about 45 miles from Copenhagen and is quite close to a former royal residence.

Although the crown once possessed about 40 per cent of all land in Denmark, no sovereign since Frederick VII (1848-63) has personally owned a farm.

Life on a farm suits the princess, who always has been noted for her good health and out-of-doors interests. She loves swimming, and is still an excellent long-distance runner, a sport at which she excelled as a schoolgirl. For several weeks last summer, she joined other girls of her age group at a women's air corps camp near a Danish air force base.

Money Voted For Sheets, Film Strips

Municipal Chapter, 106E, met recently with Mrs. A. Warren Smith presiding. Mrs. B. T. Shaw, services at home and abroad secretary, was authorized to spend $25 for sheets for a needy family, and Mrs. C. C. Riach, film convener, was given $30 for film strips for schools of the Greater Victoria area. Plans were made for the chapter's annual meeting, to be held in mid-March.

Wedding Vows

Mary E. Graham, Victoria, and J. E. (Tim) Turnbull, OBE, Toronto, were married quietly in Olde English Inn recently. Rev. G. R. Easter of First Baptist Church was officiating clergyman.

Marriage vows were heard in front of a large fireplace banked with bouquets of white chrysanthemums, carnations and tulips.

A dress of pale rose French lace over deeper tone taffeta complemented by a feather hat, satin shoes en tone and corsage of white orchids was chosen by the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Tudor Room.

Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull left on an extended trip to southern California. They will be at home to friends early in March at 95 Lawton Blvd., Toronto.

Says She's Thrilled, Scared!

NEW DELHI (AP) — Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of Prime Minister Nehru, says she is thrilled but a bit frightened by the prospect of becoming president of the Congress party, India's biggest.

"It will be the biggest challenge I have faced," said Mrs. Gandhi. "I hope to be able to live up to what is expected of me."

Mrs. Gandhi, a slim, striking brunette of 41, has been nominated by half a dozen state congress committees to head her father's party, which has governed India since independence.

Although the nominations remain open until Feb. 1, it is expected she will be named by acclamation when the votes are counted March 1.

Mrs. Gandhi is the mother of two boys. Her grandfather was president of the Congress party until succeeded by his son in 1929. The present Prime Minister served five terms before asking to be re-elected in 1954 because of the press of other duties.

Indira said her father is "not very happy" about her candidacy but as always allows her to go her own way. She is married to Feroz Gandhi, a prominent lawyer and a member of Parliament. He is no relation to the late Mohandas Gandhi.

CAC Meeting

Mrs. Forster Heads Baptist Women's Union

Mrs. Newland Phillips installed the following officers at annual meeting of the First Baptist Church Women's Union: President, Mrs. J. A. Forster; first vice-president, Mrs. A. R. Booth; second, Mrs. M. E. Bevis; Mrs. P. R. Thompson, recording secretary; Mrs. D. Pearmain, corresponding; Mrs. M. Zabel, treasurer; Mrs. R. L. Van Wart, assistant treasurer. Honorary president is Mrs. G. R. Easter and past president Miss K. B. Stewart.

Conveners are Miss P. Pratt, church decorating; Mrs. Phillips, Christian fellowship; Mrs. H. G. Day, cradle roll; Miss V. Waller, mission band; Mrs. F. W. Clayton, pianist; Mrs. A. R. Booth, program; Miss M. O. Laveie, press; Mrs. Bevis, periodicals and social; Mrs. W. E. Major, White Cross; Mrs. E. Bell, reading course, and Mrs. G. Bergstrom, visiting. Mrs. C. MacLean and Mrs. W. E. Myers were named delegates to the Local Council of Women; Mrs. O. M. Brown and Mrs. G. Bergstrom, Protestant Orphanage, and Mrs. Phillips, Rose Manor.

Reports showed that the group had raised $2,300 in the past year for local and missionary work at home and abroad.

Grandmother's Cameo Brooch Worn by Bride Mary Anne James

Her grandmother's cameo brooch which had also been her mother's as a bride was worn by Miss Mary Anne James at her recent wedding in St. Mary's Church, Ladysmith.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. G. C. James, Chemainus, and the late Capt. James. Parents of the groom, Stuart Warner Chadwick, are Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Chadwick of Cassidy, B.C. Cassidy's Father Albury heard the marriage vows in a church decorated with bouquets of King Alfred daffodils, blue iris and swirls of copper eucalyptus foliage. Mrs. Stanley Reiken played wedding music during the double ring ceremony. Frederick A. Deacon gave his niece in marriage.

White net over satin styled the bouffant full-length skirt of the bridal gown. The fitted lace bodice had a round neckline and lily-point sleeves. A mother of pearl and sequin taria held the chapel veil. A small gold cross, gift of the groom, was worn by the bride. Her bouquet was satin daisies and red roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. E. A. Estlin, Victoria, wore a gown of daffodil yellow nylon lace over taffeta. She carried a bow knot spray of daffodils and Wedgwood blue iris.

Best man was George Robertson, Ladysmith.

Receiving guests at a reception in the family home, Mrs. James chose a dress of cocoa brown crepe with satin pleated V neckline. Her accessories were pink and she had a gardenia corsage.

Leaving for the wedding trip, the bride chose a grey suit with a teal blue topcoat, red accessories and a red rose and freesia corsage.

Road to Doom; Sour Expatriate

By The Canadian Press

The tragedy, courage, hardship and perfidy unfolded in charting the Canadian Arctic's Northwest Passage tends to make subsequent developments there appear anti-climactic.

Elizabethan seadogs probing for a short cut to Cathay began a high road to doom for many seamen in the 330 years before Roald Amundsen finally navigated the archipelago from Atlantic to Pacific in 1906.

L. H. Neatby's In Quest of the North West Passage (Longmans Green) covers the years in which explorers like Henry Hudson, Sir George Back, Sir John Franklin, and a host of others were pathfinders for Amundsen.

The story is told well, linking the deeds of brave men to obscure Arctic place names and bringing alive the necessarily abundant maps.

VALIANT STRUGGLE

To modern eyes the long struggle may appear almost suicidal at times—pitting cranky sailing vessels against unknown jagged expanses of hostile water frozen 10 months a year.

Martin Frobisher made his first voyage to the eastern Arctic in 1576—12 years before the Spanish Armada. In 1559, Capt. Leopold McClintock completed the melancholy task of tracing the fate of Franklin's expedition, which died with the passage all but solved.

Amundsen followed McClintock's suggested route, by-passing the full brunt of the "ice stream" that ground down from the Beaufort Sea in the west and pinned Franklin's two ships in 1847.

Prof. Neatby does find some light relief. One such passage concerns the billiard table fashioned from ice, walrus skin and other rude elements. It worked for a British naval crew frozen in the ice for the winter and in need of as much recreation as the hazards of cold, scurvy and solitude would allow.

Prof. Neatby is the head of the department of classics at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S.

CANADA REVISITED

Norman Levine, a Canadian-born writer who has spent most of his time in Cornwall, England, since leaving his homeland in 1949, has written his impressions of this country based on a return visit in which he travelled from Halifax to Vancouver Island.

Mr. Levine, who was born in Ottawa, talks to people of diverse occupations and of all social levels in the course of his travels. His reflections, summed up in Canada Made Me (McClelland and Stewart), are not flattering.

He writes of the failures, "the Babbitts on Main Street," the dull Anglo-Scotch or the immigrants who were quickly corrupted.

He finds Canadians on the whole a dull and unimaginative lot, preoccupied with making a living. At one point he writes:

"I wanted to get back to failure. Somehow, he found those at the bottom of society more interesting and colorful than those who had achieved financial stability. He admits him-

Brilliant Picture of an Age Reveals Intensive Research

Reviewed by DONALD INGHAM

"MISTRESS TO AN AGE," by J. Christopher Herold. McClelland & Stewart Limited, Toronto, $6.75. 472 pages.

This biography of Germaine de Staël is not the first written about one of the most flamboyant characters of the Napoleonic era, but certainly it must be one of the best.

It starts before she was born, and stops only when she takes her place in the family mausoleum with her mother and father.

She was the daughter of Jacques Necker, finance minister for Louis XVI, and she grew up amid wealth, yet during the revolution managed to keep her head. She played both sides of the revolution—taking part in a political upheaval with her head, yet saving friends from the terror with her heart.

As she matured—brilliant conversation, became her passion, and her salon always was one of the centres of the literary and intellectual whirl in Paris.

She opposed Napoleon—in fact was known jocularly as Great Britain's chief ally on the Continent—and was banished by him from Paris, and finally from France. Her exile lasted 12 years.

By profession she was a writer of both fiction and political thought, and won tremendous acclaim throughout Europe. She also had a talent for scandal, and her private life was, even in that enlightened age, somewhat unconventional.

She "lived a life of 'noisy exaggeration,'" according to one writer.

She inherited a tremendous fortune, and it is likely that her children inherited more than her father left her.

The author writes: "Amid the most tempestuous passions of her age, Germaine de Staël was a pool of calmness in which she conducted her business transactions. She was by no means avaricious; all testifies to her generosity. Her way of life was lavish, though not extravagant, but her personal needs were simple and she never lost count of a penny."

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Memorable Hammer Show In Final Week at Gallery

Now that the exhibition of the Hammer Brothers collection is entering upon its final week at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria (closes Jan. 31) the time has come to ask ourselves just what will be remembered of this display a year from now. For the majority of Victorians individual pictures, such as the De Hooch, will remain unforgettable.

If I might be allowed to give my own answer, it would be that this is one of the few exhibitions I have seen in which the influence of Rubens was so thoroughly in evidence. Rubens himself is a difficult Master to "pin down." With his picture-factory in Antwerp, his liberal employment of the talents of fellow painters, and all the complications of wholesale borrowings from the works of others, it becomes necessary to forget the man and concentrate on the style and epoch.

If we ignore the man and consider his art alone and the particular period in which it was painted we are simply staggered by the immensity of his vision. His genius grows in stature the more it is considered.

We get to know Rubens the portraitist, Rubens the painter, in the grand manner, of myth, of religious conviction, and last but not the least in importance, his influence, through Hobbema, upon an entire school of British landscape painting.

By the inclusion in the exhibition of works by Hobbema, Van Dyck and Jan Breughel, we are given a taste of the family, the brotherhood of Rubens' collaborators, students and followers. Even in the small panel by Lairese, an artist born a year after Rubens' death, the influence is not unmarked.

While in the previous articles we have devoted our attention to the Dutch and Flemish exhibits, we must now discuss the Italians.

Just as it was a short stage from Dou to Rembrandt, so it is now possible to glide from Rubens backwards to Il Veronese, an unfortunate and persecuted artist who received the rebuke of the Inquisition.

The catalogue suggests that the painting by Rubens of the wounded Venus was possibly inspired by a painting by Paolo Veronese in the Earl of Yarborough's collection.

The Veronese "Portrait of a Young Boy" is one of three splendid Italian portraits in the current show. A slight sketch, and one suspects it might have been at one time part of a larger portrait group, it is a perfect study of childhood serenity.

'Il Furioso'

While not ignoring the Carlo Ceresa "Portrait of a Lady," a work formerly ascribed to Velasquez, we Herold had done an amazing amount of research for this work, which leads to one criticism—he apparently could not forbear to use most of it.

MASS OF DETAIL

It would be a better book if it were only two-thirds as long, but the editing would be a difficult job indeed.

Students will gobble it up, but the casual reader will find himself becoming increasingly annoyed at what appears to be unnecessary detail.

But just as he is about to hurt the book across the room, along will come a scene to jerk him upright: such as Marie Antoinette's view from her prison window, and Germaine's discomfiture during her last interview with Napoleon.

Wide awake, once again, he continues reading.

It is a brilliant piece on a brilliant personality, but even more, it is an excellent picture of the people of France during a chaotic period. The reader will be forgiven if he turns pages rapidly past the irrelevant, and starts concentrating again on the pertinent sections.

must be excused if we reserve our admiration for the portraits by Brizzino and Tintoretto.

The Tintoretto "Portrait of a Venetian General," this tough, sour-mouthed, watery-eyed old soldier, is a fine example of this Master's facility for rapid portraiture.

Because of the rapidity with which he worked, Tintoretto was nicknamed "Il Furioso," yet in none of his paintings, especially this fully-charged study of defiant old age, is there anything but the fullest employment of design and characterization. This is a masterpiece, indeed.

The Brizzino portrait of Francesco de' Medici was probably painted around 1560. Brizzino painted several studies of this prince, and for the interest of students of Italian art I would refer them to the Phaidon edition of the Memoirs of Benvenuto Cellini where they will find reproduced yet another, and until recently unidentified, portrait of the same subject.

Many More

I find that I have left myself little space and must therefore pass over, with a brief mention, the masterpiece by Fra Filippo Lippi, "Madonna and Child." Nor have I space in which to do justice to the unique and early (c1460-1520) "Christ on the Mount of Olives" by Mair of Landshut, attributed to the Bavarian school.

And what a real charmer is the delightful small painting

Boone Tells All To Aid Teeners Solve Problems

Singing star Pat Boone is one of the few fabulous figures in the entertainment world who is both idolized by millions of teenagers and approved by parents.

Much of this popularity is due to Pat's qualities of good taste, sincerity and religious devotion—traits that have made his life a model of good behavior. With this background as his guide, he has written "Twist Twelve and Twenty," (Prentice-Hall) a book of sound advice for teenagers presented in the language they understand.

Just a few years ago the internationally renowned singer was a teenager in battered jeans who was sitting in his father's barn in Nashville, Tenn., milking the family cow and dreaming of how great it would be to be rich and famous.

He was a teenager meeting the challenges of a teenage world. He was busy trying to solve his problems of dating and clothes, altered relations with his family and friends, earning money, developing spiritually, planning a future.

And he'd lost every singing contest in Nashville.

'Don't Do as I Do' Advice From Best-Selling Author

By FRED DANZIG
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Erskine Caldwell may be the world's best-selling novelist, but he considers himself a poor example for writers to emulate.

Caldwell's short stories and novels about the lives and loves of Southern poor whites have sold upwards of 40,000,000 copies. His "God's Little Acre," considered the world's best-selling novel, recently passed the 8,500,000-copy mark in the paperback editions. Total "G.L.A." sales, including 17 foreign language translations, are around 9,300,000. And, of course, there's the movie.

During a recent brief visit to New York—Caldwell lives in San Francisco now and most of his Coweta County, Ga., accent has vanished—he discussed his work and some of his experiences with publishers.

Caldwell is a rare kind who can indulge in the luxury of thinking before speaking and still voice honest, fresh opinions.

NO MODEL

"No," he said. "No writer should model his life after

Caldwell

"I say it in 300 pages"

make more on the big ones, selling for $6 or $7. I'm not interested in their economics. I'm a writer."

Caldwell's newest novel, "Claudelle Inglish," will be published in January and, needless to add, it's not a "big one." He writes one book in eight or nine months, working an eight-hour day, and devotes the remainder of the year to travel with his lovely wife, Virginia.

"I write a book every year, but it's limited to 300 pages. My point of view is, I say it in 300 pages or I'm not going to do it at all. The publishers want you to do a big book—700, 900 pages. But somehow, I've been able to be independent. I've made a lot of enemies, though, just by telling them I'm a 300-page boy. If they want them longer, I tell them to find another boy."

"I've got nothing against the big book writers. You know how it is. The publishers get you in their conference room—the Green Room, or Red Room, or Blue Room—and give you a lesson on the economics of publishing."

"They say it costs as much to do a 200 or 300-page book as a big one, only they can

Confusion Rises From Suburban Autonomy

SUBURBIA, by Robert C. Wood (Houghton Mifflin):

Suburban "togetherness" and "group living" are destroying traditional American independence of thought and action, according to the author.

Paradoxically, each community clings to its independence in community services: police and fire departments, schools, zoning, local speed limits.

The result: confusion, waste, overlapping jurisdictions. Wood believes this is a reaction against the unity of the city which suburbanites had recently escaped.

This is a thoughtful analysis of trends in American community life.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

It's that time of year again when festivals are building up pressure behind committee doors, soon to burst out and inundate the city with a flood of music and drama that will leave some of us temporarily saturated.

While the schools' drama festival is scheduled for March 9 to 14, the adult one-act play festival April 13 to 18 and the music festival April 21 to May 1, I feel that the music festival must be placed first in importance.

Drama festivals, both junior and adult, certainly have a significance that far outweighs the frivolous implication of the "play-acting" tag.

Music Is for Life

Hundreds of students take music with them into adult life: a few as a full career, some as a part-time career, the majority as flavor and refreshment to the monotony of daily life.

Music is the one universal language. A language that allows people of different races, nationalities and creeds to sit down together and share the same emotions; to forge a bond of understanding.

It wasn't an airy flight of romanticism when Congreve said, "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, to soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak."

Music has possibly a more

Rewards and benefits of theatrical participation are many and profound—depending on the attitude of the participant.

But drama festival promoters will forgive me if I suggest that music festivals deal with a subject that is considerably more vital and of wider implication to the community at large.

civilizing effect than any other agent known to us. Religion is the only exception but religion, too, has made use of music to enhance and proclaim its purpose.

So far as our own Greater Victoria Music Festival is concerned, it is time for many of us to take a second and a long look.

If we don't we may lose it yet—and if we do lose it, it will be many a long year, if ever, before we get it back. And the loss won't be mine nor the festival committee's—that band of faithful devotees to whom the festival has meant work and more work for the past several years.

Simple Actions Can Save It

The loss—a serious one—will be to the school children, the students, the community in general.

It would mean no more "pacing each other on the road to excellence." Less opportunity to observe and learn from the performance of others and the commentary of experts, less impetus to form groups and make music.

Well then, what can we do to ensure our music festival surviving 1959 and carrying on into the next decade?

First of all, you choirs and other ensemble groups, by being good sports enough to enter in competition and provide added vitality and interest to classes that should be the festivals' chief pride.

And you parents—what could you be doing that is more important than being in the cheering section when the young 'uns are taking part in solo, choral, instrumental, speech groups or folk dancing events?

As for the rest of you folks—if you profess an interest in music and have any sense of responsibility toward its development in the community, you can plan to attend at least those sessions in which you might find a special interest. But everybody—everybody in the least concerned could certainly spend what amounts to less than the price of a carton of cigarettes on a season ticket.

Such action would ensure the festival's existence financially. But the encouragement of a genuine ACTIVE interest to be expressed in attendance figures is equally important and desirable.

Having successfully explored the contemporary medium of poetry readings to a jazz music background (Times columnist Prof. Anthony Emery as reader is doing a return engagement at The Scene this weekend), Progressive Artists Society is about to extend its range to encompass drama.

The vehicle they have chosen is in the contemporary idiom, being William Saroyan's "Hello Out There," a poignant, socially significant one-act play which will feature Victoria actors Margaret Martin and Tony Nicholson.

It will be presented next Friday and Saturday at The Scene, the jazz cellar on Wharf Street.

In 1955 South Vancouver Island Drama Festival, Mr. Nicholson received the best actor award for his performance as the solitary prisoner. The piece is rich in symbolism and powerful in its emotional appeal. It demands fine qualities of intellect and perception from its actors.

So laurels to Progressive Artists for adding still another dimension to their undertaking and providing a fresh, interesting outlet for the city's talent.

King Richard III Defeats Laurence Olivier's Dream

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fifteen years ago, Sir Laurence Olivier began an ambitious long-range program of bringing the best of Shakespeare to the audiences of the world.

"I determined to bring them along gently," he remarks. "First I did Henry V, which was a sure-fire story for the movies. Then came 'Hamlet,' which was a little more difficult. But I made it easy for them, really, by simplifying things and attaching an introduction to it.

"Then with 'Richard III' I figured they were ready for a real story, with wonderful characters."

KILLED BY TV

"Henry V" won a special Academy Award, "Hamlet" an Oscar for best picture and one for Olivier as best actor. Both made money. "Richard III" did not, and Olivier places the blame on TV.

It was released in England when the box office was taking a nose-dive because of the rise of TV. "The Teddy Boys" loved it," Olivier added, referring to the London ruffians who revelled in the film's violence.

The picture failed in the United States because of an unusual—and disastrous—circumstance: "It was released first as a TV spectacular."

"I pleaded with the backers not to do it," the producer-director-star said. "They claimed people would be stimulated by the TV showing to see it on a big screen and in color. The money was too tempting for them—$500,000. Because they had no distribution or advertising costs, that was the equivalent of $2,000,000 in theatre returns."

NO BACKING

Because of the box office failure of Richard III, Olivier was unable to find backing for the fourth of his Shakespearean films, Macbeth.

"I tried for nine months to get the money," he said wearily. "I needed the same as I spent for the other films—$1,200,000. I was turned down everywhere. I could not fight it any longer. I gave up."

He seemed shaken over the experience, and it appears there will be no more of his Shakespearean films.

"I think I shall give up that wonderful luxury of playing the actor, director and producer," he sighed. "It was wonderful, but arduous, and every time I finished a film, I swore I would never undertake all three jobs again. Now I don't believe I shall."

TIME OUT FOR A JOKE puts Dan Christian, Norma Grieg and Helen Peaker into the proper mood for their roles in "The Matchmaker," the riotous farce comedy production by Victoria Theatre Guild which opens Jan. 31 at Langham Court Theatre. The show will run through the following week, was written by Thornton Wilder. Its large cast and fast-moving scenes are directed by Phyllis Dulmage.

Phil Lee's Two for the Show

A (Don't Miss) AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile) C (To put in time)

(BB) "DUNKIRK" (Odeon)—Britain's attempt to dramatize the Second World War's finest hour, the evacuation of approximately 350,000 men from the beaches of Dunkirk, must be regarded as the year's most disappointing show.

It's like a giant red firecracker that fails to detonate. I would say the failure has little to do with the acting. John Mills, Robert Urquhart, band of soldiers caught behind enemy lines.

Or perhaps the writer still remembers too much of that learned through friends who were in that almost catastrophic defeat of British arms that strangely turned into some unnameable victory of a spirit that was to keep England up when England should have fallen, a spirit that was to hold the black, hopeless void until that time when the Free World could arise and join her for the ultimate victory.

THE NEWSPAPERS of the times were full of that gallant evacuation, of the fierce rear-guard action fought by the cream of British regulars, those proud men who when they ran out of ammunition fought the enemy stripped to the waist, valiantly swinging their empty rifles at the foe, charging the tanks with fixed bayonets.

Surely these were some of the stories that "Dunkirk" should have told but didn't, any more than it managed to catch the scope and the miracle of it all as the "little boats" made their never-to-be-forgotten "bridge" across the English Channel.

No, not even actual film footage taken at the time, of newsreel shots of Prime Minister Chamberlain leaving No. 10 Downing, or the sound of Lord Haw Haw's voice on radio could create the realism needed to make an epic of this Ealing production.

However, on the good side of the ledger, there was some excellent work filming the masses on the beaches as they were being dive-bombed, also some memorable shots of refugees being strafed from the air.

JOHN MILLS ... good as possible.

Ray Jackson, Meredith Edwards, Anthony Nicholls, Bernard Lee and the rest were as good as their lines in an artificial story would allow them to be. Therefore the fault must be laid to David Divine who wrote the screen play.

In a situation that simply yelled for faithful documentation of almost newsreel reality, "Dunkirk" gave itself over to seemingly inconsequential, such as homefront spoutings, obviously written in retrospect, and yards of film devoted to Corporal Mills and his small

'Klondike' Goes on TV

Pierre Berton has just signed a contract with Ziv Television of Hollywood for a television series based on his best selling book Klondike. He will do some of the writing and act as general adviser for the entire series. A pilot film will be completed during 1959.

A third Canadian printing of the book has been ordered, to be ready early this year.

IN RECITAL HERE

Robin Wood, Winifred Scott Acclaimed as Duo Pianists

Duo piano concerts by artists of the calibre of Robin Wood and Winifred Scott are a rare treat for the music lover and the Victoria Musical

Art Society shows wisdom in taking advantage of the musicians' visit here to sponsor such a recital.

Following their outstanding performance with the Victoria Symphony last weekend, the event will be anticipated even more eagerly than usual.

The couple has created an enviable reputation in this special field in London.

According to that august journal, Musical Opinion, theirs was "a phenomenal performance." Others have described them as "poetic" while the London Telegraph remarked: "... it takes professionals to play as beautifully as Winifred Scott and Robin Wood."

Their program on Feb. 4 will include Rachmaninoff's Suite for Two Pianos which brought more enthusiastic comments—from the Times when it was played in a London concert.

This may be the last opportunity for some time to hear the gifted Canadian musicians, as they will leave shortly afterward to resume their many concert and teaching engagements in England and Europe.

Oak Bay Junior High School will be the setting for the recital and tickets are available at Hudson's Bay ticket bureau or Western Music Co. on Fort Street.

Unusual Band Specializes In Best Music

A band playing "more socially acceptable music," according to its director, Walter Welke, will come from the United States to play a concert at Victoria High School Feb. 7.

Mr. Welke, well known here as an outstanding band leader and adjudicator, was referring to the quality of music played and the size and make-up of the band.

Canadian Bandmasters' Association is sponsoring the event. According to their announcement Mr. Welke subtitled his small band a "symphonette."

As to repertoire, it is stated that this is drawn only from the finest and most beautiful music composed or arranged for instrumental ensemble performance.

The moderately priced tickets are available at various centres as listed in the calendar of events on this page.

BRIDGING THE GAP

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jon Provost, 31, in the TV series, has full-uppers—even at his age. That's because he's lost a few baby teeth and is waiting for the permanent ones to arrive, he still has to look the same for the series. "It's hard to talk at first with them," he said. "The director told me not to cross my bridge before I get to it."

City Boy Building Jazz Vocal Career

Upcoming young jazz singer Pat LaCroix will blend his talent with an informal quartet for Victoria Jazz Society's cabaret program Jan. 30 at Club Tango.

Titled "An Evening of Polite Jazz," the performance will be the society's first this year and third of the winter season. Vocalist LaCroix, although just 20, is an alumnus of Westlake, Calif., school of music and has been singing since the age of 14.

Like members of the quartet—pianist Don Partridge, bassist Doug Peaker, altoist George McDowell and drummer Bill Smith—he is a Victoria man and a familiar of the jazz scene.

Pat's history includes solo work with Victoria High School choir when it won the Victoria Music Festival and came second in the B.C. festival in 1956. He has been featured three times in the last few months with the CBC radio program, "Lance Harrison and the Harrison Lancers," a variety show originating in Vancouver. While studying in California Pat managed to get in some club work at one of the west coast's jazz meccas, Hollywood.

Here your opportunity to buy a home in Victoria's finest residential area. The setting is ideal, a larger-than-average lot, beautifully landscaped with a variety of shrubs, firs, pines and spring water. You also have a large brick barn with patio. This is a home your family would be proud to own. Because it needs some modernizing, it will sell at a low down payment of $3,000 and balance on reasonable monthly payments. Call for this magnificent setting, dial RV 8-2757 or RV 8-2474. C. A. James.

CONTRACTOR'S SPECIAL

Opportunities like this one come but seldom. We have a large barbeque house with drive-in carport, swimming pool, and a large full concrete basement with extra finished room plus 3 bedrooms on the main floor or 2 and a den. The combination living-dining room features wall-to-wall carpet with electric fireplace; the large, roomy kitchen is wired for range, with plenty of cupboard space; there is a four-piece bathroom; you also have a full laundry room and formal laundry. The double lot boasts twin garages, 30x30, which is ideal for the building contractor, painter, plumber, etc.

$10,900

The price is $2,300 down, or considerably less for cash.

Flood Toll Mounts

Damage Hits
$100 Million

CHICAGO (CP)—Parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania have been declared national disaster areas in the wake of three days and nights of ravaging floods that drove thousands from their homes.

One estimate placed total damage at $100,000,000 in the worst floods to hit the area since 1913.

A cold wave swept across the northeastern part of the United States today, checking the disastrous January thaw that sent death and destruction to many parts of the country.

Ohio Governor Michael DiSalle proclaimed a state of emergency in Ohio Friday as a needed step in qualifying the state for federal assistance.

WORST-HIT STATES

In Washington, President Eisenhower declared parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania disaster areas. Immediate federal payments of Ohio and Pennsylvania, the worst-affected states, have been authorized.

The Red Cross says it is sending assistance to 11,000 families who are victims of the floods in those two states as well as West Virginia, Indiana and northern New York.

In the town of Pomeroy, Ohio, merchants moved goods out of their shops as the Ohio River's flood crest moved downstream. The crest is expected to reach Pomeroy at noon Sunday, rise over the banks and flood the low-lying main street.

COSTLY FIRE TODAY

In Meadville, Pa., firemen stood by helplessly early today as flames swept through a warehouse in flood-stricken city of 25,000. Firemen said the blaze broke out in the warehouse and office of the Race Street Lumber Company in a flooded section of the city.

Meanwhile, more than 2,000 men, women and children were homeless in the northwestern Pennsylvania city.

Officials reported slow progress in attempts to plug a riverbed hole through which flood waters of the Susquehanna have poured into a mine near Pittston, Pa., and trapped 12 miners.

Heavy equipment, including railroad cars, trucks laden with large rocks, bales of hay and excelsior, were being used to plug the hole so rescuers could start down after the miners trapped since Thursday.

The floodwaters have crept into inter-connected mine shafts on both sides of the stream. Eleven other mines were closed Friday night, threatening to idle a total of 5,000 men.

Fears were expressed that the river waters pouring into a mine in nearby Port Griffith would force poisonous and explosive coal gas to the surface.

Councilman Anthony Wycall of Duryea cautioned residents to keep cellar windows open.

LONDON (Reuters)—Snow and ice blocked roads in many parts of Britain today, and floods in the south invaded homes and marooned families.

Emergency barriers still held back the rising Thames near the grounds of Windsor Castle.

UPSETS MARK MATCHES IN U.K. CUP FOOTBALL

LONDON—Fourth round of the English Football Cup today was marked by several upsets. Major surprise was Bolton's 2-1 victory over league-champion Wolverhampton. Bolton are present holders of cup. In another surprise Third Division Norwich City eliminated Second Division Cardiff 3-2. Results Page 2.

AMPHIBIOUS AUTO

Streets were flooded in many areas of the city and district today as drains plugged and heavy rains caused overflows. In many cases cars walled off almost up to their axles, like the one above at Argyle and Richmond.

WIRE BRIEFS

Demonstrators March

LONDON (Reuters)—Sixty members of the Direct Action Committee against Nuclear War today set out on a nine-mile march from Brixton prison to Holloway women's jail here to demonstrate solidarity with fellow members imprisoned for last month's rocket base demonstrations.

Empty Factory Burns

TORONTO (CP)—Fire destroyed an empty five-storey factory in west Toronto early today and was prevented from spreading to nearby buildings by ice-encrusted firemen who battled in zero cold. No one was injured.

Protective Custody

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—An unspecified number of people have been taken into protective custody in Portuguese East Africa Mozambique, according to unofficial reports reaching here. The arrests last week followed the distribution of pamphlets opposed to the regime.

Heat Kills Infants

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Melbourne hospitals today made urgent radio appeals for fans and air-conditioning units as soaring temperatures killed another baby and threatened dozens more. Twenty-one infants have died since the heat-wave started a week ago.

Victoria has been splattered by 3.04 inches of rain since early Wednesday morning, to account for most of the monthly total to date of 4.29 inches.

The concentration was blamed for plugged drains, flooded roadways, and flooded basements distributed fairly evenly throughout the Greater Victoria area today.

Overnight there were about 12 flooded basements in Victoria, an equal number in Saanich, and a few blocked drains in Esquimalt. Oak Bay reported inundated basements in the newly-developed Henderson Road area, and a fair amount of water pouring across Beach Drive at the cenotaph because of a blocked drain.

In spite of the incessant rain, there have been no records set, according to weatherman William Mackie. The three-day rain barely equals the 24-hour record for January of 3.05 inches, set in 1935, and the all-time record for January of 13.28 inches, also set in 1935, does not seem to be in danger.

Average for the month is 4.45 inches, which might easily be exceeded this month, Mr. Mackie said.

Forecast is for more rain, to be dumped on the city tonight and Sunday morning by a passing disturbance, but the sun may break through the clouds Sunday afternoon.

Temperatures will range between 42 and 48 degrees, and winds Sunday will be westerly at from 20 to 25 miles per hour.

CUBA LEADER IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)

Fidel Castro, who overthrew the Cuban Batista dictatorship, arrived amid cheers Friday to help Venezuelans celebrate the first anniversary of the fall of dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

Throngs estimated at 20,000, or more swarmed around the bearded rebel chieftain's plane.

Baby Died of Hunger Coroner's Jury Finds

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A three-month-old girl died of pneumonia caused by starvation and aggravated by her mother's diet, a coroner's jury ruled early today.

The inquest into the Boxing Day death of Bertha Mae Prince ended at 2 a.m. after the jury had deliberated for 90 minutes over two days of testimony, including that of a Vancouver doctor subpoenaed to testify about the diets he prescribed for mother and daughter.

The jury found that the child's starvation was from a lack of adequate nourishment. It disregarded a claim by Dr. Everly E. Rogers, Vancouver physician who prescribed diets for Bertha Mae and 19-year-old Mrs. Phyllis Prince, that the child died of marasmus.

Marasmus is defined as progressive emaciation be-

'Let's Talk On Berlin' —Mikoyan

(Times News Services)

MOSCOW — Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet first deputy premier, called today for talks between East and West on the future of Berlin.

Mikoyan was addressing a press conference following his return from a three-week tour of the United States.

Mikoyan said the main thing is to get talks going on Berlin. The question of the six-month deadline, proposed by Russia, was "less important."

On Nov. 27 the Russians announced their plan to hand over East Berlin to the East German Communist government and declared that West Berlin should be a "free city."

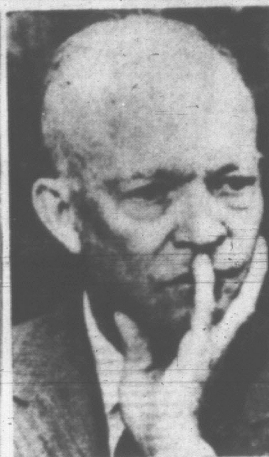

But they said they would wait six months before making changes in the present procedure for military traffic between the Western powers in Berlin, and West Germany, which now must pass through East Germany. This interim period was to allow a "sound solution" to be reached between the Eastern and Western powers.

Emphasizing the Soviet Union's readiness to listen to counter-proposals from the Western powers, Mikoyan said in reply to a correspondent's question today:

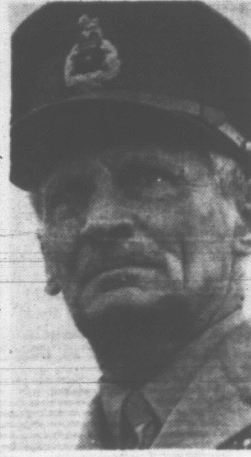

"The fact that we set a deadline on Berlin is nothing abnormal because negotiations cannot go on indefinitely. The main thing is not the deadline but to have talks."

"If there is good will on the Western side, negotiations could be prolonged for a few days or a few months."

This statement was interpreted here as an indication that the Soviet Union might be willing to extend the deadline set in notes to the Western powers last November if East-West negotiations are under way by that time.

... "distressing"

MIFFED OVER MEMOIRS?

Ike Rebuffs Monty's Gift

LONDON—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery ruefully admitted Friday night that President Eisenhower is no longer corresponding with him since he criticized Eisenhower's conduct of the war in his memoirs.

"I sent him at Christmas most warm greetings, much warmer than I sent to anybody else," Montgomery told two television interviewers.

"And the result has been silence."

Montgomery said he sent Eisenhower an autographed copy with personal inscription of his memoirs but had received no acknowledgement from the President. His Christmas greetings brought only silence, he said.

"I am awfully sad if I have lost the friendship of that great and good man. It would be very distressing to me, very distressing."

In Washington, the White House remained silent.

Two Curlers Killed As Roof Collapses

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Two persons—a woman and a boy—were killed today when the roof of a curling rink at nearby Britannia-Lodge collapsed.

Eleven persons were in the building about noon when the roof caved in under the weight of snow and a heavy wind. Rescuers removed the two bodies and the nine other persons within about an hour.

The names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Details regarding the injuries of the others were not immediately available but some were believed in serious condition.

The trapped persons were guests at the lodge where $750,000 worth of renovations have just been completed and were curling at the time of the accident.

Dispute Nears Showdown

MONTREAL (CP)—The publicly-owned CBC reported today it is spending between $5,000 and $7,000 a day on special police services to protect the families of employees maintaining broadcasting operations in Montreal.

The protection is for operational personnel, including announcers, who have continued to cross picket lines set up by producers who went on strike Dec. 29 to back demands for recognition as a bargaining agent of their Association des Realisateurs (CCCL).

J. J. Trudeau, manager of CBC information services here, said the corporation has hired about 100 special police who are paid $30 plus expenses to work a 12-hour shift each day. This total includes special personnel engaged to protect the three CBC transmitters in the Montreal area.

THREATENING CALLS

Mr. Trudeau said practically all people on operational levels, plus supervisors and regional heads of divisions received an average of 30 to 40 threatening calls a day.

He said one individual received 200 calls in one 24-hour period and that the total number for all personnel runs to between 3,000 and 4,000 daily.

The information officer said two bodyguards have been assigned full time to two employees acting as announcers at the present time. This protection is for Pierre Stein, a commercial department employee doing news broadcasts on the French-language television station, and Roger Mondoloni, an outside broadcasts executive now taking on announcing tasks.

WIFE CITES ATTACK

Mrs. Mondoloni was attacked at her home Thursday night. She told corporation officials two men came to her house and, when told her husband was not at home, one of them struck her. Three stitches were needed to close a gash on her lip.

Three other persons, including a technical producer, a film employee and the vice-president of a union local—were also beaten up since the

Sheriff's Going to Play 'Jury Bingo'

By DAVID COWLISHAW
Sheriff Eric Wilkinson will take a piece of paper out of a box in a Courthouse office next Monday morning, and read off a number.

Then he'll do it again—and over again for the next several minutes. But he won't be playing bingo. Watched by two justices of the peace and helped by Registrar John Abel, he'll be picking a jury for Assize Court duty beginning March 10.

They call this ritual "ballotting". There are 300 names to be picked from, selected at random from the provincial voters' lists. Of this 300, some 20 to 40 usually are women.

"But it's not often we have a woman on a jury," Mr. Wilkinson said. "Jury duty is usually more inconvenient for women than for men, and women have the right to refuse jury duty if they let us know within 15 days of being notified."

Between 24 and 48 names are balloted from the 300, but not all of them will necessarily serve.

SOME ARE EXEMPT
Some people are automatically exempt from jury duty, others such as men running one-man businesses may be excused for financial reasons. Among those categories exempt are:

Persons under 21 and over 65, members of the provincial legislature, civil servants (federal and provincial), officers of the armed forces, policemen, doctors, dentists, newspaper editors, reporters and printers (but not photographers), clergy, lawyers, school teachers and staffs, practitioners of Christian Science, airline pilots and seamen, telegraph operators and bank staffs.

Disqualified from serving as jurors are the infirm, deaf, blind, and persons convicted of indictable offences without pardon; also, all aliens.

The eligible ones will receive $6 a day for every day they attend court. Juries serving in cases of capital offence, such as murder and treason, will be "confined" to a hotel during the trial and not permitted to communicate with anyone.

All newscasts and television news programs concerned with the trial will be barred to capital offence juries, and newspapers will be clipped of news stories on the trial before the juries can read them. Jurors who do not appear for duty can be heavily fined, but this is rare in B.C.

Some assize sittings can be costly—the one that ended in December was unusually long and cost $5,000; the average runs to between $1,100 and $2,500.

Jurors are paid by cheque after the assize sitting has ended. Men who are employees and not employers usually receive full pay while on jury duty, but there is no law that stipulates firms must maintain an employee's pay while he is on a jury.

Sometimes a man loses his job or a large sum of money because he was called for jury duty, but this does not happen very often.

HOTEL BILL PAID

Jurors who live more than three miles from the courthouse also receive travelling expenses and may stay at a hotel at the court's expense, even in non-capital offence cases.

The daily jury pay of $6 has long been considered too small, and Sheriff Wilkinson himself believes $10 would be more adequate. In some especially long cases, such as the Sommers-Gray bribery conspiracy case that ran for 82 days in Vancouver, the jury may receive a special bonus.

But, as Assize Court judge Mr. Justice J. G. Rutan recently pointed out, a juror's reward is not a financial one. "Your reward," he said "is the knowledge that you have done your duty as responsible citizens. This is justice at work—the justice of the people, by the people."

WOMEN CAN REFUSE without reason, but most men have no choice when called on for jury duty. Among those automatically exempt are doctors, clergy and newspaper reporters. Here preparing for Monday's jury selection rite are Sheriff Eric Wilkinson, left, and Supreme Court Registrar John Abel.

City to Study
Extension
Of Blanshard

City council's public works committee will study a Saanich proposal for the extension of Blanshard Street to Patricia Bay highway.

The extension would create a second arterial highway to and from the city.

Council Friday referred Saanich's request for co-ordination of planning on the project to the committee.

The Saanich letter said:

"It is understood that the capital region plan, about to be released, proposed the creation of an arterial highway along the route of Blanshard Street and its extension along the former V&S railway."

The Victoria and Sidney Railway ceased operating almost 40 years ago.

Extension of Blanshard along the railway route would run the street almost in a direct line from its Hillside terminal to the Patricia Bay Highway.

The CRPB has shown its plan for the Greater Victoria region's development to most of the municipal councils behind closed doors. Completed last summer, it took more than three years to prepare and was to have been released some time ago.

The Saanich letter asked city council to join it in preliminary planning for the project by controlling development of land along the proposed route "to prevent... the proposed route from becoming encumbered."

Slum Clearance
Studied by City

By JOHN MIKA
City council is exploring the possibility of slum clearance and development of blighted areas.

The secret investigation was revealed by a letter to council Friday indicating a Vancouver firm of consultants had been approached to carry out a survey of two unidentified areas—believed to be Chinatown and James Bay.

The letter, outlining terms of reference for the survey and suggesting council application to the federal government to share the $41,500 cost, was only partially read in council before being received and filed.

But Ald. M. H. Mooney said that council last week at a closed meeting with the Capital Region Planning Board had been assured that body could carry out the survey for less money.

David D. Sharp, of the Vancouver firm of J. B. Ward and Associates Ltd., wrote: "In discussing with you last week the application of the City of Victoria for an urban renewal study for the purpose of redevelopment, I said that I would set out the procedure for your convenience."

CHANGED SUBJECT

At this point Mayor Percy Scourrah interjected that the rest of the letter need not be read and council switched to other business quickly.

Mr. Sharp's letter, in drafting terms of reference for a federal-city survey under the National Housing Act, said: "These older sections of the city are sub-standard, some are slum areas now, other sections are very indicative of blight conditions."

"An urban redevelopment plan is, without doubt, indicated, if the capital city of B.C. is to regain its charm and beauty and not deteriorate in its component parts."

TWO AREAS IN MIND

"There are two areas specifically now known to require immediate attention. These two areas are commercial and residential."

The letter did not identify the two areas and said their exact boundaries would have to be established by a survey. It pointed out that under NHA, the federal government would share up to 75 per cent of the cost of the survey but provincial government approval was required.

The city's share of the cost would have been $10,375. Mr. Sharp also pointed out that the survey would not bind the city to carry out a redevelopment program.

But if it did, the federal government would share the cost up to 50 per cent.

Ex-Plumbing Inspector
Dies Aged 77

Resident of Victoria for 35 years and former city plumbing inspector, John Archibald Birnie, 2596, Empire, died in hospital here early today. He was 77.

Born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, he was associated for years with the plumbing firm of W. R. Menzies before employment by the city. He retired 12 years ago and since then has been associated with his son, G. H. Birnie Ltd., plumbing contractors.

Survivors include the widow, Mabel, the son, George, and a daughter, Mrs. A. O. Underbakke, both of Victoria.

Funeral will be at McCall's chapel Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., with Rev. A. I. Higgins officiating. Burial will be in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

MORE LIQUOR LAPPED
BUT PROFITS GO FLAT

For the first time since the end of the Second World War, British Columbia's liquor profits fell off during 1958.

Sales were up slightly during the six-month business ended Sept. 30, 1958, but both gross and net profits were down by comparison with the 1957 figures.

This is revealed in a report tabled by Attorney-General Robert Bonner in the Legislature.

Sales from March 31 to Sept. 30 last totalled $46,900,000, up $787,800 over the same period in 1957.

But gross profits for the six months last year were $14,691,000 (down $14,400), with net profit $12,451,500 (down $80,550).

CAMPAIGNING STARTED TODAY to prevent Victoria's Public Market on Fisgard from being torn down to make way for a parking lot. A petition was circulated calling for the preservation of the 44-year-old institution. It will be submitted to city council. Shown here is a shopper signing the petition at the stall of Jack Peddle, 3955 Blenkinsop, a 38-year tenant.

TCA Turbo-Jets
May Ply 'Triangle'

Trans-Canada Air Lines may replace 28-passenger DC3 aircraft on the Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle service with 48-passenger turbo-jet Viscounts, a company spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the transition could be done by next year. It would be part of TCA's proposed plan to replace all piston-engined aircraft such as DC-3's and the four-engine North Stars with turbo-jets and pure jets by 1961.

The company's conversion plans were revealed as opposition mounted to Pacific Western Airlines' application to the Air Transport Board to take over the TCA's triangle service licence.

First reaction to the PWA application indicated that several Victoria groups will submit briefs to the ATB, calling for PWA to show it can equal TCA's passenger service and leave air freight rates untouched. Alternatively, the briefs will call for TCA to continue the service.

There has been no indication of when the ATB will consider the application. Even without a public inquiry, it could be some time before the application is resolved since the ATB probes all factors independently.

JETS ON ORDER

Present TCA plans call for augmenting its fleet of Viscounts and Super Constellations and it has ordered DC-8 aircraft, pure jets similar to Boeing's giant 707s.

If Viscounts were used on the triangle-run, their seating capacity would probably be increased, the spokesman said.

In service on TCA's transcontinental routes, Viscounts provide first class accommodation for 48 passengers. More seats can be added for local service such as the three-point run.

The company's DC-3 fleet has been steadily reduced from 27 to nine planes. In addition to the triangle run, they ply prairie feeder lines.

FULL INQUIRY URGED
The TCA announcement came as city council agreed to call on the Air Transport Board for a full public inquiry before allowing Pacific Western Airlines to take over the triangle service.

Council plans to submit a brief to the ATB on the proposed change.

Sidney village council voiced its opposition to the carrier change on Friday.

Dr. C. H. Hemmings, council chairman, said it "would seem to be a business manoeuvre and would not be any improvement on the present service... and (one) which many feel would be a retrogressive step."

Largely overlooked in discussions, said Dr. Hemmings, is the effect the change might have on TCA staff at Pat Bay and Victoria.

"There are over 50 men and women involved. These people have settled largely in this district, acquired homes and responsibilities."

MONTE
ROBERTS

Everybody else is making suggestions to the Royal Commission on Education, so why shouldn't I?

Even though I ain't never bin to college.

A suggestion I would make to the commission is, localize the curriculum.

Have different types of studies to prepare students for different areas in which they live.

For instance, students who live in Victoria would benefit from a course in how to dig large holes in streets.

A quick glance about the streets of this fair city at any season of the year proves there is a profitable and permanent career here for the expert digger of large holes.

And it is equally well-known that diggers of large holes are made, not born.

Therefore all schools in this area should offer an elective course in large-hole-in-the-street digging.

Another course of value in the Victoria area would be a course in Accentuating the Negative.

This course would be subdivided into such subjects as: how to be against cutting down the old pine tree; how to be against one-way streets; how to be against doing something about anything at the present time but maybe later; how to be against changing the status quo; and how to be against maintaining the status quo.

There is no question as to the stability and security of a career for the man who is a cum laude graduate Negative Accentuator.

As just one more example, not only the Victoria area, but areas adjacent to all provincial capitals could profit from a course in Blaming it on Ottawa.

I will admit we have some natural-born, accomplished Blame it on Ottawa'ers right now. But for a secure future, we should train our youth along the right lines.

I was going to make a suggestion or two for localized courses for such places as Vancouver and Winnipeg. But I shall refrain, as it appears these cities already have an excellent course in Taking Things the Wrong Way.

Debate 'Highly Improper'
On Parking, Mayor Replies

Mayor Percy Scourrah Friday told council he deemed it "highly improper" to accept a challenge by ex-alderman J. Donald Smith to debate the $1,000,000 off-street parking bylaw.

"In my opinion it would be highly improper for me to debate something that has been passed by the taxpayers," he said. "They have given us a mandate and it is our duty to carry out their wishes."

The city MLA, demanding resubmission of the bylaw approved by ratepayers last month, wrote council that the parking plan should be turned over to private business with the city guaranteeing bonds.

Otherwise, Mr. Smith said, the past failures by council would be repeated.

"Regarding the cold storage plant, grain elevator and woolen mill he is talking about," said the mayor, "he is asking us to do exactly what caused these disasters—the city guaranteed the bonds of private business ventures."

CITY BORE LOSS

"In three cases the private management caused the failures, not the city, but the city had to take the loss. I can't see any reason why we should do that again."

Aldermen quickly supported the mayor's stand and received and filed three letters from Mr. Smith and one from the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Ratepayers' Association asking the mayor to debate the bylaw.

Ald. Elmer McEwen said there was no reason the mayor should debate the matter. Any ratepayer was free to see the

FRIGATES AT HAWAII

Gales, Heavy Seas
Greet RCN Cadets

Four frigates of the Esquimalt-based Fourth Canadian Escort squadron are at Kahului, Hawaii, today after providing a strenuous introduction to sea for 85 officer cadets from HMCS Venture, the navy's training school at HMC Dockyard.

They spent nine days at sea on the passage.

The first four days were wild from the time the group cleared Juan de Fuca Strait Jan. 7. From then until Jan. 11 the ships plowed through 20-foot seas driven by winds ranging from a steady 30 knots to gusts as high as 55 knots.

Formal academic studies and professional training were out of the question in those four tempestuous days. By Monday, however, most of the lads had found their sea legs, were eating heartily, sleeping well, and looking forward to starting a Hawaii tan, and generally feeling more at home in the somewhat confusing, sometimes erratic environment that is a warship at sea.

The training program progressed normally with the ca-

mayor to obtain information on how the plan will work, he said.

Aldermen laughed when the mayor added ruefully that he had not intended to give Mr. Smith "all this publicity."

PORTER IS CO

Capt. H. A. Porter, commander of the Fourth Canadian Escort Squadron and Commander Cadet Training, who normally sails in HMCS Sussexvale (commanded by Cmdr. V. J. Murphy), visited the other ships, to inspect cadets and observe the progress of their training. There are 21 or 22 cadets in each of the four ships—the Sussexvale, Antigonish (Cmdr. R. W. J. Cocks), Stettler (Lt. Cmdr. M. H. Cooke), and Beacon Hill (Lt. Cmdr. W. S. T. Blandy).

As the weather moderated the cadets looked forward to their first port of call. On leaving Kahului, the squadron will sail for more sea exercises followed by a three-day visit to Pearl Harbor. The squadron will then return to Esquimalt, arriving Feb. 6.

Survivors include the widow, Mabel, the son, George, and a daughter, Mrs. A. O. Underbakke, both of Victoria.

Widows Over Forty, Investment Minded, Have Chance on Wall St.

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're a woman, preferably over 40, possibly a widow and interested in investments, you have a chance to make good in Wall Street.

Previous business experience is not necessary.

"Wall Street is one place where age is an advantage instead of a liability," says Mrs. Margaret Kennedy, active general partner in a stock exchange firm which recently added her name to its title. "There are many women who have gone into the brokerage business after middle age and are making great successes."

TABLES TURNED

"Often they are widows suddenly faced with the responsibility of investing their own money. They start by asking advice of friends, and often end up by giving advice to these same friends."

"People are likely to have confidence in someone with experience. A woman who has invested her own money wisely can give sound advice to others. On the other hand, an investor might be charmed by some cute young thing of 22, just out of college, but he wouldn't take her financial advice very seriously."

STARTED YOUNG

Mrs. Kennedy, however, is an exception to her own rule. She has been in the investment business since the age of eight, she announces proudly, explaining:

"My father was a St. Louis lawyer who suddenly got interested in stocks, and he taught me to make a stock chart for him every day. Later, when he moved to New York and started publishing The Wall Street Analyst, I worked in his office at the age of 15, and later became editor."

Mrs. Kennedy was married at 16 and widowed at 20, at which time she started her Wall Street career in earnest. She has one son, one daughter and two grandchildren, lives in a Manhattan apartment and spends most of her waking hours studying the market.

HAS DRAWBACKS

More and more women are getting into the business of high finance, says Mrs. Kennedy, but she does not advise it as a career for a girl just out of college. She explains: "Wall Street isn't set up to give long-term training programs and offer pensions and security and all that, like the big corporations do. There are quite a lot of young women who go into the research and analyst departments of stock exchange firms—girls who have majored in math, economics and English. But most of them work only a few years and then quit to get married."

"The most successful women in Wall Street and in other brokerage houses around the country are those who have the necessity of having to invest their own money—usually after they reached middle age. For such women, there are increasing opportunities in the investment business, if they are willing to learn, to study, to work hard and put in long hours."

"Women like to deal with other women. They're not so embarrassed as they are in discussing financial problems with men. A woman likes another woman for a broker just as she often likes a woman doctor."

A coffee party was held Friday morning in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel with Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, right, wife of the Premier of British Columbia, and wives of the cabinet ministers, the hostesses. Among guests at the party was Mrs. Bert Price, left; wife of the South Burnaby MLA. Centre: Mrs. P. A. Gibbs, wife of the MLA for Oak Bay, and Mrs. Cedric Cox, wife of the MLA for Burnaby. An honor guest was Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor.

From the left, hostesses Mrs. Eric Martin, wife of the minister of health and welfare, and Mrs. Philip Gagliardi, wife of the minister of highways, with Mrs. P. A. ## Danes Call Margrethe Their 'Farming Princess'

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—Princess Margrethe, 18-year-old heir to the Danish throne, is gradually taking on more responsibilities in the royal household. She now is known to Danes as their "farming princess."

During the absence of King Frederick and Queen Ingrid on a two-week vacation in Italy in November, the tall, fair-haired princess acted as regent. She performed her public duties, including the launching of a new ferryboat for use on the service to Sweden, with the vivacious charm that Danes have come to expect of her.

Princess Margrethe's private life is not one long whirl of dances and parties. She loves to be out of doors. And now one of her most absorbing interests is to be "down on the farm" her own farm in the agricultural heart of Zealand, easternmost of Denmark's islands, on which the capital stands.

PASTORAL PRESENT

The farm, complete with livestock, was among many presents received by the princess on her 18th birthday this year. It was given to her by Danish farmers. Nordgarden, as it is called, is in size a typical example of the country's 200,000 farm holdings. It stands in pleasantly undulating, wooded countryside near Ringsted, about 45 miles from Copenhagen and is quite close to a former royal residence.

Although the crown once possessed about 40 per cent of all land in Denmark, no sovereign since Frederick VII (1848-63) has personally owned a farm.

Life on a farm suits the princess, who always has been noted for her good health and out-of-doors interests. She loves swimming, and is still an excellent long-distance runner, a sport at which she excelled as a schoolgirl. For several weeks last summer, she joined other girls of her age group at a women's air corps camp near a Danish air force base.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Entertaining for House Guests

Mrs. Ray Castle is entertaining at her home on St. Charles Street this evening with a small party to honor Mrs. John St. Clair Harvey, and her daughter, Miss Jane Harvey, who are her guests for a few days. The visitors, here from Bristol, Eng., have been guests of Mrs. Harvey's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Andrews, in West Vancouver. On Feb. 4 they leave for Montreal, where Miss Harvey will stay. Her mother, Mrs. Simon F. Tolmie, one-time Premier of British Columbia, and Mrs. Tolmie.

For Mrs. Higgins

Mrs. D. B. Ascott, wife of the new commanding officer of 2455A C and W Squadron, RCAF, gave a coffee party this morning in her Newport Avenue home. The party was in honor of Mrs. R. D. Higgins, wife of the retired commanding officer of the local RCAF squadron. Mrs. Higgins was presented with a corsage of heather and gardenias. Thirty-four guests, wives of squadron officers were present. Spring flowers and bouquets of heather decorated the rooms.

Tea Hour Party

Mrs. F. Swanson, a winter visitor in Victoria from the prairies, was honored at a tea given recently by Mrs. M. J. Light. Other guests were Miss E. M. Simpson, Mrs. C. R. Clink, Mrs. J. Irwin, Mrs. F. Kettles, Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. E. Lumley, Mrs. C. H. Simpson, Mrs. P. R. Risdale, Mrs. A. Thomas, Mrs. H. G. P. Green, Mrs. H. Gibbons, Mrs. E. W. Bavin. The guest of honor was presented with a corsage of feathered carnations.

Holiday in South

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Marshall returned to their home, 1013 Vancouver Street, this week after a three-week holiday in southern California. They visited relatives and friends in Los Angeles and in San Pedro.

European Trip

Mrs. Evelyn Carr is leaving this weekend for a vacation in southern California. She will continue on from California to England, Scotland and continental Europe. Mrs. Carr expects to return to Victoria in late March.

At Eaglecrest

A party of Vancouverites spending the weekend on Vancouver Island at Eaglecrest, Qualicum Beach, includes Hon. Clarence Wallace and Mrs. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. F. Youngman, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Disher and Mr. and Mrs. J. Burns. They are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sweet.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. Norman Scott have returned to their Beach Drive home from a month's trip in California. They visited San Diego, Carmel, Mill Valley, San Francisco and Los Angeles, where they were guests at the Lawrence Welk television program. Much of their trip was devoted to visiting friends which the couple made while Mr. Senior was with the consular service in San Francisco.

Money Voted For Sheets, Film Strips

Municipal Chapter, IOOE, met recently with Mrs. A. Warriner Smith presiding. Mrs. B. T. Shaw, services at home and abroad secretary, was authorized to spend $25 for sheets for a needy family, and Mrs. C. C. Riach, film converter, was given $30 for film strips for schools of the Greater Victoria area. Plans were made for the chapter's annual meeting, to be held in mid-March.

Wedding Vows

Mary E. Graham, Victoria, and J. E. (Tim) Turnbull, OBE, Toronto, were married quietly in Old English Inn recently. Rev. G. R. Easter of First Baptist Church was officiating clergyman.

Marriage vows were heard in front of a large fireplace banked with bouquets of white chrysanthemums, carnations and tulips.

A dress of pale rose French lace over deeper tone taffeta complemented by a feather hat, satin shoes en tone and corsage of white orchids was chosen by the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Tudor Room.

Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull left on an extended trip to southern California. They will be at home to friends early in March at 95 Lawton Blvd., Toronto.

Above: Wives of members of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association who are meeting in annual convention here, joined their husbands Friday evening for cocktails and dinner in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel. Among them, from the left, were Mrs. W. K. Blethen, whose husband is publisher of the Seattle Times; Mrs. Stuart Keate, wife of the publisher of the Victoria Daily Times, and Mrs. Edward Scripps, Atherton, Calif., wife of the grandson of the founder of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain.

At right: Among other feminine guests at the gathering were Mrs. Frank Mack, wife of the production manager of the Victoria Times; Mrs. W. H. Cowles, wife of the publisher of the Spokane Review; and Mrs. William R. Morris, wife of the assistant to the publisher of the Portland Oregonian.

Mrs. Forster Heads Baptist Women's Union

Mrs. Newland Phillips installed the following officers at annual meeting of the First Baptist Church Women's Union: President, Mrs. J. A. Forster; first vice-president, Mrs. A. R. Booth; second, Mrs. M. E. Bevis; Mrs. P. R. Thompson, recording secretary; Mrs. D. Pearmain, corresponding; Mrs. M. Zabel, treasurer; Mrs. R. L. Van Wart, assistant treasurer. Honorary president is Mrs. G. R. Easter and past president Miss K. B. Stewart.

Conveners are Miss P. Pratt, church decorating; Mrs. Phillips, Christian fellowship; Mrs. H. G. Day, cradle roll; Miss V. Waller, mission band; Mrs. F. W. Clayden, pianist; Mrs. A. R. Booth, program; Miss M. O. Lavoie, press; Mrs. Bevis, periodicals and social; Mrs. W. E. Major, White Cross; Mrs. E. Bell, reading course; and Mrs. G. Bergstrom, visiting. Mrs. C. MacLean and Mrs. W. E. Myers were named delegates to the Local Council of Women; Mrs. O. M. Brown and Mrs. G. Bergstrom, Protestant Orphanage, and Mrs. Phillips, Rose Manor.

Reports showed that the group had raised $2,300 in the past year for local and missionary work at home and abroad.

Grandmother's Cameo Brooch Worn by Bride Mary Anne James

Her grandmother's cameo brooch which had also been worn by her mother as a bride was worn by Miss Mary Anne James at her recent wedding in St. Mary's Church, Ladysmith.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. G. C. James, Chemainus, and the late Capt. James. Parents of the groom, Stuart Warner Chadwick, are Mr. and Mrs. W. Henry Chadwick of Cassidy, B.C.

Cassidy's Father Albury heard the marriage vows in a church decorated with bouquets of King Alfred daffodils, blue iris and swirls of copper eucalyptus foliage. Mrs. Stanley Reiken played wedding music during the double ring ceremony. Frederick A. Deacon gave his niece in marriage.

White net over satin styled the bouffant full-length skirt of the bridal gown. The fitted lace bodice had a round neckline and lily-point sleeves. A mother of pearl and sequin tiara held the chapel veil. A small gold cross, gift of the groom, was worn by the bride. Her bouquet was satin daisies and red roses.

Matron of honor, Mrs. E. A. Estlin, Victoria, wore a gown of daffodil yellow nylon lace over taffeta. She carried a bow knot spray of daffodils and Wedgwood blue iris.

Best man was George Robertson, Ladysmith.

Receiving guests at a reception in the family home, Mrs. James chose a dress of cocoa brown crepe with satin pleated V neckline. Her accessories were pink and she had a gardenia corsage.

Leaving for the wedding trip, the bride chose a grey suit with a teal blue topcoat, red accessories and a red rose and freesia corsage.

Road to Doom; Sour Expatriate

By The Canadian Press

The tragedy, courage, hardship and peridy unfolded in charting the Canadian Arctic's Northwest Passage tends to make subsequent developments there appear anti-climactic.

Elizabethan seadogs probing for a short cut to Cathay began a high road to doom for many seamen in the 330 years before Roald Amundsen finally navigated the archipelago from Atlantic to Pacific in 1906.

L. H. Neatby's In Quest of the North West Passage (Longmans Green) covers the years in which explorers like Henry Hudson, Sir George Back, Sir John Franklin, and a host of others were pathfinders for Amundsen.

The story is told well, linking the deeds of brave men to obscure Arctic place names and bringing alive the necessarily abundant maps.

VALIANT STRUGGLE

To modern eyes the long struggle may appear almost suicidal at times—pitting cranks sailing vessels against unknown jagged expanses of hostile water frozen 10 months a year.

Martin Frobisher made his first voyage to the eastern Arctic in 1576—12 years before the Spanish Armada. In 1589, Capt. Leopold McClintock completed the melancholy task of tracing the fate of Franklin's expedition, which died with the passage all but solved.

Amundsen followed McClintock's suggested route, by passing the full brunt of the "ice stream" that ground down from the Beaufort Sea in the west and pinned Franklin's two ships in 1847.

Prof. Neatby does find some light relief. One such passage concerns the billiard table fashioned from ice, walrus skin and other rude elements. It worked for a British naval crew frozen in the ice for the winter and in need of as much recreation as the hazards of cold, scurvy and solitude would allow.

Prof. Neatby is the head of the department of classics at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S.

CANADA REVISITED

Norman Levine, a Canadian-born writer who has spent most of his time in Cornwall, England, since leaving his homeland in 1949, has written his impressions of this country based on a return visit in which he travelled from Halifax to Vancouver Island.

Mr. Levine, who was born in Ottawa, talks to people of diverse occupations and of all social levels in the course of his travels. His reflections, summed up in Canada Made Me (McClelland and Stewart), are not flattering.

He writes of the failures, "the Babbitts on Main Street," "the dull Anglo-Scotch or the immigrants who were quickly corrupted."

He finds Canadians on the whole a dull and unimaginative lot, preoccupied with making a living. At one point he writes:

"I wanted to get back to failure."

Somewhat, he found those at the bottom of society more interesting and colorful than those who had achieved financial stability. He admits himself that he doesn't really know why.

DAVIES COLUMN DELAYED

"A Writer's Diary," by Robertson Davies, the internationally-known humorist, playwright, novelist and literary critic, which is to appear weekly in this space, did not arrive in time for this Saturday's edition of The Times.

It will, however, appear next Saturday and regularly thereafter. Watch for the witty commentary on books and literary subjects by the Canadian writer whom American publisher Alfred Knopf has called the finest literary critic in North America.

"I wondered why I was attracted to the failures, to the seedy, to the newcomers who would not fit in."

Mr. Levine, who has had two volumes of poetry and a novel published, talks to priests and former fellow-students in Montreal; miners at Wawa in Ontario; wealthy acquaintances in Ottawa and Saskatoon; Indians and lumber workers in British Columbia; a TV producer and a newspaper friend in Winnipeg; a Mormon girl in Edmonton; a Chinese hotel clerk in Vancouver.

He concludes by asking himself why he feels so bitter about Canada. And he answers his own question:

"It was foolish to believe that you can take the throwouts, the rejects, the human kickabouts from Europe and tell them: 'Here you have a second chance. Here you can start a new life.' But no one ever mentioned the price one had to pay; how much of oneself you had to betray."

WORLD PROBLEM

The ill-fated around the world outnumber the well-fed by nearly two to one; and if people are chronically hungry it cannot be expected that they will always remain passive—desperation will sooner or later lead them to seek some extreme solution."

That is the theme of To Plow With Hope, (Ryerson) a book by Donald K. Faris on the United Nations' efforts to improve living standards in undeveloped countries.

The world is teetering on the verge of calamity unlimited, says the former United Church of Canada worker in China, now a community development adviser in Thailand with the UN Technical Assistance Administration.

The picture he gives of living conditions in many Oriental countries is frightening. The situation, he says, demands that "we put all our weight alongside these people struggling . . . to break through the triple-barriers of disease, poverty and ignorance to find a wider basis for dignity and self-realization."

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Memorable Hammer Show In Final Week at Gallery

Now that the exhibition of the Hammer Brothers collection is entering upon its final week at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria (closes Jan. 31) the time has come to ask ourselves just what will be remembered of this display a year from now. For the majority of Victorians individual pictures, such as the De Hooch, will remain unforgettable.

If I might be allowed to give my own answer, it would be that this is one of the few exhibitions I have seen in which the influence of Rubens was so thoroughly in evidence. Rubens himself is a difficult Master to "pin down." With his picture factory in Antwerp, his liberal employment of the talents of fellow painters, and all the complications of wholesale borrowings from the works of others, it becomes necessary to forget the man and concentrate on the style and epoch.

If we ignore the man and consider his art alone and the particular period in which it was painted we are simply staggered by the impensity of his vision. His genius grows in stature the more it is considered.

We get to know Rubens the portraitist, Rubens the painter, in the grand manner; myth, of religious conviction; and last but not the least in importance, his influence, through Hobbema, upon an entire school of British landscape painting.

By the inclusion in the exhibition of works by Hobbema, Van Dyck and Jan Breughel, we are given a taste of the family, the brotherhood of Rubens' collaborators, students and followers. Even in the small panel by Lairese, an artist born a year after Rubens' death, the influence is not unmarked.

While in the previous articles we have devoted our attention to the Dutch and Flemish exhibits, we must now discuss the Italians.

Just as it was a short stage from Dou to Rembrandt, so it is now possible to glide from Rubens backwards to Il Veronese, an unfortunate and persecuted artist who received the rebuke of the Inquisition.

The catalogue suggests that the painting by Rubens of the wounded Venus was possibly inspired by a painting by Paolo Veronese in the Earl of Yarborough's collection.

The Veronese "Portrait of a Young Boy" is one of three splendid Italian portraits in the current show. A slight sketch, and one suspects it might have been at one time part of a larger portrait group, it is a perfect study of childhood serenity.

"Il Furioso" While not ignoring the Carlo Ceresa "Portrait of a Lady," a work formerly ascribed to Velasquez, we must be excused if we reserve our admiration for the portraits by Bronzino and Tintoretto.

The Tintoretto "Portrait of a Venetian General" this tough, sour-mouthed, watery-eyed old soldier, is a fine example of this Master's facility for rapid portraiture.

Because of the rapidity with which he worked, Tintoretto was nicknamed "il Furioso," yet in none of his paintings, especially this fully-charged study of defiant old age, is there anything but the fullest employment of design and characterization. This is a masterpiece, indeed.

The Bronzino portrait of Francesco de' Medici was probably painted around 1560. Bronzino painted several studies of this prince, and for the interest of students of Italian art I would refer them to the Phaidon edition of the Memoirs of Benvenuto Cellini where they will find reproduced yet another, and until recently unidentified, portrait of the same subject.

Many More

I find that I have left myself little space and must therefore pass over, with a brief mention, the masterpiece by Fra Filippo Lippi, "Madonna and Child." Nor have I space in which to do justice to the unique and early (c.1460-1520) "Christ on the Mount of Olives" by Mair of Landshut, attributed to the Bavarian school.

And what a real charmer is the delightful small painting

Boone Tells All To Aid Teeners Solve Problems

Singing star Pat Boone is one of the few fabulous figures in the entertainment world who is both idolized by millions of teenagers and approved by parents.

Much of this popularity is due to Pat's qualities of good taste, sincerity and religious devotion — traits that have made his life a model of good behavior. With this background as his guide, he has written "Twist Twelve and Twenty," (Prentice-Hall) a book of sound advice for teenagers presented in the language they understand.

Just a few years ago the internationally renowned singer was a teenager in battered jeans who was sitting in his father's barn in Nashville, Tenn., milking the family cow and dreaming of how great it would be to be rich and famous.

He was a teenager meeting the challenges of a teenage world. He was busy trying to solve his problems of dating and clothes, altered relations with his family and friends, earning money, developing spiritually, planning a future.

And he'd lost every singing contest in Nashville.

TO BUDDING NOVELISTS

'Don't Do as I Do' Advice From Best-Selling Author

By FRED DANZIG
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Erskine Caldwell may be the world's best-selling novelist, but he considers himself a poor example for writers to emulate.

Caldwell's short stories and novels about the lives and loves of Southern poor whites have sold upwards of 40,000,000 copies. His "God's Little Acre," considered the world's best-selling novel, recently passed the 8,500,000-copy mark in the paperback editions. Total "G.L.A." sales, including 17 foreign language translations, are around 9,300,000. And, of course, there's the movie.

During a recent brief visit to New York—Caldwell lives in San Francisco now and most of his Coveta, County, Ga., accent has vanished—he discussed his work and some of his experiences with publishers.

Caldwell is a rare kind who can indulge in the luxury of thinking before speaking and still voice honest fresh opinions.

NO MODEL

"No," he said. "No writer should model his life after mine. I've been hard-headed. Can't afford to be that way today. Writers today have to listen to agents, publishers, talk about movie rights, foreign rights, TV, plays, paperbacks. I'm not interested. I'm a writer, so a writer just coming along who listens to me is going to get in trouble in five minutes on Madison Avenue."

Caldwell still answers to the nickname of "Skinny," acquired in part because he once weighed 98 pounds as a six-footer (present weight: 198) and partly because his first name contains the seeds of the nickname.

His face at 55, is ruddy and lined and he peers out at the world from ingenu-type light blue eyes that belie the uses of his mind. Caldwell keeps his close-cropped silvery-blond hair brushed forward.

300 OR MORE

An example of his maverick-ism: "I write a book every year; but it's limited to 300 pages. My point of view is, I say it in 300 pages or I'm not going to do it at all. The publishers want you to do a big book—700, 900 pages. But somehow, I've been able to be independent. I've made a lot of enemies, though, just by telling them I'm a 300-page boy. If they want them longer, I tell them to find another boy."

"I've got nothing against the big book writers. You know how it is. The publishers get you in their conference room—the Green Room, or Red Room, or Blue Room—and give you a lesson on the economics of publishing."

"They say it costs as much to do a 200- or 300-page book as a big one, only they can-make more on the big ones, selling for $6 or $7. I'm not interested in their economics. I'm a writer."

Caldwell's newest novel, "Claudelle Inglish," will be published in January and, needless to add, it's not a "big one." He writes one book in eight or nine months, working an eight-hour day, and devotes the remainder of the year to travel with his lovely wife, Virginia.

"I got used to working eight hours a day when I was a reporter and I never saw any reason to change," he explained.

He doesn't get down to specifics in discussing contemporary literature. "I haven't read a book in 10 years. I know what everybody is writing, so why read them? Everybody writes the same. We just use different titles."

This last comment was punctuated with a chuckle and a teasing glance sideways to where his agent sat. The agent paled, recovered quickly, and slowly shook his head.

The result: confusion, warring overlapping jurisdictions. Wood believes this is a reaction against the unity of the city which suburbanites had recently escaped.

This is a thoughtful analysis of trends in American community life.

Brilliant Picture of an Age Reveals Intensive Research

"MISTRESS TO AN AGE," by J. Christopher Herold. McClelland & Stewart Limited, Toronto, $6.75. 472 pages.

This biography of Germaine de Stael is not the first written about one of the most flamboyant characters of the Napoleonic era, but certainly it must be one of the best.

It starts before she was born, and stops only when she takes her place in the family mausoleum with her mother and father.

She was the daughter of Jacques Necker, finance minister for Louis XVI, and she grew up amid wealth, yet during the revolution managed to keep her head. She played both sides of the revolution—taking part in a political upheaval with her head, yet saving ing friends from the terror of her heart.

As she matured brilliant conversation became her passion, and her salon always was one of the centres of the literary and intellectual whirl in Paris.

She opposed Napoleon—in fact was known jocularly as Great Britain's chief ally on the Continent—and was banished by him from Paris, and finally lasted 12 years.

By profession she was a writer of both fiction and political thought, and won tremendous acclaim throughout Europe. She also had a talent for scandal, and her private life was even in that enlightened age, somewhat unconventional.

"noisy exaggeration," according to one writer.

SHREW IN BUSINESS

She inherited a tremendous fortune, and it is likely that her children inherited more than her father left her.

The author writes: "And the most tempestuous passions of her soul there never ceased to be a pool of calmness in which she conducted her business transactions. She was by no means avicious; all testily to her generosity. Her way of life was lavish, though not extravagant, but her personal needs were simple and she never lost count of a penny."

Three Curlers Killed As Roof Collapses

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Three persons—a married couple and a boy—were killed today when the roof of a curling rink at nearby Britannia Lodge collapsed.

Eleven persons were in the building about noon when the roof caved in under the weight of snow and a heavy wind. Rescuers removed the two bodies and the nine other persons within about an hour.

The dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Eric Chudleigh and John Canfield, 13.

Details regarding the injuries of the others were not immediately available but some were believed in serious condition.

The trapped persons were guests at the lodge where $750,000 worth of renovations have just been completed and were curling at the time of the accident.

Baby Died of Hunger Coroner's Jury Finds

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—A three-month-old girl died of pneumonia caused by starvation and aggravated by her mother's diet, a coroner's jury ruled early today.

The inquest into the Boxing Day death of Bertha Mae Prince ended at 2 a.m. after the jury had deliberated for 90 minutes over two days of testimony, including that of a Vancouver doctor subpoenaed to testify about the diets he prescribed for mother and daughter.

The jury found that the child's starvation was from a lack of adequate nourishment. It disregarded a claim by Dr. Everly E. Rogers, Vancouver physician who prescribed diets for Bertha Mae and 19-year-old Mrs. Phyllis Prince, that the child died of marasmus.

Marasmus is defined as progressive emaciation, because of an enfeebled constitution, rather than any ascertainable cause.

Dr. Rogers testified he had been practising medicine since his graduation from McGill University in 1919 and denying he is a naturopath, said he specialized in nutrition.

Flood Toll Mounts

Damage Hits $100 Million

CHICAGO (CP)—Parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania have been declared national disaster areas in the wake of three days and nights of ravaging floods that drove thousands from their homes.

One estimate placed total damage at $100,000,000 in the worst floods to hit the area since 1913.

A cold wave swept across the northeastern part of the United States today, checking the disastrous January thaw that sent death and destruction to many parts of the country.

Ohio Governor Michael DiSalle proclaimed a state of emergency in Ohio Friday as a needed step in qualifying the state for federal assistance.

In Washington, President Eisenhower declared parts of Ohio and Pennsylvania disaster areas. Immediate federal payments of Ohio and Pennsylvania, the worst-affected states, have been authorized.

The Red Cross says it is sending assistance to 11,000 families who are victims of the floods in those two states as well as West Virginia, Indiana and northern New York.

In the town of Pomeroy, Ohio, merchants moved goods out of their shops as the Ohio River's flood crest moved downstream. The crest is expected to reach Pomeroy at noon Sunday, rise over the banks and flood the low-lying main street.

COSTLY FIRE

In Meadville, Pa., firemen stood by helplessly early today as flames swept through a warehouse in flood-stricken city of 25,000. Firemen said the blaze broke out in the warehouse and office of the Race Street Lumber Company in a flooded section of the city.

Meanwhile, more than 2,000 men, women and children were homeless in the northwestern Pennsylvania city.

Officials reported slow progress in attempts to plug a riverbed hole through which flood waters of the Susquehanna have poured into a mine near Pittston, Pa., and trapped 12 miners.

Heavy equipment, including railroad cars, trucks laden with large rocks, bales of hay and excavators, were being used to plug the hole so rescuers could start down after the miners trapped since Thursday.

The floodwaters have crept into inter-connected mine shafts on both sides of the stream. Eleven other mines were closed Friday night, threatening to idle a total of 5,000 men.

Fears were expressed that the river waters pouring into a mine in nearby Port Griffith would force poisonous and explosive coal gas to the surface.

Councilman Anthony Wycalls of Duryea cautioned residents to keep cellar windows open.

LONDON (Reuters)—Snow and ice blocked roads in many parts of Britain today, and floods in the south invaded homes and marooned families.

Emergency barriers still held back the rising Thames near the grounds of Windsor Castle.

AMPHIBIOUS AUTO

Streets were flooded in many areas of the city and district today as drains plugged and heavy rains caused overflows. In many cases cars wallowed almost up to their axles, as did the one above at Argyle and Richmond.

Frey Re-Elected PNNA President

M. J. Frey, publisher of The Oregonian, at Portland, Ore., today was re-elected president of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association at the closing session of the two-day convention held at the Empress Hotel.

Also re-elected as treasurer was William Knight, publisher of the Oregon Journal. New officers are: first vice-president, John Callaghan, assistant to the publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer; and second vice-president, Joseph Breeze, general manager of the Ogden (Utah) Standard-Examiner.

Heat Kills Infants

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Melbourne hospitals today made urgent radio appeals for fans and air-conditioning units as soaring temperatures killed another baby and threatened dozens more. Twenty-one infants have died since the heat-wave started a week ago.

CUBA LEADER IN VENEZUELA

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Fidel Castro, who overthrew the Cuban Batista dictatorship, arrived amid cheers Friday to help Venezuelans celebrate the first anniversary of the fall of dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

Thousands estimated at 20,000, or more swarmed around the bearded rebel chieftain's plane.

Howe Star In Detroit Hockey Win

DETROIT (CP)—Veteran Gordie Howe scored two goals and Bobby Perreault, 27-year-old sub goalie from Hershey Bears, made 24 stops to spark Detroit Red Wings to a 2-0 win over Chicago Black Hawks in a nationally televised National Hockey League game today.

The victory was Detroit's second straight—both over the Hawks—following the club's most disastrous slump in years. This was the Red Wings' first home victory of 1959 and only the team's third win in its last 17 games.

Howe's performance lifted the 30-year-old veteran over the 20-goal mark for the 10th straight season. He stands a good chance to surpass his 33 goals of last season.

Perreault, a pudgy, balding minor league veteran who will celebrate his 28th birthday next Thursday, made eight saves in each period, and was at his best when the Hawks put on the pressure.

Perreault, who had tended goal in fewer than 10 big league games, is an off-season bartender in Trois Rivieres, Que. The Wings have won both games since he joined the club as a replacement for Terry Sawchuk, sidelined with a shoulder injury.

AT HIS BEST

Howe, at his dynamic best before an Olympia Stadium crowd of 11,432, broke open a scoreless game at the 18:42 mark of the opening period.

Howe's old line-mate Ted Lindsay was in the penalty box at the time, giving Detroit an edge in manpower. Defenceman Marcel Pronovost passed to Howe on the right wing and Gordie sent a blazing 25-foot shot past goalie Glenn Hall, another former team-mate.

After a scoreless second period, Howe applied the clincher at 50 of the third period, when he converted his own rebound. Howe and Johnny Wilson went charging down the ice at full speed. Howe tried to feed Wilson, but defenceman Pierre Pilote of the Hawks got his skate in the way of the puck. Howe retrieved it and sent a shot screaming at Hall. The goalie kicked it out, but Howe was right on top of the net for the rebound, and flicked it over Hall's arm.

Hall, whose brilliant goal-tending has been a major factor in the Black Hawks' surprising showing this season, stopped 32 shots and many of his saves bordered on the spectacular.

SUMMARY
First period: 1 period, Howe (Detroit) 2-0, Wilson 2-0, Perreault 2-0.
Second period: No scoring. Penalties: Kesteven 14:32.
Third period: 2 Goals, Howe (Detroit) 2-0, Wilson 2-0, Perreault 2-0.
Penalties: Hull 2:31, Lindberg, (unrecorded) 7:29.
Stoppage: 1:14, 1:10, 1:10, 1:10.
Perreault 2-0.

Ultimatum Condemned In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—More than 300 Toronto employees of the CBC at a meeting today condemned an ultimatum sent to 1,200 Montreal employees saying if they were not back to work Monday the corporation would assume they had resigned. The meeting demanded that the ultimatum be withdrawn.

MONTREAL (CP)—The publicly-owned CBC reported today it is spending between $5,000 and $7,000 a day on special police services to protect the families of employees maintaining broadcasting operations in Montreal.

The protection is for operational personnel, including announcers, who have continued to cross picket lines set up by producers who went on strike Dec. 29 to back demands for recognition as a bargaining agent of their Association des Realisateurs (CCCL).

J. J. Trudeau, manager of CBC information services here, said the corporation has hired about 100 special police who are paid $30-plus expenses to work a 12-hour shift each day. This total includes special personnel engaged to protect the three CBC transmitters in the Montreal area.

THREATENING CALLS

Mr. Trudeau said practically all people on operational levels, plus supervisors and regional heads of divisions received "an average of 30 to 40 threatening calls a day."

He said one individual received 200 calls in one 24-hour period and that the total number for all personnel runs to between 3,000 and 4,000 daily.

The information officer said two bodyguards have been assigned full time to two employees acting as announcers at the present time. This protection is for Pierre Stein, a commercial department employee doing news broadcasts on the French-language television station, and Roger Mondoloni, an outside broadcasts executive now taking on announcing tasks.

WIFE CITES ATTACK

Mrs. Mondoloni was attacked at her home Thursday night. She told corporation officials two men came to her house and, when told her husband was not at home, one of them struck her. Three stitches were needed to close a gash on her lip.

Three other persons, including a technical producer, a film employee and the vice-president of a union local—were also beaten up since the Continued on Page 2

Peerage for Massey Ottawa Paper Says

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen says reports are circulating here that Governor-General Massey will be made a peer of the realm with a seat in the British House of Lords.

The paper said in a front page story the honor will be a hereditary peerage, to be conferred on Mr. Massey at the conclusion of the Royal Tour this summer.

Empty Factory Burns

TORONTO (CP)—Fire destroyed an empty five-story factory in west Toronto early today and was prevented from spreading to nearby buildings by ice-encrusted firemen who battled in zero cold. No one was injured.

PROUD AND VALUED possession of 1st Battalion, PPCLI, is U.S. Marine Corps dress sword. It was presented to PPCLI at Marine Corps headquarters in Washington last December. It now adorns officers' mess here. Sword perpetuates close association and friendship between the fighting men in Korea in 1952-53. Examining newly-uncrusted memento are, left, Capt. R. J. Frost, adjutant, and Lt.-Col. James Allen, commanding officer. Col. Allen was battalion second-in-command in Korea.

CNIB Branch MIFFED OVER MEMOIRS? Elects Davis As Chairman

Former Canadian Ambassador to Japan, the Honorable T. C. Davis, has been elected chairman of the newly formed Victoria and Branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The branch will serve as an advisory committee to the B.C. Divisional Board of Management and act as official local authority on CNIB policy and activities.

The institute formerly operated in Victoria through representatives responsible to the committee in Vancouver.

Excluded from control by the branch will be the newly constructed C.N.I.B. villas on Humboldt Street.

The villas were incorporated in a separate organization under the chairmanship of Brigadier F. N. Cabellu. This was done to qualify for government grants and loans from the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for the construction and operation of low-cost housing.

Other officers of the branch are: A. G. E. Robbins, vice-president; Miss Margaret Jamieson, secretary, and Judge G. W. McPhee, Major S. H. O'Kelly, Dr. J. T. Cruise and Ernest Brettell, members.

Ike Rebuffs Monty's Gift

LONDON—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery ruefully admitted Friday night that President Eisenhower is no longer corresponding with him since he criticized Eisenhower's conduct of the war in his memoirs.

"I sent him at Christmas most warm greetings, much warmer than I sent to anybody else," Montgomery told two television interviewers.

"And the result has been silence."

Montgomery said he sent Eisenhower an autographed copy with personal inscription of his memoirs but had received no acknowledgment from the President. His Christmas greetings brought only silence, he said.

"I am awfully sad if I have lost the friendship of that great and good man. It would be very distressing to me; very distressing."

Hearing Feb. 9 On Fire Charge

Preliminary hearing of Gregory Jakimowicz, facing a criminal charge that he set fire to items likely to burn a building, was set Friday in city police court for Feb. 9.

Firemen and police investigated a blaze last week in which the living room at 937 Collinson was gutted. It is charged that Jakimowicz set fire to various articles of clothing, household furniture, and other items following a domestic argument.

He is free on $1,000 bail.
